Southwestern States Face Menace Of Water Famine

HUMAN LIFE TOLL HEAVY, REPORTS SAY

MANY RIVERS DRY UP

Emporia, Kansas, Experiences Fortieth Consecutive Day Of Over 100

Scorched by a drouth of several months duration and 100 degree temperatures which have taken a huge toll of human life, crops and livestock, the southwest is facing the menace of a water famine.

Streams have disappeared, leaving dry beds. Wells have failed. Springs have dried up. Only the larger rivers and deep wells remain as sources of water supply. The danger of famine is confined chiefly to rural communities. It costs money to drink water in some localities.

The drought that has brought on this situation is unprecedented in this region. Some parts of Kansas have not received rain since last September. Emporia, Kans., experienced its 40th consecutive day with cloudless skies and temperatures above the 100 degree mark.

Wild life is dying. Sportsmen plan a restricted season on game because of depletion of game birds due to drouth. Snakes, lizards, jackrabbits and other wild animals boldly invade barnyard watering troughs.

Drain On River

The Missouri river continues to supply the larger cities of Nebraska and Missouri with water. The drain on the big muddy stream is tremendous, Kansas City alone using 71,000,000 gallons daily. Deep artesian wells are an aid in Nebraska but the southeastern part of that state, where a shortage heretofore had been unknown, faces an acute situation.

A baseball team could play a game in the Platte river bed in Nebraska without the players getting their feet damp. Residents are alarmed by the receding water table that guages the sub-surface flow of that stream. The ancient art of "water witching" has been revived. "Witchee" have been employed to locate wells at Newhawka, Neb., for a new PWA water system because geologists failed to locate wells.

Fear Epidemics

Practically all Missouri points isolated from the Missouri river or other large streams are threatened. In the western part of the state the river's old bed has provided supplies for many communities. Central Missouri cities dependent upon small streams have limited use to necessary household purposes. Epidemics of typhoid fever traceable to polluted supplies have broken out.

In eastern Missouri water for motor cars is more precious than gasoline. The Mississippi river guarantees St. Louis' supply.

Except in a few southwestern counties the critical situation in Iowa was alleviated by abnormal rainfall since July 1. The only acute condition is at Creston where the state emergency relief agency is shipping 46 railroad tank cars daily from Council Bluffs.

REDONDO MAN DIES OF HEAT IN IOWA

SIOUX CITY, Ia., July 20.—(UP)—The badly decomposed body of Walker Sanborn, 45, of Redondo Beach, Calif., was found in a field near Sioux Center, Ia., today.

Sanborn jumped from a Transcontinental bus last Saturday, shouting, "I won't be killed in cold blood," and fled across a meadow.

BURMAH WHITE 'HISTORY' SENT PRISON BOARD

Information Sought From L. A. Authorities Today To Fix Sentence

LOS ANGELES, July 20.—Full details of the activities of Burmah White, youthful "bride bandit," convicted of aiding in a series of ruthless robberies with her husband, Tom White, paroled convict, who was slain by police, were sent to the state board of prison terms and paroles yesterday.

The information was sent to the board in compliance with a request for data to enable the parole board to determine and fix the length of time of the "icy" blonde's sentence to the woman's prison at Tehachapi.

The 19-year-old former Santa Ana high school girl, who was arrested and convicted of aiding her paroled husband in staging a series of robberies which included the shooting of Cora B. Withington, school teacher, who was blinded for life by a bullet from White's gun, was sentenced to serve from 30 years to life imprisonment by Superior Judge Fletcher Bowron last November 6.

But, police pointed out yesterday, under the state law the final determination of how long Miss White must serve is made by the board, which also has the power to parole her as it did her husband.

"Be particular in advising us whether or not the prisoner had weapons or a weapon in her possession and whether or not said weapon was used," the parole board asked in its communication to Chief of Police James E. Davis.

For reply, Detective Lieut. B. G. Anderson, one of the officers who killed the bandit girl's mate, wrote:

"This party and her husband held up several automobile parties, grocery stores, drug stores, et cetera, and in one case shot a woman through the head, blinding her for life and at the same time wounding her male companion. They also shot at another victim. This party stood by or sat in the car during the robberies, laughing or smiling and in such ways showed a hardened and cold-blooded disposition."

LUPE VELEZ HALTS HER DIVORCE SUIT

LOS ANGELES, July 20.—(UP)—The divorce suit of Lupe Velez against Johnny Weissmuller, film Tarzan, was dismissed today on motion of the actress' attorney.

Superior Judge Robert Kenny placed the suit off calendar without comment but it was known that the fiery Mexican actress and her former swimming champion spouse had again effected one of their many so-called reconciliations.

Judge Kenny had promised yesterday to throw the suit out of court if Miss Velez did not appear today to prosecute. Her attorney, Neil McCarthy, forestalled such action, however, by asking for the dismissal.

SUGAR FACTORY STARTS OPERATIONS NEXT WEEK

SOLDIERS HELD UP BY GUNMAN: CONVICT FREED

"Bad Actor" In Army Circles Taken From Guards In Bold Hold-Up

NEW YORK, July 20.—(UP)—A gunman rowed over to the Governor's island military reservation in busy New York harbor today, held up eight soldiers and escaped with Melvin Blanton, of Camden, Ohio, a long term prisoner known in army circles as a "bad actor."

The island is the headquarters of the Second Corps Area of the U. S. army and the entire 16th infantry is stationed there. Nearby were many boats in the harbor.

Disregarding these hazards, the gunman beached his boat and strolled over to a sentry guarding Blanton and two other prisoners.

"Drop your gun or you'll get hurt", he said in conversational tones.

The sentry, Private Stephen F. Grezegorak, found himself looking into the muzzle of a high calibre revolver. He threw his own automatic rifle to the ground. Blanton snatched up the weapon.

An army truck with three men in it rolled up.

Blanton and the civilian ordered them to line up with the sentry and the two other prisoners. They obeyed.

Two other men drove up behind the truck and they, too, were forced out and told to stand with the others.

"Don't try to follow us or it will be too bad," Blanton said.

He and his liberator ran to the nearby boat and pushed off. As Blanton rowed, the gunman stood up, covering the soldiers with the rifle.

GAMBLING BARON ADMITS OWNERSHIP

NEW YORK, July 20.—(UP)—William J. (Curley) Graham, Nevada gambling baron, today admitted part ownership of a corporation which operated "The Stockade," known as Reno's red-light district.

Over the heated objections of John Taafe, chief defense counsel in the $1,000,000 mail fraud case in which Graham is accused of being a participant, Graham said he owned stock in the Riverside Securities corporation. This was later known as the Acme corporation, which allegedly controlled the "cheap night life" of the divorce colony.

BYRD DECIDES TO GO BACK TO BASE

LITTLE AMERICA, Antarctica, July 15—(Delayed)—(By Mackay Radio to UP)—Abandoning his plan to remain isolated 123 miles out on the Ross ice barrier, Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd has ordered a motor tractor crew to leave for his hut.

Two meteorologists, yet to be named, will go to take Byrd's place at his hut, and stay until October as he had intended to.

LATE NEWS FLASHES

MINNEAPOLIS, July 20.—(UP)—Additional national guard troops were rushed into Minneapolis late today after police, opening fire with sawed-off shotguns on an angry crowd of striking truck drivers, wounded more than a score of persons. Several others were slugged and injured in the bitter rioting.

LOS ANGELES, July 20.—(UP)—A special session of the legislature to draft measures for unemployment relief was favored today by the county board of supervisors in a formal recommendation forwarded to Governor Frank F. Merriam.

Harvesting Of Crop To Start Soon

Returns Expected To Run From $700,000 To Million Dollars, Said

PROSPECT of increased returns for sugar beet growers, probably aggregating from $700,000 to $1,000,000, was indicated today by officials of the Holly Suga company here in announcing that the tentative date for the opening of the 1934 season will be next Wednesday. Payroll for plant operations is expected to run about $150,000.

Under provisions of the recently adopted Jones-Costigan act by Congress, growers will benefit from increased prices, it was learned. Average prices last year to growers ranged near $5.50 per ton of beets, and with the anticipated normal crop now in the fields, returns approaching $6.50 or more are anticipated, it was said.

Harvesting of the beet crop on large scale will open Monday with about 2500 men included in the gangs. Beets will come to the Santa Ana refinery from Orange, Los Angeles, Riverside and San Diego counties, since there are only two mills in Southern California and one south of Los Angeles. The beets come in by truck and rail and are expected to be of sufficient volume to maintain plant operation for 90 to 100 days. There are about 10,000 acres under cultivation which are harvested for the Santa Ana mill.

About 400 employers will be used in the mill, all of whom have been selected and given their duties. Virtually all the labor has

OREGON GUARD MOBILIZES AS SHIPS LOADED

First Steamer With Cargo To Leave Since May 9 Off For Orient

PORTLAND, Ore., July 20.—Under guard of 90 regular police the first cargo-loading activities in the upper harbor since May 9 started today with the steamer San Julian taking on ties for the orient.

Eight miles away at Camp Clackamas 1000 national guard troops were ready to move to Portland at a minute's notice.

In the labor temple the central labor council's strike strategy committee which, in the face of mobilization orders issued by Governor J. L. Meier, reiterated its pledge to Senator Robert F. Wagner to defer a general strike, met behind closed doors.

One hundred and fifty strike pickets stood outside police lines a block away from the San Julian loading. Police were armed with gas, shotguns, clubs and their side-arms. The pickets made no move to interfere with the loading operations.

Orders Issued

Orders to the guard were issued by Gov. Julius L. Meier of Oregon. He gave the orders just after Oregon labor leaders had told Senator Robert Wagner, head of the national labor board, that they would abandon their plans for a general strike if the national guard was not called out.

C. C. PRESIDENT REPUDIATES ATTACK MADE ON EDITOR AS ACT OF CHAMBER DIRECTORS

WHAT PURPORTED to be a Chamber of Commerce personal attack upon J. F. Burke, as published in The Register yesterday, was sent out of Chamber of Commerce headquarters by Secretary Geo. A. Raymer without the knowledge or consent of any members of the board of dirctors, it was declared by J. P. Baumgartner, president of the Chamber of Commerce today in a letter to the editor of The Register.

Both personally and in his official capacity, Mr. Baumgartner said that neither the Chamber of Commerce nor its directors were responsible for Raymer's act, or for the statements or implications of the article carrying the by-line 'By J. E. Lloyd' and thus purporting to have been written by him."

Mr. Baumgartner's letter is as follows:

"I have read with surprise and regret the article on the first page of yesterday's Register, in ten point type, under the heading 'Burke Unmitigated Hypocrite Says Chamber of Commerce Circular to County Papers.'

"Permit me, both personally and as president of the Santa Ana Chamber of Commerce, to assure you and your readers that the 'press release' referred to was sent out by Mr. Raymer without the knowledge or consent of any of the directors of the Chamber of Commerce; and that neither the Chamber of Commerce as an institution, nor any of its directors, is in any measure morally responsible for Mr. Raymer's act or for the statements or implications of the article carrying the by-line 'by J. E. Lloyd' and thus purporting to have been written by him."

Raymer himself, under fire for using Chamber of Commerce funds and facilities in his official capacity to send out the scurrilous attack, confessed today that the letters were sent out without the knowledge of his board of directors. By an oversight, he claimed, the letters were sent out on the wrong piece of paper.

Despite the fact that the Chamber of Commerce letter, accompanying Lloyd's attack upon the editor of The Register, was mimeographed by Chamber of Commerce employes, printed on Chamber of Commerce "Special Notice" blanks, and signed by Raymer as "Sec'y, Chamber of Commerce," Raymer stated today this appearance of official action was an "oversight" and he regretted the "mistake."

A business man in commenting on the matter today said that "this appearance of official action was the only thing that would have prompted any consideration by anyone of such a scurrilous letter by an unknown writer."

"I wish to refer to the statement appearing on the front page of the Santa Ana Register on July 19.

"Through an oversight on my part, the letter accompanying Mr. Lloyd's letter to the press of Orange county, was written on Chamber of Commerce stationery, thereby making it appear an official document.

"However, the letter was sent out on my own responsibility,—neither the board of directors, nor any member thereof, knowing anything whatsoever about the Lloyd statement nor the letter sent with it.

"I sincerely regret the mistake that caused said statement to be interpreted as being a Chamber of Commerce action."

MEDIATOR

Sen. Robert Wagner, former head of the National Labor Board, who made a hurried trip to Portland by airplane, to offer his services as an advisor in the port strike.

PRESIDENT IS PAID VISIT BY BIG DIRIGIBLE

AT SEA WITH PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, July 20.—(UP)—(By Radio via U.S.S. New Orleans)—President Roosevelt's flagship, the trim cruiser Houston, steamed through squall-swept seas toward Hawaii today after a visit from the navy's air queen, the dirigible Macon.

The silvery dirigible poked her nose from a cloud bank yesterday afternoon as the Houston cruised 1200 miles from California.

She had come from her base at Sunnyvale, near San Francisco, at an average speed of 50 knots, bringing mail to the president.

Mr. Roosevelt stood on the windswept deck for some time awaiting the Macon's arrival.

Commander A. V. Wiley, recently placed in charge of the dirigible and a survivor of the Akron disaster, ordered two of his supplementary pursuit planes to fly achead of the Macon as she neared the Houston.

The planes swooped low over the cruiser's deck and dropped papers and a greeting from Commander Wiley. The Macon soared for an hour over the Houston and her convoy before pointing northward toward her base.

The president sent the following message to Wiley:

"The president's compliments to you and your planes on your fine performance and excellent navigation. Well done and thank you for the papers."

Low hanging clouds and a change in course of the Houston increased the navigation problem for the Macon. The Houston's course was changed to relieve the pain of a crew member, operated upon for appendicitis, by preventing excessive rolling.

The president received Postmaster General James Farley's report that the postoffice department had a surplus of $5,000,000 at the end of the fiscal year ending June 30. Mr. Roosevelt wired Farley congratulations, pointing out that it was the first such surplus since 1919.

The president, his sons and party were guests at a dinner party arranged last night by officers of the Houston.

MARITIME STRIKE STILL UNSETTLED; STORES OPEN AND BUSINESS RESUMED

Teamsters and Carmen Expected Soon to Return to Work; Vigilantes and Police Continue Raids

FARLEY AND WAGNER ARRIVE

SAN FRANCISCO, July 20.—(UP)—An estimated 150,000 men and women went back to work today after four days of general strike which paralyzed the San Francisco bay area.

Half of them were union members who returned to work in answer to the orders of their leaders calling off the strike. The others were workers who had been forced into idleness by the closing of business and industry.

It was a throng for the most part plainly glad to "get back to normalcy."

There remained the teamsters, the carmen's and the maritime strikes yet to be settled.

But the workers seemed to be leaving most of that to the president's mediation board, and to General Hugh Johnson, NRA chief, Postmaster-General James A. Farley, who arrived here today, and Sen. Robert Wagner, head of the National Labor Board, to worry about.

The throngs which poured into the city from early morning ferry boats, seemed more amused than angered at the presence of National Guardsmen along the Embarcadero. Passengers on street cars kidded the conductors and motormen who had returned to work.

Merchants made arrangements for a big day's business. Window displays, which had been removed entirely or had been covered in many stores during the darker days of the week, were restored. Shelves gradually were filling with stock. With transportation nearly normal and conditions quiet again, shoppers were coming down town in throngs.

Streets Crowded

The early morning streets were busy with traffic. Grocers and produce retailers went to market, finding commission houses filled with fresh fruits and vegetables and grocery warehouses again available to them with large stocks of staple foods. They hauled these away in a brisk procession.

There were no pickets anywhere to be seen.

The Industrial association announced that it had 35 trucks moving cargo on the waterfront. They met no resistance. The National Guard maintained its tightly drawn lines around the wholesale produce and the Embarcadero.

W. E. Thompson, president of the union concerned in the Market Street Railway strike, gave out a formal statement denouncing Samuel Kahn, president of the railway company.

Thompson said that Kahn's attitude was consistent with "bluffing policy he has pursued here ever since he came to San Francisco."

Offer To Arbitrate

"We offered to arbitrate before we walked out," he said. "We are ready to return to work the minute the company will agree to arbitration."

Thompson claimed that the Market Street Railway was one of the very few traction companies

BAKER REPORT ON AIR FORCES FILED

WASHINGTON, July 20.—(UP) The long-awaited Baker report on the U. S. air forces today was said to oppose a unified independent command of the services distinct from the present branches of the service.

The report has been submitted to Acting Secretary of War Harry H. Woodring. It has also been distributed confidentially to high officials of the war department. It will be made public Monday.

The report was prepared by a board under the direction of Newton D. Baker, secretary of war under President Wilson. The board was created by Secretary of War George H. Dern to study and report on the status of military aviation.

Contrary to expectation, the report was understood to contain no serious criticism of the present military aviation set-up. It highly praised it as the most efficient in the world.

LANGER TO DEMAND OLSON BE OUSTED

BISMARCK, N. D., July 20.—(UP)—Close friends of William H. Langer, replaced for the moment as governor of North Dakota, intimated today that he will ask the legislature to impeach Acting Governor Ole Olson, four justices of the state supreme court, and other high state officers.

Langer will address the special session of the legislature this afternoon. He is known to exercise some measure of political control over a majority of both houses. He was preparing in the seclusion of a river cabin, a speech expected to demand impeachment of Olson and all his political followers.

Several hundred farmers milled through the town shouting threats against the four justices who, in ruling Langer, under conviction for a felony, was disqualified to continue in office, first caused him to declare martial law to maintain his status and then yield temporarily to Lieutenant Governor Olson.

NAVAL SEAPLANES AWAIT NEW ORDERS

ASTORIA, Ore., July 20.—(UP)—Six naval seaplanes, comprising squadron VP-7, waited here today for orders that will send them winging northward to Seattle ahead of schedule.

The six planes, one-half of those engaged in a mass training flight from San Diego to Dutch Harbor, Alaska, and return, arrived yesterday afternoon after a normal though stormy flight from Paradise Cove, Calif. Their original orders call for departure for Seattle, next stop, Saturday morning.

Lieut. Com. Shoemaker, flight commander, who came here with the VP-7 squadron, said the VP-9 squadron of six planes, which remained at Paradise Cove, may be sent forward ahead of schedule, and that if this is done, the leading squadron will have to pull out for Seattle ahead of their arrival.

JAPANESE CABINET ASKS BIGGER NAVY

TOKYO, July 20.—(UP)—Japan's new cabinet tonight pledged itself to strive for naval equality with the United States and Britain.

Premier Okada, in his first public statement since taking office, declared Japan will seek to gain her naval aims at the London conference in 1935.

He declared Japan wanted universal friendship. He pledged himself to continue Japan's present foreign policy.

The premier, however, did not go into detail on these subjects. Observers believed he was not ready to make a statement of policy, but did so in deference to the Japanese press, making it as briefly and as perfunctory as possible.

HARVESTING OF SUGAR CROP TO START MONDAY

been selected from Orange county and will be paid a daily payroll of about $1500 during the continuation of the season. This does not include the men in the harvest fields, who are paid by private contractors and farmers.

It is expected that in excess of 100,000 tons of beets will be harvested and refined this year, which is about a normal crop. The growth of the beets started out better than usual, and a bumper crop was anticipated, but unforseen weather conditions and lack of hot weather deterred the rapid growth, and a normal crop resulted.

Practically the entire output of the Holly mill here is sold in Southern California. The beet acreage has dwindled from former years to such an extent that the Santa Ana mill, built in 1912, is the only one of five formerly operating in the county. Night and day shifts are run throughout the season.

REV. EDGAR WILL ATTEND CONVENTION

The Rev. Samuel Edgar, pastor of the Reformed Presbyterian church, will leave Santa Ana next Monday for Winona Lake, Indiana, to attend the annual meeting of the church. John Curry, sessions delegate, also will attend.

Two particularly important questions, foreign missions and a change in the terms of communion, are before the annual meeting this year, it is said.

The Covenanter church, it is stated, has stood for years in the front rank of the denominations in generous giving to missions, having for several years led the churches in amount per capita. Now it faces the question of how to adapt the workers in the field to the decrease in force and finance.

The Rev. Mr. Edgar will attend the fiftieth anniversary of the Eskridge, Kansas, church, where he was pastor before coming to Santa Ana. He also will preach in Chicago on his way East.

WILL ROGERS says:

SANTA MONICA, July 20. —(To the Editor of The Register:) In 1926 I was in England during their world-famous general strike. And, brother, it was general, not a paper printed, not a train, not a bus, not a wheel turned. Well, I never got through telling of the composure of those level-headed people.

Well, I went to San Francisco, and I tell you we were not so "nutty" under stress as you might think. It was as quiet as the British. The only thing went haywire was the headlines in the out-of-'Frisco papers. I hope we never live to see the day when a thing is as bad as some of our newspapers make it.

There is lots of sense in this country yet.

Yours,
WILL ROGERS.

CALAVO MEMBERS GETTING REFUND

Many local Orange county avocado growers are among the members of the Calavo Growers Exchange who are receiving this week a surprise partial refund, which was accumulated through savings achieved under the present low operating budget. A grand total of some $10,000 is being received by growers. Even a small refund was deemed improbable earlier in the season, as the present operating retain is less than half of last season's budgeted retain.

The surprise "dividend of co-operation in marketing" represents savings made so far this season of at least 7 per cent under the budgeted marketing costs of the avocado growers' cooperative, according to an association statement. It also represents to a considerable degree the benefit that all members secure through the joining of additional growers. The partial refund is an entirely additional proceed for each grower's fruit, over and above proceeds already received from pool payouts. Fruit delivered prior to July 1 is receiving the refund now, while that delivered after June 30 will receive the partial refund later.

ACCIDENTS CAUSED BY DRIVING ERRORS

Practically two-thirds of the automobile accidents of 1933 were due in some degree to driving errors. Among these, exceeding the speed limit resulted in the greatest number of deaths. Although the number of accidents from this cause accounted for about one-quarter of all the mishaps which involve improper motoring practices, the fatalities comprised approximately one-third of all the deaths resulting from driving errors, Chet Loomis, district manager of the National Automobile club, said today in a warning to motorists.

"It is well to remember," Loomis said, "that speed too great for road conditions is a potent factor in the accidents involving improper passing, failure to grant the right-of-way, driving off the roadway and reckless operation. The number of accidents from these causes and exceeding the speed limit comprised approximately three-quarters of all the mishaps which in 1933 may be assigned to driving effors. The deaths from these accidents totaled nearly four-fifth of all the fatalities resulting from improper actions of motorists.

TOURISTS WARNED OF FLOWER LAWS

It is unlawful to cut, destroy or remove any native tree, shrub, fern, herb, bulb, cactus, or flower on state or county highway rights of way. Chet Loomis, district manager of the National Automobile club said today in a statement to motorists.

Despite warnings, tourists are still seen transporting large bunches of wildflowers, in violation of California's new law, which reads further: "It is unlawful to cut or remove for commercial purposes the above flora from any public land or private land without the written consent of the owner.

"To knowingly sell or transport for sale the above flora cut or removed from state or county highway rights of way or any public land or private land without the written consent of the owner."

Any state or county firewarden, or any peace officer of the state is empowered to enforce this law with a fine not to exceed $200 —imprisonment not to exceed six months, or both fine and imprisonment.

150,000 PERSONS RETURN TO WORK IN SAN FRANCISCO AND STORES OPENED FOR BUSINESS

that has refused to accept the national transit code. Street railways lines in Seattle, Oakland and Los Angeles are working under it, he claimed.

The municipal railway company here also has accepted the code, he said.

The Market Street railway was operating its skeleton service today with non-union crews, the labor leader said.

Police and "vigilante" raids on Communist meeting places continued last night, with the result that this morning there was a total of 350 alleged Communists in jail here and many others in nearby cities.

The San Francisco jail quarters were becoming so crowded that many had to sleep on the floor.

In Berkeley a crowd of 300 men wrecked a hall on Tenth street, said to be used as a Communist meeting place, destroyed two pianos, several hundred camp chairs, a radio and a library.

Round Up Ten

In Santa Clara county a crowd rounded up 10 alleged Communists and took them to the county line at Gilroy, ordering them to "keep going and don't ever come back."

"If you don't drastic measures will be taken," they were told.

In Berkeley a "citizens committee" made the rounds of meeting places, even stopping at the First Congregational church to warn a speaker, C. A. Anderson of the Berkeley Philosophers' club, to be careful what he said against the government.

The "committee"—which had no formal standing so far as is known —next wrecked a supposed Communist gathering place on San Pablo avenue.

Homes of supposed Communists were visited and bricks tossed through the windows with notes wrapped around them reading:

"We, the members of a committee of Berkeley citizens organized for the purpose of purging the city of Berkeley of all communists, bolsheviks, radicals, agitators and other anti-government groups, hereby notify you that we are aware of the fact that you are directly linked with this group."

Carmen Meet

Some 1600 of the Market street railway strikers met at noon and re-affirmed the decision to stay out "until the company agrees to arbitrate the grievances growing out of intolerable conditions."

Meantime, the joint marine strike committee met and it determined to continue the strike of maritime workers.

The decision of the strike committee was announced by Harry Bridges, chairman of the San Francisco longshoremen's strike committee and a leading member of the group that counseled the general strike.

"The committee still assumes its original stand," Bridges said. "It wants recognition of seafaring unions, abolition of company controlled hiring halls for seamen and control of the longshoremen's hiring halls by the longshoremen The committee is awaiting the next step by President Roosevelt's national longshoremen's board."

Meantime the independent strikes of the cleaners and dyers and of the laundry drivers' unions were ordered terminated by union officials.

The drivers reached a wage agreement with employers and the cleaners and dyers declared a 30-day armistice. During the armistice a theatened wage cut will not be put in effect, employers agreed.

FIVE DAYS LEFT IN COLLEGE GRID VOTE

CHICAGO, July 20.—(UP)—With only five days of voting remaining in the nation-wide poll to select an all-star college team to play the Chicago Bears, National professional footbal champions, at Soldier field Aug. 31, the personnel of the team began to take shape today. Only seniors last season are eligible for the team.

Ends: Skladany, Pittsburgh, and Smith, Washington.

Guards: Rosenberg, Southern California, and Schammel, Iowa.

Center: Bernard, Michigan.

Quarterback: Laws Iowa.

Fullback: Mikulak, Oregon.

Sauer, Nebraska, is leading the fullbacks but will be unable to play because of a recent operation for appendicitis. Twenty-seven players will be selected for the college team, which will start training Aug. 15.

OIL MAN FINED ON LABEL COUNT

Dick Martin, charged with violation of the California gasoline and oil substitution act, was given the alternative of spending 25 days in the county jail or paying a $50 fine when he pleaded guilty before Judge Halsey I. Spence in Fullerton justice court today.

Martin, a truck driver for an oil company, was arrested in June following the filing of a complaint by James L. Gardiner, representative of the state. Martin was charged with having re-labeled a gasoline pump at a Fullerton service station which was partly filled with another brand of gasoline.

He paid the fine.

TORRENTIAL RAINS IN POLAND CEASE

WARSAW, July 20.—(UP)—Cessation of torrential rains in mountain districts gave hope of flood relief to southern Poland today, though rivers still were rising and great areas of land were under water.

An official statement listed 180 known dead, with hundreds missing. In the flooded area, 55,000 persons were estimated to have fled homes and 30,000 were in danger. Two million persons altogether were affected. Damage was estimated at $38,000,000 (200,000,000 zloty).

STATE AND DEFENSE REST HICKMAN CASE

SAN FRANCISCO, July 20.—(UP)—The prosecution and the defense closed presentation of evidence today at the trial of Millard Hickman, shipping executive, accused of the murder of Louise Jeppesen, 23-year-old Utah girl.

Closing arguments were expected to continue through today and part of Monday, the case going to the jury late Monday.

gic points in Portland. This move was countered by an increase of police reserves at the same spots.

It was believed generally that the militia concentration at Clackamas voided labor's promise to Senator Wagner.

Expresses Regret

Learning of the Governor's militia call in which he said the troops were mobilizing "in case of emergency," Senator Wagner expressed regret. He was in conference with the strike committee last night, preparatory to leaving for San Francisco to meet the President's mediation board, when he heard the news.

Meanwhile, the Waterfront Employers' association took a militant stand against labor with the announcement that it intends to start movement of cargo from Portland's docks today. The port has been sealed since the strike started on May 9.

Observers saw in the Portland situation a crisis similar to that which came in San Francisco prior to the calling of the general strike there. In San Francisco, the Industrial association decided to run trucks. Pickets attacked the machines and drivers. Governor Frank Merriam sent in the militia and the union men, unable to face machine guns, selected the general strike as thir most formidable weapon.

Death Notices

A WORD OF COMFORT

What people may think of you may vary according to the fluctuating standards of different times and places but your character abides. It is superior to the caprice of circumstance. It is beyond the power of others to make or to break your character, though they rob you of everything else.

So long as your vitality is drawn from communion with God, neither success nor failure, joy nor sorrow, life nor death can destroy you.

LEGION GROUPS TO CONVENE IN DISTRICT MEET

Orange county Legionnaires and members of auxiliaries today were preparing to attend a 21st district meeting of American Legion posts and auxiliaries of Orange, Riverside and San Bernardino counties to be held all day tomorrow and Sunday at Huntington Beach.

Most of the day tomorrow will be devoted to social events. A golf tournament will launch the series of events at 1:30 p. m., to be followed by a pre-convention Legion political caucus at Memorial hall at 4:30 p. m., when policies of the district will be decided upon.

An informal dinner will be served at Memorial Hall at 6 p. m., which will be followed by a big parade of Legion drum and bugle corps and auxiliary drill teams through the streets of the city at 7 p. m. A dance will be staged at the Hall starting at 9 p. m.

Sunday morning at 9 o'clock a breakfast will be held, when further discussion regarding Legion politics will be held. Another caucus will be held at 10 a. m. and the main business session, when officers will be elected and other important business transacted, will be at 1:30 p. m.

LEAGUE OFFERS AID IN NAMING SERA OFFICIALS

Decision to offer cooperation in the selection of two men for the SERA adivsory board in Orange county and to leave action on water questions up to the individual cities instead of the entire league, was made by the executive committee of the Orange County League of Municipalities at the Green Cat cafe last night.

In discussing the status of the SERA in Orange county, it was finally decided by the committee that the league would be willing and glad to cooperate with SERA officials and State Administrator R. C. Brannion in selecting men for the two vacancies. Those present emphasized that there was no desire to dictate policies but merely to assist.

Flood control and water conservation policies should be decided by cities, not the league, the committee decided. Water problems are of a highly technical nature and deserves the undivided attention of the individual cities, not by a large group of men representing all the phases of city government, it was said.

Duplication of costs in city and county government, municipal liability, gasoline tax distribution, business and professional licenses and unemployment relief by cities will be among the topics which the league will recommend be placed on the program of the state league convention in Pasadena in September, it was decided.

Mayor W. L. Fowler of Redlands, chairman of the program committee, will be asked to attend the meeting of the Orange county group next Thursday in Newport Beach and outline the porgram for the mayors and councilman division. The local requests for program topics will be given to him at that time.

The question of boarding prisoners at the county jail was brought up again and decision made to have the committee appointed by President A. C. Hasenjaeger, recommended that action be deferred until an answer is received from the board of supervisors regarding a resolution sent to the board some time ago.

It is expected that President Hasenjaeger will resign next week, since he is no longer a member of the Santa Ana city council. Vice President L. A. Hogue of Brea will take over the presidency and his post probably left vacant until the regular elections in September. Mayor Charles Mann of Anaheim has been recommended to fill the post of representative on the state board of directors, which was left vacant by the resignation last month of former Mayor Paul Witmer of Santa Ana.

Big Balloon And Baseball Classic Shown On Screen

A number of unusual scenes are shown in the Register World News Events which now are on the program at the Broadway theater, according to Manager Lester J. Fountain.

LEAGUE HEARS UTT DISCUSS STATE FINANCE

Assemblyman James B. Utt addressed the Santa Ana League of Women Voters on the revenues and expenses of the state government yesterday at an all-day meeting of the League in the home of Mrs. J. D. Campbell, Tustin.

Utt showed the members how much was received or expended in each division, and used a diagram to illustrate just what proportion of the total amount each item represented.

The League voted to send President Roosevelt a letter commending him on the work done in C. C. C. camps, and expressing the hope that the work would be continued.

CONFLICTING STORIES TOLD IN BOOZE TRIAL

Conflicting testimony was given this morning in the jury trial of Mrs. Julia Sulzer, 1907 West Fifth street, who is charged with selling whiskey not in the original containers and without a license.

City Attorney Clyde Downing questioned A. F. Maendele and J. N. Hernandez, special police investigators who worked in Santa Ana to secure evidence on establishments selling liquor, to open the prosecution. Defense Attorney Harry O. Warton of Anaheim placed Mrs. Sulzer and her sister, Mrs. Maggie Dunton, on the stand before the noon recess.

There was a sharp conflict in testimony as given by the witnesses. The investigators claimed that they were served a meal and whiskey on April 25 in a nine-room house at 1907 West Fifth street. The two women denied ever having seen the investigators, said they did not move into the nine-room house until May 1, and conducted their Cotton club cafe at 1904 West Fifth street, across the street, up to April 30.

Dr. Elizabeth Tock testified that a bottle of whiskey assertedly purchased by the investigators from Mrs. Sulzer contained 48.6 per cent alcohol by volume and 41.1 per cent by weight. The whiskey was introduced as evidence by Downing.

Judge J. G. Mitchell renewed the jury trial at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon.

THOMAS S. ROADES DIES AT HIS HOME

Thomas Sherman Roades, a resident of Santa Ana for the past 32 years, passed away today at his home, 1703 West Nineteenth street, following a heart attack.

Mr. Roades, who was retired, was 67 years old at the time of his death. He is survived by his widow, Amanda E. Roades, and six children: Mrs. Grace Bennett, of Pomona; Mrs. Mable Hemmel, of Santa Ana; Mrs. Cathrine Bonham, of Pomona; John L. Roades, of Coalinga; Calvin J. Roades, of Santa Fe Springs, and Henry S. Roades, of Santa Ana. Also four sisters, Mrs. Catherine Wagner, of Fullerton; Mrs. Jennie Woodside, of Visalia; Mrs. Mary Martin, Klamath Falls, Oregon; Mrs. Bessie Gabler, of Bakersfield, and one brother, Lee Montgomery, of Anaheim.

Announcement of funeral services will be made later by Harrell and Brown.

DOCTOR AND PATIENT ON AIR TRIP TO N. Y.

JURY AWARDS $327 DAMAGES FOR DOG BITE

Debating less than half an hour, a Santa Ana justice court jury yesterday decreed that Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Streed of Brea should recover $327 and attorney's fees for a dog bite which Mrs. Streed suffered on December 6, 1933, when attacked by a dog owned by Mr. and Mrs. Fred Boling of Brea.

Mrs. Streed charged that the Boling dog chewed its way from the Boling yard and jumped on her at the rear of her home. She suffered painful wounds on her arm and elbow and the suit sought damages of $900 for herself and $95 for her husband for loss of her services.

Mr. and Mrs. Streed and Chester Wells testified for the plaintiffs while defense witnesses were Ada Boling, Fred Boling, Bessie Sweet, Charles A. Hood, Welma Pheiffer, Charles G. Curtis, Viola Baker, Helen Bailey, Helen Vance and Robert Williams.

Damages awarded by the jury were $300 for Mrs. Streed, $27 for Streed and $40.20 attorney's fees. Jurymen were Asa Hoffman, Emily I. Alleman, C. E. Clem, Anna M. Scudder, James Hall, J. E. Kellogg, Benjamin Heemstra, Ruth Kemper, Anna Hasenjaeger, Oma M. Hall, Dollikins B. Sawdey, and Clara Whitson.

DISMISSAL OF CASE SOUGHT BY DEFENDANTS

Trial of Dr. W. J. Ross, head of the Ross dog and cat food factory at Los Alamitos, and his nephew, Glenn Ross, charged with cruelty to animals, in complaints signed by Fred H. Bixby, rancher, and F. J. Lee, state humane officer, continued in Seal Beach justice court today with the defense attempting to have the case dismissed because of alleged lack of evidence that the asserted acts of cruelty took place in Orange county or that the stock involved was the property of Dr. Ross at the time of the alleged cruel acts.

The state rested its case last night after Deputy District Attorney Preston Turner, who is prosecuting the case, had presented a number of witnesses who claimed they had seen cruel acts against horses and other stock used in the manufacture of dog and cat food at the factory.

An 11-year-old girl testified that she had seen workers at the factory sink hooks into animals that were still alive. Other witnesses testified to the crowded places into which the horses were jammed, and others testified that the animals were fed fox tail grass with the results that burrs became imbedded in the horses' nostrils, mouths and feet. Many of the animals were covered with raw sores and were so weak from lack of food that they could not stand up, according to testimony given.

Those who testified included Lee and Roy McCarrel, of the humane department; Dr. C. C. Warn, veterinary and humane officer of Los Angeles; Tony Avilla, dairy worker; Jack Kimeno and J. Sjostrom, ranch workers and Carl Oakford, Long Beach stock dealer who told of the condition of the animals which he noticed when on a buying job at the plant.

CHILDREN START BLAZE CAUSING DAMAGE OF $860

Children playing with gasoline in the garage at the home of D. A. Jones, 1602 Orange avenue, caused a fire at 2:40 o'clock yesterday afternoon which completely destroyed the garage and damaged the residence, according to fire department records.

Firemen extinguished the flames in about 45 minutes and prevented further damage to the house. There was no automobile in the garage but several articles and stored materials were murned. Total damage was estimated by fire officials at $860.

FILM EXECUTIVE IN ATTACK ON BOYCOTT

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., July 20.—(UP)—Charges by Harry Warner, motion picture executive, that Cardinal Dougherty of Philadelphia is "un-American" in his attitude toward the movies, re-echoed through Hollywood today following Warner's startling speech at a luncheon given for Postmaster General Farley on a studio set.

Warner's charges were received mostly in silence by Farley, a prominent Catholic layman, who only indirectly mentioned the situation in his speech before the group of film executives and Democrats yesterday.

"The same as every other industry, you will always, and always must, respond to public opinion," Farley said. "Only by doing that can you hope to prosper and win the approval of all our citizens."

HIGH LIGHTS OF FRAZIER-LEMKE BILL OUTLINED

J. J. Dwyer, conciliation commissioner for Orange county, today issued a statement concerning the operation of the Frazier-Lemke bill, which was adopted by the last Congress and which was designed to be of assistance to agriculturalists.

The statement follows:

"I feel that the Frazier-Lemke bill, which was passed by the last Congress for the relief of farmers, is of great interest to the ranchers of the county, and I think, as conciliation commissioner of the county, that I should call to their attention the main provisions of the act, to the end that such of our ranchers as come within the purview of the act be given an opportunity to take advantage of the same. The following is a brief synopsis of the law as finally passed.

"The law provides in substance: that any farmer filing his schedule under section 75 of the bankrupt law, asking for a composition and extension of time in which to pay his debts, may, at the time of the first hearing, petition the court, that all of his property, both incumbered and unincumbered, be appraised and that his exemption be set aside to him and that he may be allowed to retain possession of a part or all of his property and pay for the same under the terms and conditions of the act.

"The referee or conciliation commissioner then issues an order, setting aside the debtor's exemptions and orders that the possession of part or all of the property shall remain in the debtor.

"Then, upon request of the debtor, with the consent of the lien-holders, the conciliation commissioner shall agree to sell to the debtor any part or all of said property upon the following terms:

"Payment of 1 per cent of the appraised value in one year from date; 21-2 per cent in two years; 2 1-2 per cent in three years; 5 per cent in four years; 5 per cent in five years, and the balance of the unpaid appraised value in six years from the date of the agreement; interest on the unpaid balance of the appraised value at the rate of 1 per cent as it accrues, and all taxes to be paid by the debtor.

"The proceeds of such payments to be paid to the secured and unsecured creditors as their interests may appear.

"Under such an agreement the debtor has the right to sell any part or all of said property, provided he pays into court the appraised value thereof, or he may give bond, approved by the referee or conciliator, that he will so do.

"If payments are not made in accordance with the agreement, the secured creditors have the right to enforce their claims in accordance with law. If the above conditions are complied with by the debtor, he may apply for his discharge.

"In the event that the creditors do not agree to a composition, the court shall stay all proceedings for a period of five years, and the debtor shall retain possession of all or part of the property, as may elect, and pay a reasonable rental therefor during the five years, first payment of rent to be made within six months of the date of the order. At the end of the five years or any time prior thereto the debtor may pay into court the appraised value of the property elected by him, and the court thereupon shall by an order turn full possession and title to the property and he may apply for his discharge."

GRIFFIN ADMITS GUILT ON COUNT OF KIDNAPING

Billie Griffin, 49, today pleaded guilty to the kidnapping and attack of a six-year-old Santa Ana girl and will face judgment in superior court next Tuesday, July 24.

Griffin entered his plea to both counts when arraigned before Judge J. O. Moncur, of Quincy, Plumas county, temporarily presiding in Judge James L. Allen's court.

The defendant had admitted taking the child to his apartment and keeping her all night. Police, who had been searching for her following her reported disappearance, found her on the street, walking toward her home, at 5 o'clock next morning.

Griffin at first denied attacking the child but later confessed.

Four other criminal defendants arraigned today before Judge Moncur all pleaded not guilty and demanded trials.

Riley Dodd, charged with contributing to the delinquency of three young boys at an oil lease in Brea canyon July 13, will be tried August 9.

Trial of Fred L. Brush, charged with non-support of his daughter, aged 7, at Anaheim, was set for August 16.

Ray Hernandez, charged with drunk driving at Fourth and Birch streets, Santa Ana, July 14, will go on trial August 8.

Pastacio Ramirez will be tried August 14 on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon, it being alleged that he attacked Manuel Tafoya with a razor July 1.

DEATH VICTIM SON OF PROMINENT MAN

Discovery was made today that the man found dead on a railroad platform in Orange Wednesday was Rex Dryden, 52, son of the late Col. J. L. Dryden, famous political leader and author of Illinois, who passed away in San Diego five years ago.

Coroner Earl Abbey is still attempting to trace friends of Dryden, since it is understood that he is the last member of his family. Abbey is also anxious to find a motive for his death, since it was determined from the autopsy yesterday from the Gillogly funeral home that he had swallowed lye in a suicide attempt. A driver's license on his person gave a clue to his identity.

According to Dr. Charles Tingley, 1428 Bush street, a childhood acquaintance of the Dryden family, the victim was a mechanic by trade and had lived in the East and Southern California.

JUDGMENT IN WHEELER TRUST SUIT FOR SON

Concluding hearing of the suit brought by Sheldon Wheeler, Irvine rancher, against his father, John L. Wheeler, the First National Bank of Santa Ana, and the San Joaquin Fruit and Investment company, involving the administration of a trust covering the property of John L. Wheeler and his former wife, Louise Wheeler, now deceased. Superior Judge Lloyd E. Griffin late yesterday decreed an accounting which left a net balance in favor of Sheldon Wheeler amounting to $5000. This was entered as a judgment against the father, J L. Wheeler.

The defense was openly elated by the decision, which denied other demands of the son, including his suit to set aside a conveyance of 20 acres by the bank, as trustee of the Wheeler property, to the elder Wheeler. It was not known today whether the son would appeal the case.

The bank's authority to execute the conveyance was upheld, as was its right to execute a mortgage upon the trust property. The trust covered a 40-acre ranch in the Irvine district, a residence in Santa Ana, certain personal effects and insurance policies, all of which was held to be community property.

The son, Sheldon, who was a beneficiary under the trust scheduled to receive a share of income from his mother's half of the trust, following her death filed suit charging that the bank had deeded the best half of the 40-acde ranch to his father, had turned over several insurance policies and permitted the withdrawal of large sums of cash from the trust. He claimed that half of the $45,000 mortgage upon the 40 acres had been paid off, thus clearing the 20 acres deeded to his father, and leaving the remaining $22,500 mortgage on the half left in trust.

It developed that the reason the 20 acres had been conveyed to the elder Wheeler was that the $45,000 mortgage was due and there was a doubt that the bank could execute a new mortgage. So 20 acres was deeded to J. L. Wheeler, and a new mortgage was placed upon that half for $22,500, which funds were used to reduce the $45,000 to $22,500 on the other half of the ranch. Each half thus was in the same situation as before, as to encumbrance.

Much of the trial was devoted to hearing evidence on the respective values of the two halves of the ranch. At the conclusion Judge Griffin allowed the son $7500 representing the value of the Santa Ana dwelling, the difference in value between the two halves of the ranch, and half the cash value of an insurance policy that was cashed at $846. An offset against this total was allowed to J. L. Wheeler, amounting to $2500, and representing half of a $5000 payment he had made upon the original mortgage. The net judgment in favor of the son was therefore $5000.

The court reserved decision for a few days upon the cross-complaint of the San Joaquin Fruit and Investment company, asking foreclosure of the mortgage upon the trust property.

Creel Committees To Meet Tonight

Campaign matters will occupy the attention of Orange county Creel-for-Governor workers tonight, when they meet at the Creel headquarters, 311 North Main street, at the call of Chairman H. C. Head. Members of the county executive and finance committees, and officers of the district Creel clubs have been invited to participate.

SPEAKER TELLS OF CONDITIONS UNDER SULTAN

Conditions in Turkey during the past 25 years were reviewed for members of the Lions club yesterday noon by the Rev. Samuel Edgar, pastor of the Reformed Presbyterian church, in a talk about Mustapha Kemal Pasha, present dictator of the Turkish empire.

The Rev. Mr. Edgar served as a missionary from 1907 to the beginning of the World war. He went through two wars and two massacres, and gained first-hand knowledge of the deplorable conditions of the country and its people under the old Sultan. In one town where he was located, with a population of 25,000 people, there were only 130 children in school.

The speaker described a massacre of Armenians in Antioch which left only one Armenian man alive, who had hidden in a well, while the women were placed in Turkish harems. He said the Armenians were subdued but never conquered.

In 1919 Rev. Edgar participated in the American Red Cross relief expedition into Palestine, led by Col. John Finley, now head of education in New York state, and told of General Allenby's victory against the Turks, whose sultan he described as a "hardened old devil."

The speaker reviewed the development of Mustapha Kemal Pasha, his humble birth, his defense of the Dardanelles aginst the British guns, his defeat of the invading Greeks and French, and his leadership of the Young Turk movement, which made him Turkish dictator and one of the world's leaders.

$100 BAIL SET ON BAD CHECK SUSPECT

Fullerton police yesterday arrested George A. Leonard, alias H. Harris, and booked him at the county jail under $100 bail on a charge of passing fictitious checks, which is a felony.

When arraigned before Judge Halsey I. Spence in Fullerton justice court today, where a preliminary hearings was set for July 26 at 9:30 a. m., the name of Harris was read on the complaint. The arrested man declared his name was not Harris, but Leonard.

According to complaint, Harris, or Leonard, issued a check for $12.50 signed by Allen Mattson, on a Los Angeles bank. An investigation showed no depositor of that name, at the bank, it was said. He passed the check at the Robinson Market July 7, it was alleged.

YORBA LINDA BOND ISSUE IS DEFEATED

By a majority of 42 votes, electors in the Yorba Linda grammar school district yesterday turned thumbs down on a bond issue of $12,000 for the construction of an auditorium on the Yorba Linda school.

Out of a total of 523 voters, but 197 voted, 85 casting a "yes" vote and 127 voting "no." The school board had submitted the proposal to construct the auditorium to the voters. The auditorium would have cost $18,000, of which amount the school board has $6000 on hand.

SPEAKER URGES ADOPTION OF TOWNSEND PLAN

The working out of an adequate old age pension plan, which will provide the necessities and comforts for ten million people over 60 years of age and provide employment vacancies for those of working age, is the most important piece of legislation of the New Deal to be taken up by congress in January, according to John K. Tibbets, San Bernardino publisher, who addressed a Democratic rally at Woodman hall last night.

There are 27 proposed pension plans under consideration, the speaker said, and the Townsend plan is the most logical in providing intelligent distribution of wealth.

Paying tribute to the leadership of President Roosevelt and the humanitarian Democratic program which places the rights of people above the rights of property, Tibbets urged the necessity of sending Democratic congressmen to Washington who are actuated by the same high motives of the President and who will aid constructively in carrying out the Roosevelt program.

Such a man, he said, is James L. Davis, of Santa Ana, whom he described as honest, morally clean, a thinker, a law student, one who knows human nature and the needs of the people. "Roosevelt needs Davis in congress to help carry out his program for the welfare and happiness of the American people," Tibbets said.

Last night's rally was held under auspices of the Santa Ana Davis-for-Congress committee, with Carl M. Heim, committee chairman, presiding. Heim said the election of President Roosevelt was providential and it is just as important that the right men be selected for congress, because the "Roosevelt program must go on." He said Davis is the only Democratic candidate who can be elected to congress from this district, and that he is actuated by the same motives and principles which actuate the president.

Chairman Nichols of the Townsend old age pension plan in Orange county said there are now 34,700 signatures in Orange county to the pension petitions, and that Davis meets every requirement of those who want a strong pension supporter at Washington.

Short talks were made by Joe Peterson and H. F. Kenny, candidates for the Democratic nomination for assembly for the southern district of Orange county, and Stephen F. Gallagher, attorney of Anaheim, who lauded the Democratic program and pointed to the necessity of electing men to all legislative offices who support the Roosevelt policies and ideals.

Dr. Buchanan to Be Speaker For Sinclair Meeting

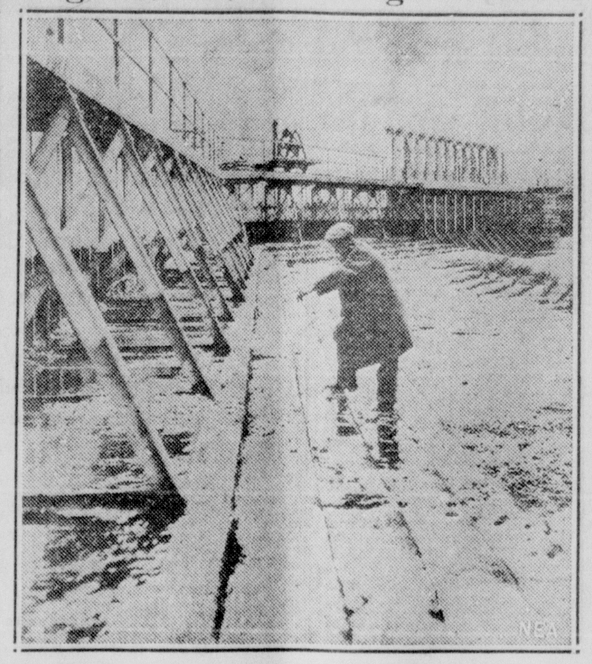

"Franklin Delano Roosevelt and Upton Sinclair, the men and their programs," will be the title of an address by Dr. David Buchanan of San Diego, at the Sinclair for Governor headquarters, 425 North Sycamore street, at 8 o'clock tonight, according to announcement from Harry S. Gerhart, campaign manager for Orange county.

Dr. Buchanan has been speaking at a number of meetings throughout Orange county this week as part of a tour through the state. Last night he spoke at Fullerton on "Your Economic Place in the Sun." Dr. Buchanan claims every man is entitled to an equal democratic opportunity in economics as well as in government, and unless the food-shelter-clothing problem is solved for all, we have no right to boast of our vaunted American superiority, Christianity and civilization.

According to Gerhart, Dr. Buchanan's experience on the lecture platform and as a traveller has qualified him as a powerful speaker and a tremendously interesting lecturer.

If you don't think that England, like America, has suffered severely from the drought, this picture should convince you! While in normal times tons of water gush over the Teddington Weir, here's how the big dam appeared after 26 days without rain—with narp a trickle in sight.

CHURCH HONORS DR. WARMER AT RECEPTION

The congregation of the First Methodist church tendered an enthusiastic reception to their pastor, Dr. George A. Warmer, and his family last evening in recognition of his return to Santa Ana for the eighth successive year. The attendance was estimated as the largest at any of the numerous receptions that have been held from year to year.

The event was under the joint direction of the Woman's Aid, the Dorcas society and the official board of the church. The hall was profusely decorated for the occasion. Miss Ethel Coffman introduced the various items of the program.

O. H. Barr spoke of the work of the pulpit committee and the "Open Season" on preachers, in which he outlined the difficulties of retaining the services of a man like Dr. Warmer when there are so many urgent calls for leadership elsewhere. The last conference has been particularly critical, he said, in that for a time it appeared that Dr. Warmer would be moved from Santa Ana in spite of the protests of the committee and the congregation.

Charles Warmer spoke on "Wheels—Actual or Prospective—for the Parsonage Household." He told in an interesting and humorous way, of the sensations attendant upon the uncertainties of pastoral tenure, and the thrills of moving and saying goodbye to associations that have been developed.

The program opened with an instrumental trio, Esther Vogt, piano, Ann Mae Archer, 'cello, and Robert Forcey, violin. Marquis Hare sang a solo, with Esther Vogt as accompanist. Jeanette Lutes gave a reading. Herbert F. Kenny sang a toast to Dr. Warmer that had been specially composed for the occasion by W. A. Taylor, with Eva Ramsey as accompanist.

Dr. Warmer replied with an expression of appreciation of the kindness and fellowship of the occasion, and his pleasure in being returned for another year. He quoted statistics to show the growth of the church during the past seven years, and directed the congregation toward the work of the coming year with its responsibilities and challenges. Mrs Warmer spoke a few words of appreciation. A social hour was spent and light refreshments served.

Early tradition in many different lands declares that the human race sprang from the roots of the ash tree.

SIX BOOKED FOR INTOXICATION; TWO MOTORISTS

Six men were booked at the county jail last night and yesterday on liquor law violations, including two for drunken driving, one for drunkenness on the highway and three for intoxication.

Joe Rivera, 32, 159 North Cypress avenue, Orange, was brought to the jail at 8:30 o'clock last night on a drunk driving charge by W. E. Hausel, special deputy sheriff. According to police reports, Hausel said that Rivera wrecked his car at Rio Vista and East North street near Anaheim and had been seen driving in a drunken condition just prior to the wreck by Arnold Stickle, living near Anaheim.

John Torres, 29, 2304 West Fifth street, was booked to serve a 125-day sentence for drunken driving and Charles Rodriguez, 23, 2337 South Olive street, was committed for 12 1-2 days for drunkenness by Anaheim police.

W. F. Gilliland, 36, proprietor of Tex's Home cafe in Sunset Beach, was arrested for drunkenness on the highway and booked at the jail at 3 a. m. today by Deputy Sheriffs James Musick and G. F. McKelvey. It was reported by officers that Gilliland had been in a fight before his arrest.

Chief Gus Barnes of Placentia booked two Mexicans for drunkenness, Jesus Escobar, 42, and Frank Romerez, 42, both of Placentia.

Former S. A. Man Killed In Texas

Word was received today of the death Monday, July 2, of Frank Thornhill, former Santa Ana man, in Beeville, Texas.

Mr. Thornhill was a former resident of Snta Ana and was well known here. He removed to Texas several years ago to work in the oil fields. According to the word received here death was due to concussion of the brain received in an oil field accident.

Among other survivors is a brother, Orb Thornhill, who is residing at Washington and Bristol streets, Santa Ana.

Interment will be made in Sedan, Texas.

At one time, paper wheels were used on railroad cars. They were invented by Richard Allen, in 1869, and were first tested on the Central Vermont railroad. They were made of many sheets of paper, coated with flour paste, and compressed under enormous pressure.

London has so far escaped earthquake shocks because it rests on a bed of soft clay, according to beliefs.

COUNTY LABOR HEADQUARTERS TO BE IN S. A.

Removal of headquarters of the Orange County Central Labor Council from Anaheim to Santa Ana, was announced today, following a meeting of the council at Anaheim last night at which the change was decided upon.

The larger membership in the various locals in this district and the possibility of increased membership in the rapidly developing coastal area adjacent to Santa Ana were given as among the reasons for the action.

The county meetings will hereafter be held on the first and third Thursday evening's of each month at the Labor Temple, 415 West Fourth street, Santa Ana.

Possibility of reviving the Building Trades Council was reported last night by R. C. Ewing, who said there is a growing sentiment in this direction, and he has hopes a re-organization may be effected by the first of the year.

Three members, President Auperle of the Central Labor Council, Organizer Stone, and President Conkey of the Anaheim-Fullerton Typographical union, were endorsed for appointment to the SERA committee, one to be selected.

'HOW KILLERS BEAT THE LAW' BY CAPT. DON WILKIE

Former U. S. Secret Service Operative —and World Authority on Law Enforcement and Crime

America is at war! Gangster chieftains have erected a bandit empire within the portals of our country. Their fortifications to date have been invulnerable to attack. That is because of their subtle planning their adept tactical maneuvers. America is torn within by a civil strife that has been so cunningly initiated and maintained that, unknowingly, eighty-five out of every one hundred men, women and children in the Land of Liberty are today paying tribute to the enemy.

No isolated examples of the type of warfare waged portrays in all of its phases the secret methods of the enemy as does the true story of Freddie Kildane—gangster killer.

It all happened back in the days before I'd met him. He was blowing safes then for a living. And no better yeggman lived. He was huddled before the safe in a shade factory, on the West Side, in Chicago. His flashlight lay on the floor by his knees; its white circle of light on the steel door before him. He had packed his explosive around the knob of the door—and sealed it with soap. Nothing left to do but cover the safe with blankets to deaden the sound of the explosion. At that instant he heard the sound of a step behind him. He straightened and threw his flash into the darkness before him. At the same instant the deadly dwarf gun came from his pocket. He was staring into the startled eyes of the night watchman. An outstretched hand held a gun, and Freddie claims he saw the trigger finger tautening. But his own roared first. The watchman sank slowly to the floor, surprise and pain written on his face. But the hate of the predatory criminal was roused in the heart of a killer. Eight times the gun roared in quick succession. Each time one of those heavy leaden slugs tore its way into the body of the watchman as the murderer's steady aim followed the slumping figure down to the floor. Freddie fled. A passerby had heard the firing and stepped aside, into a dark doorway, just as Kildane flashed past him. The police came but the man was dead. Fingerprint experts sought in vain for telltale marks. Kildane wore gloves. And with presence of mind, he had taken his tools with him. To police, untrained in the highly scientific methods of crime detection, such as are made a profession abroad, there was but one clue—the coldly calculating series of nine shots, when one, or at most two, would have been enough. The Coroner stated every slug had crashed in a spot in the dead man's chest no larger than a silver dollar. Only one man killed like that. Such was the whisper that spread through gangland. And through stool pigeons and paid informants, the police got the tip. Freddie Kildane was missng about his old haunts. He had melted into the netherworld of crime. But the chance witness outside the building came forward. He had seen a man run from the place, he said carrying a small satchel that rattled. And he remembered his cap. It was an odd shade of green, he was sure. Yes, he would know it again if he saw it. Time passed—and the careful watch kept on Freddie's wife paid dividends. He was apprehended as he left her home—wearing a cap, but it was dark blue. No matter for such petty detail. He was tried, found guilty and sentenced to die in the electric chair.

But Freddie Kildane was no amateur. He was wise to the way of things. He was a member of an organized gang whose leader sat high in councils of the legitimate mighty in Chicago and directed their crimes through a combat leader. And Freddie had been a faithful lieutenant, killing, hi-jacking, voting as told. He knew a great deal. So the word went out. His friends got busy. A huge defense fund was raised. Respectable criminal lawyers, prominent members of the Bar association were approached. The man was a citizen. He had his rights under the Constitution. Their fee was high, but was promptly paid. Freddie must be saved. So the organized gang spread throughout the length and breadth of bailiwicks their leader controlled on election day. Coercion, threat, intimidation and blackmail—with now and then a nasty beating—quickly filled the coffers of war. So the high-priced, high-standing legal counsel accepted the defense. And word went out by grapevine that the big boss, hidden under cover of respectability far behind the ramparts of political power, was pleased. The eminent counsel unlimbered their big guns. But before they had even functioned, when the subtle power of their mere identity became known, those who were crime-wise in Chicago knew the answer. The defendant would beat the charge. It was a sure thing. Oh yes, it would take time. Because the regular legal procedure must be followed. Then came the roar of the criminal lawyer's big guns.

A motion for a new trial was immediately filed, stressing a dozen strong technical reasons for a reversal of the sentence of death. Weeks passed and the motion for a new trial was denied. But they still had the Supreme Court for appeals. So the appeal was dictated. There had been an error of form in impanelling the jury that convicted Freddie Kildane. A certain word in the indictment was wrong. The trial judge had erred in allowing a witness to answer a question. He had erred again in refusing to allow the witness to answer a question. The record of evidence was spotted with these glaring errors by the list of exceptions defense counsel had taken. Besides this, they claimed the Judge had not maintained an impartial attitude during the trial. And the District Attorney had spoken a word that was forbidden! If any of these claims were found correct, they argued, a new trial should be granted. So the Supreme Court took the appeal. And defense counsel sensed that august body was already deeply impressed by the fact that Freddie Kildane had actually worn a dark blue cap the night of the murder, while the star witness for the prosecution had sworn the fleeing killer wore one that was dark green!

Such were the activities within the law—all in order. But deep down in the burrows of gangland sinister plans had been made. The story of that star witness was damning. Something had to be done. Then one day the witness died accidentally! It seems he fell from a crowded "L" station platform before the oncoming wheels of a through express. He was ground to death under the wheels. They picked up the pieces, and officers carried him to the morgue in a gunnysack. So much for the star witness, but how about the others?

The new trial was won before it had been granted. For Freddie's friends under the lash of the Boss, had been doing nice work in the meantime. No one had seen how the star witness was maneuvered close to the platform edge. In the crowd no eyes had witnessed the neat little push that sent the man clawing through the air, under the mutilating wheels. The ways of the master of accidents were too subtle for human eyes. The parade to the "hot-chair" was rapidly disintegrating! Intimidation of witnesses had been persistent, but a harried Prosecutor was unable to prove it, in view of the rules of evidence and court procedure. One or two had left the State—sure in their hearts that the cold, deadly voice on the phone meant sure death had they stayed. Still others had read of the case—and for the sake of safety for the wife and children had changed their minds about important details.

Then the Supreme Court granted the new trial—as perhaps it found it requisite upon itself to do—in view of the subtle twist appealing attorneys had given those technicalities of the Law's interpretation, first invented for the protection of the innocent. The witnesses were called. But they were either missing or had changed their minds. All in all, it appeared there was insufficient evidence. So the tricks of the trade had served their purpose. Attorneys for the defense vociferously and with much show of righteousness demanded a verdict of acquittal—in view of the absence of the "least scintilla of relevant evidence." The Prosecuting Attorney was forced to agree because, so far as fact went, there were no witnesses to present! So there was nothing for the Judge to do but grant it!

So the Judge told the Jury and the Jury told Freddie he was free to go. And Freddie was free—to kill another watchman.

That was murder, completely and callously done. But it was a killing performed in a protective sense while the murderer was engaged in another type of felony. Indirectly by its meaning, it excoriates the system in vogue today as endorsed and maintained by the public in its detection and prosecution and punishment of crime. Let us look further behind the scenes. First, it may be best to raise the curtain not upon such murders as this, but upon murder as it has become an art in America.

Murderers shot down close to ten thousand men, women and children in the United States in 1928. Murderers assassinated another two thousand the same year by other methods than the gun. It will be next to impossible to avoid the murder of another twelve thousand this year—or more! And next year. These twelve thousand murders were sixteen times as many as in England and Wales combined, pro rata the population. With five million people living in Scotland, there were only eleven murders in one year, while in Massachusetts, with twenty per cent less inhabitants, ten times as many murders. In Japan in one year there were four hundred sixty-one murders with fifty-eight million population. In the United States with twice the population, there were thirty times as many murders. And Japan and England and Germany and Spain; in fact, the whole civilized world stands ready to swear under oath that life is held cheaply in America, cheaper than anywhere else in the world. This disregard for the value of human life runs proportionately parallel with the growing disdain for any and all law.

Let us go in deeper. The average age of each of the known murderers was between twenty-seven and twenty-eight for the youngest, and the older, thirty-seven. The American Insurance Expectancy tables show twenty-five additional years to be the normal expectancy of this age. Which means this average murderer would live twenty-five years beyond the date of the murder. Assume that eighty-five hundred of the twelve thousand murdered came to their death by the gun, instead of the nine or ten thousand shown. In twenty years there would have occurred approximately one hundred seventy thousand deaths from murder. And our expectancy tables prove that the oldest of the murderers of this number should still be alive. By this process we can conservatively conclude that we would have one hundred twenty thousand red-handed murderers free on our streets today. Deductions have been made for the inroad of death among them, the penalties paid by killers in death and prison, insanity and disappearance. This is a conservative figure—one hundred twenty thousand guilty men and women who have each shot down someone in cold blood—roaming the country freely today—out of the crimes of the last twenty years.

This condition appears a more personal threat if it is remembered that so many potential two-time killers cannot live and move about among us without bringing us face to face with the threat they represent. The taxi driver who brings you home, the waiter who serves you, the conductor who takes your fare, milkman, janitor; any of these. It means that many, many times monthly most of us have touched shoulders, perhaps unmeaningly crossed the path of these deadly killers. Your scoffer may say: "But there are one hundred and forty millions in America—that makes a mere handful of one hundred twenty thousand." But does it? Let us compare. In 1920 there were one hundred twenty-two thousand lawyers and judges and there were one hundred twenty thousand men and women killers! More murders in America than normal school pupils; almost as many killers as clergymen; four red-handed, cold-blooded murderers in America to every five doctors or surgeons! More murderers than there are organized police, and fully twice as many killers as peace officers of the Federal Government!

The United States of America has no near competitor in the shameful record of murder. Italy has 4.5 murders annually per 100,000 population. We have more than 13 dead annually by murder for each 100,000 people! Here are some other comparative figures: England, whose poor law we took over in its entirety, its good in some phases, has less than .6 per 100,000. And that is the bottom rate. It has continually decreased in England. It has continually increased in this country.

Dr. F. L. Hoffman, a statistician of note, remarks:

"The story revealed by statistics of homicidal deaths is an amazing and deplorable evidence of our drift into a nation-wide violence and contempt for the sanctity of human life. Our record is not approached in this respect by the corresponding record of any great nation of the earth, properly called civilized."

Again, in the Province of Ontario, among a population of a little more than 3,000,000, murders numbered 49, representing a rate of 1.9 which compares with a rate of 2.5 for Massachusetts and 8.4 for the United States Registration area back so far as 1922. In Australia, with a population estimated at about 5,500,000, there were 92 murders, or at a rate of 1.6 per 100,000 against a rate than of 8.4 for this land of the free and the home of the brave. It begins to appear it is well we are brave. But we are dormant—docile, long suffering. In other words, for every murder on a per capita basis in Australia we marked up five.

The report of the Commissioner of Police for the metropolis of London speaks volumes:

"There were seventeen cases of alleged murder of persons over one year of age, ten less than in the preceding year. In one of these cases it was subsequently established that death was due to natural causes. In eight cases the murderer committed suicide. (Author's parenthesis: Mark that. So sure is justice—so unobstructed—so certain is death.) Seven persons were apprehended and charged with murder and of these one was charged with murder committed the preceding year. And one was responsible for three cases. Five of the persons arrested, including the one responsible for three murders, were found to be insane at the time the crimes were committed; one was convicted and sentenced to death, and one was discharged by the Magistrate. In the last case the prisoner was charged, on his own confession, with the murder of a woman with whom he had cohabited. He visited her room, and finding her apparently asleep, tried to arouse her by shaking her head. Failing to wake her, he left the house, but returned shortly and was informed she was dead. He thereupon conceived the idea he was responsible for her death and thereupon surrendered to the police but her death was found to have been due to natural causes. In one case of murder no arrest has been effected."

There you have a reasonable murder record. Why the vast difference between it and ours? A score of reasons. Prominent among them public lethargy, public disrespect for law and order. There are others, such as lack of crime detection, blinded courts, antiquated legal procedure, politics, absence of universal finger printing, and prisons that punish.

* * * I am just in receipt of the compilation of figures for the first seven months of this year. The homicide record as of August first, 1933, for the first seven months of this year discloses a startling increase. Added to the steady leaps with which the total murders in America have mounted each and every year since 1880, these figures become the more terrible. They follow:

	No. Murders Reported
January	990
February	784
March	1028
April	1164
May	852
June	686
July	820
	6324

A total of 6,324 murders for 214 days in this country! Chicago alone reports the following:

January	35
February	26
March	42
April	46
May	25
June	29
July	30

The figures collated by the Bureau of Census for the Department of Commerce, for 1930-31, are further enlightening.

Murder	6.7	8.1	7.6	7.7	8.	8.2	8.3	9.	9.3
Suicide	10.2	12.5	11.9	11.6	12.2	12.3	12.9	15.6	16.8

To better judge what those deceiving percentages really mean, remember that the 9.3 percentage for murder in 1931 actually means 11,160 men, women and children murdered in cold blood. The discrepancy between this figure and the approximate 12,500 who were actually slaughtered, is due to lack of reports from some states to the Census Bureau. This means a murder every forty-two minutes—in a land of liberty! The larger percentage of this red slaughter is not composed of "crimes of passion." Instead, the greater portion of them are conceived in greed; cold-blooded, planned killings of a "business type." They are the "erasures," the "rubbing out" of enemies of organized crime.

Analysis again gives the true picture. From 1920 to 1930—a mere ten years of national existence—we have witnessed a fearful growth of 50 per cent in the slaughter of citizens by the route of murder, bought and paid for.

Nor would such a cursory examination of this record give the true picture. I have purposely set down, below the murder record, the number of suicides reported. Why? Because men who have rubbed shoulders with crime; investigating officers, coroners and deputies of both Sheriffs' offices and County States' Attorneys, know that a startling percentage of all deaths reported as "suicide" are in fact murder—cold blooded cunningly planned killings that rightfully belong within the category of "perfect crimes." For by their character they defy solution. A conservative estimate, based upon the opinions of 112 such informed law enforcement officers, is that fully 10 per cent of all reported "suicides" were murder!

Based upon the reliability of that premise, the admitted and reported homicidal statistics mount to an even more shameful total. The 11,160 murders reported and admitted becomes nearer 14,000 souls! And here is an inside fact, apropos of this discussion: A very small percentage of the reported "suicides" by hanging, were suicides. By far the vast majority of them were murder; cunning, diabolically clever murder, based upon a little known medico legal fact relative to strangulation and its attendant marks. It would ill become me to furnish details. I might well be charged with the crime of accessory before the fact for thousands of "hanging murders" to follow were I to further clarify that statement.

The disregard for the value of human life displayed by this fearful murder record is America's greatest shame. There has never been anything like it in all the civilized world. It is a veritable plague of assassination that writes plain upon our national coat-of-arms. It smears it with a bar sinister that establishes us as a nation among whom there is no sacrilege to God or man—in snuffing out human life.

So much for murder and the assassins strolling our highways and byways.

What is the reason for this damning condition? It does not lie deep within the tortuous theories of biology, pathology or physiology. No such complicated reasoning is required. It is much simpler to see the truth. But it is a series of truths—rather than a single one. So many things are responsible in part for this terrible condition, that merely to list them must suffice now.

First, there is public lethargy. There is no nearly infallible method of crime detection, court prosecution or punishment that will instill fear of God and man in the hearts of the predatory criminals who roam the land. Organized criminals are responsible for such proportion of the total of murder, robbery, burglary, kidnaping and arson, together with other felonious crimes, as represent the difference between a normal amount of crime and this terrific total that staggers the world. And organized criminals neither fear detection prosecution or punishment, if, when and as detected, and convicted. Other things are at fault. There are shady bail bondsmen, crooked criminal lawyers, adequate courts of tremendous power—but most judges of the latter are elected to office by votes! Ah, there's the rub too often. Court procedure, rules of evidence, are frayed, antiquated worn out in service. They are the remnants of older days; of another time, and are no longer equal to the task of modern days. There are weak juries—even professional jurymen. There are sob-sisters, sentimentalists; sweet, but ill informed old ladies who clutter the prisons with tenderness for brutal killers; with aid for habitual criminals of every type. There is capital punishment, but it is not enforced, nor is it a statute of universal application. There is no corporal punishment. There are private detectives of the shady sort who function to subvert justice. There is no uniform penal code; no centralized National Secret Service. There is no unity of police action among the several states. There is no universal fingerprinting system. There are no border patrols. Then lastly, but far from least there is politics; rotten, filthy politics, that permit traitors in office to sell protection to organized crime. Politics have ruined our courts, prostituted justice, often contaminated parole and pardon boards and corrupted too many prison managements.

A strong statement? Yes. And easy charges to make. But if you will go further with me into the pestiferous swamps that bar the way of justice through the jungle of crime, we will see proofs of every statement; proofs read out of the facts, unsullied by conclusion or personal opinion. And then together, we may foresee, build and offer a remedy that may keep our Country worthy of its heritage.

PLYMOUTH OFFICIAL ATTENDS MEETINGS

The business world today offers unlimited opportunities for the trained, intelligent "hard-worker," with more chances for advancement than at any other time in history, H. G. Moock, general sales manager of the Plymouth Motor Corporation, declared today.

Moock is in Los Angeles for meetings with members of the Plymouth Salesmen's league to give them first-hand information of Plymouth's rapid progress this year. He also is meeting with dealers, discussing additional factory plans for advertising and merchandising the new Plymouth Special Six announced recently.

PREVIEW, MAYNARD AT STATE TONIGHT

An added attraction at Walker's State theater tonight is a studio preview which is to be screened at 8:45 o'clock, Manager Vic Walker announced today. It is a Monogram comedy-action film, he said.

The regular bill which opens a two day run, features Ken Maynard in "Gun Justice", a story replete with fast action and good entertainment, in which Maynard finds himself pitted against two gangs of plains hoodlums to protect the legacy left him and Cecilia Parker by his uncle who was murdered.

Other films on the program include a chapter of "The Perils of Pauline"; a news reel; "Mickey's Steeplechase" a Mouse cartoon; and a comedy, "Blue Blackbirds."

'All Rigged Up' for Stratosphere

Delayed again by unfavorable weather conditions, the personnel of the Kepner-Stevens stratosphere flight had a chance to make further alterations and tests on the metal gondola, shown above outside its "hangar" for inspection of its rigging and equipment.

OPERA TO BE GIVEN AT BOWL NEXT WEEK

Responding to popular demand, Richard Bonelli, Metropolitan opera baritone who added to his laurels as soloist in the Bowl last week will sing the role of Tonio in "Pagliacci" to be performed Friday night, July 27, in the Hollywood Bowl.

The opera to be performed in concert form will have the following principals in addition to Bonelli: Francia White, in the role of Nedda and Tandy MacKenzie as Canio. Richard Dennis will sing the part of Harlequin. Alberto Conti will conduct.

Leoncavallo's opera is the first of the operas to be performed in the famous amphitheater during the thirteenth season of Symphonies. Four will be given on Friday nights starting with Pagliacci and ending with Faust, the others being Cavalleria Rusticana and Carmen.

Besides the principals, a chorus of 60 Los Angeles Opera voices trained by William Tyroler, will sing in the operas.

In the third week of Bowl concerts Sir Hamilton Harty, celebrated Irish composer-conductor, will direct the orchestra of 100 musicians. Toscha Seidel, violinist, will be the soloist Thursday night, July 26.

Georgia Starke, soprano, and Alexander Akimoff, basso of the American Opera company, will be the soloists on the Saturday night popular program with Sir Hamilton conducting.

Sir Henry Wood of London concludes his two-week visit in the Bowl with the Saturday, July 21st concert. He will program Richard Strauss' Till Eulenspiegel's "Merry Pranks," a joyous symphonic work that has increased in popularity in recent years. Lester Donahue, pianist, and Mary Teitsworth, soprano, will be the soloists.

QUOTE LOW PRICE FOR STUDEBAKERS

Studebaker has greeted the midsummer automobile market with a new series of "year-ahead" models.

The new Studebakers, which may be inspected at the showrooms of Headley Motors at Second and Sycamore, bring two interesting factors into the automobile industry. The first is the introduction of vacuum power brakes to the low price field. The second is the development of teardrop design and making this ultra-modern styling available to purchasers of cars selling for less than $1000.

For a limited time only, the Headley garage is selling a Studebaker Dictator delivered in Santa Ana for less than $775. This car has a 114 inch wheelbase, six cylinders, assortment of colors in all models and gasoline economy of 19 to 21 miles per gallon.

The Aim of the 1934 College Girl is ~ Marriage

What is higher education doing for today's young women? . . . Here we have the interesting views of Barnard College's dean on such topics as careers, matrimony, and good old "flaming youth"

By Helen Welshimer

IF preparation for marriage means merely the knowledge of how to arrange a vegetable plate, sew on buttons and keep the laundry as pure as a country snow-ball, then pre-marital training has no place in the curriculum of a woman's college.

But if it means the development of a sympathetic, comprehensive understanding of the world and its problems, and the ability to travel down any conversational path that a man may suggest without asking him where he is going, then a girl who intends to marry can learn a lot at college!

Dean Virginia Gildersleeve, head of Barnard College in New York City, and a recognized leader in education, believes in the broadening viewpoint which college gives women.

"It is not the duty of a liberal arts college for women to train its students in cooking, or in the care of young children," she says. "These skills can be found at home or in technical schools. Neither is it the duty of a college to teach girls to type. Any college student who sincerely wishes to learn typing and stenography can master them in any one of her summer vacations.

"But it is especially the mission of a woman's college to fire the mind with the excitement of comprehending the world we live in, its objective facts and its people. No alert college girl today is satisfied with book-learning alone. She knows, or at least has begun to surmise, that her relation to other people will be the most difficult and most precious part of her life.

"AND she uses her college to enlarge her sympathies and understanding. This will serve her far better in marriage than would courses in cooking or in other phases of housekeeping.

"The tendency to make the knowledge of the preparation of food the prime requisite for a wife reminds me of a statement of Charlotte Perkins Gilman's which illustrates my point. She said: 'Even more important than the food on the table is the conversation around the table.'

"Anything which makes a woman into a more intelligent, interesting human being prepares her to be a wife and a mother.

"This overemphasis on the technical side of education is due to the overemphasis on the machine side of life. The spirit which wields the machinery is considerably more important than the tools themselves. People are just beginning to awaken to this fact."

Dean Gildersleeve says that because of changed economic conditions, college girls have learned not to expect as much as formerly.

"About 15 years ago employers stood around the doors of colleges and snapped up the graduates as rapidly as they came out," she says. "The whole world was at their feet. Now the girls expect little.

"They realize, though, that they are living in an enormously interesting world. They often say to me: 'It is a difficult world but an interesting one.'"

DEAN GILDERSLEEVE, who has been head of Barnard since 1911, smiled over a question about the passing of flaming youth, now so often conceded to be gone forever.

"Everyone has a special definition in his own mind for flaming youth when he speaks of it," she said. "I have seen many generations of college girls here at Barnard, and I know that the many girls who are today working part of their way through college are just as flaming in their youth, so to speak, in their eagerness for life, as the girls of a few years ago who were often self-indulgent, indifferent and irresponsible.

"These harsh qualities, or lack of qualities, were less evident on college campuses than among young people outside, but they existed to some extent even here at Barnard.

"There is less desire to be extreme on the part of college girls today. There is a swing away from so-called flaming youth. Girls are more decorous. There is no special ambition to be considered reckless.

"In fact, a graver attitude has come. The girls still play but they haven't enough money any more to play outside the college. Not so long ago young men took them to the theater. Now social life and play within the college are flourishing. It is a cheaper outlet for their playing."

All of which means that when the modern college girl marries she won't demand that her husband provide outside entertainment. She will have learned to amuse herself. And him too.

THE young man of today won't have to depend on his next-door neighbor or the men at his club for a discussion of world problems however, if he marries a college girl who is typical of the new generation, the well-known educator asserts. Her mind will never ask handicaps from her husband.

"For the last 25 years there has been a tendency for girls to discuss things which are of interest outside the college walls," remarks the dean. "After the war, they talked about international affairs and wanted an international understanding. And lately there have been so many vital legislative measures at home and so many problems to be considered that their minds have been stimulated constantly."

Any man who goes knocking at the Barnard portals, searching for a bride, may or may not find that she can time soft-boiled eggs at breakfast, or cream a homely vegetable, but he will discover that she knows politics and what is going on. Maybe she hasn't ever ironed a shirt, but she can talk intelligently when he wants to discuss the veterans' bill.

In brief, she won't bore her husband.

Barnard has a special department of government which it considers quite as important as the department of French or Latin. Courses in European and American government are offered. When a country begins a revolution, or a prince loses his throne because his bride is a commoner, the Barnard girl understands why.

There is another course called "The Practice of Politics" which requires the students taking it to work with their parties at election time.

Barnard has a pamphlet, too, which it circulates. "You and Your Government" it is called. There is a sub-title which reads: "What You as College Women Can Do About It."

GIRLS are entering the government service in definite positions. They are making good, too, Dean Gildersleeve asserts.

And yet—

Every girl, no matter how much she may know about the League of Nations or a conference at Geneva, wants to get married!

"All the girls who are in college expect to marry and have children," the chief executive of Barnard says.

But in another important respect, the 1934 college girl does not completely resemble her mother and her grandmother. She often wants and expects to continue her career after marriage, and she often has to.

"It may be necessary for a girl to continue her career after marriage in order to make marriage possible," Dean Gildersleeve, who has watched hundreds of Barnard girls marry, asserts. "Whether or not she does all depends on the financial status of her husband.

"She does not continue to work for the sake of any abstract principle or to prove that a woman can marry and still carry on. She works because she wants to, or because her husband has lost his job and she must keep hers, or the reason, maybe, that her husband's job doesn't bring in enough money to care for all the family when there are children."

If a girl has definite creative ability, that is different. Her husband may have the wealth of Croesus but she will want to paint pictures, write stories, practice scales, or do scholarly research!

THERE is a definite tendency toward teaching and medicine, the chief administrative officer of Barnard has discovered.

"Professions which develop and conserve life always appeal to women," she says. "They tend to favor medicine, social work, nursing and teaching rather than the combative professions.

"Social work is the one profession where there seem to be plenty of openings for the thoroughly trained college women. The readjustment of families and the immense responsibilities that the government has been accepting will need trained social workers. The government is obviously going to do lots of things which private organizations have done in the past."

College girls today are physically stronger than they were 25 years ago, too, Miss Gildersleeve says. She attributes this to health education—the value of spinach which they have learned to eat, sunshine which they know they must get, and the continuance of outdoor games and sports. Tennis, archery, swimming, riding, fencing, basketball—Barnard has all of them on its curriculum.

There is another respect, too, in which today's graduate of a woman's college is unlike her mother who received her diploma 25 years ago. Today she isn't aware of such a thing as the feminist movement. She takes everything, from the right to vote down, as her natural inheritance.

"Feminism in the old sense, as far as the conflict between the two sexes is concerned, is entirely gone," Dean Gildersleeve explains. "Girls now accept as a matter of fact those privileges for which older women fought."

Any man who wants a wife who thinks merely of bridge, fashions, curves, dances, and movies will never find her in the modern college girl. But if he wants a wife who has an active intellect, and even a sense of humor, a campus is the place to hunt, apparently.

Whether or not a girl understands the mechanics of keeping a house when she receives her degree, isn't as important as the way in which she reacts to domestic responsibilities. Dean Gildersleeve illustrates her point with the story of a Barnard graduate of 15 years ago whom she met in the west recently:

"She told me that she had been doing her own housework and laundry for the last three years for her husband and three children. She found that her college education was useful, for she had lots of interesting things in her mind with which to amuse herself while she worked, and she even made [illegible] poetry over the wash tub."

Because college prepared this woman to meet whatever came, Barnard and many of her sister colleges in the east arrange courses of study that lead, experience proves, to good all-round human beings. And these make the best wives and the best citizens, you may rest assured.

HEALTHY FEET TO BE SUBJECT OF BROADCAST

The first of a series of broadcasts entitled "Healthy Feet!" will be made from KREG at 7:45 tonight presenting a series of highly informative talks by Richard A. Bradford on little known but very important and interesting factors of foot-comfort, it was announced. The broadcast series will be sponsored by the Dr. A. Reed Shoe company of 318 North Sycamore, in Santa Ana.

Topics such as the many differences often found between the characteristics of one individual's feet; how foot-comfort may be practically assured; how a few minutes of properly fitting correct shoes to the individual means months and years of foot-comfort, and many other little known facts concerning the fitting of shoes will be discussed in this series of brief talks.

Dr. A. P. Browne, well known Santa Ana chiropodist, will also be heard in some of the broadcasts and will make brief but highly interesting talks on chiropody and the essentials of foot-comfort in terms that everyone can understand.

DON WILKIE TO RELATE CRIME STORY TONIGHT

Voicing a plea to take sentiment out of criminal justice, Captain Don Wilkie, former United States secret service agent and world authority on crime, will relate the true story entitled "A Woman Goes Free" on KREG tonight at 7:30 o'clock, it was announced.

The story, the fifth of a sensational series to be broadcast as a special feature, will uncover inside facts regarding the trial of a pretty young Chicago girl, who although guilty of murder in cold blood, managed to win an acquittal at the hands of a jury of sympathetic and admiring men.

The story, Captain Wilkie declares, brings to light the vital need at this time of more women on juries where the innocence or guilt of a good looking defendant is being weighed.

On Monday night at 7:30 o'clock Captain Wilkie will tell the first episode of one of the most daring counterfeiting plots ever undertaken in the history of the United States.

The "In The Crimelight" series of broadcasts by Captain Don Wilkie are being made from KREG exclusively.

"CONSULTANTS" ON KREG THIS EVENING

With "Brother Louie" and "Mama" arriving unexpectedly, "Dr. Adolph Augustus Schlizenheimer," treasurer and now secretary, president and "chief ponderer" of "The Business Consultants" is having a somewhat hectic time to keep things running smoothly!

Tonight's broadcast of the humorous serial, presented by Jud Sutherland and "Doc" Jones, will include an interesting scene in the railroad station pending the arrival of the visitors and a general mixup is predicted.

"The Business Consultants" are scheduled each Friday, on KREG exclusively, at 6:45 p. m.

Front Page Drama On Kreg Program

An unusually clever dramatization of the apparently "perfect crime" that was revealed by a simple mistake will be broadcast from KREG at 8:45 tonight under the title of "Simple Suicide," another in the series of "Front Page Dramas" scheduled each Friday at this time on the local station.

SALLY MUELLER SINGS INDIAN SONGS TONIGHT

A group of Indian songs by Thurlow Lieurance, a leading authority on Indian music among the present-day American composers, will be sung by Sally Coe Mueller, one of Southern California's favorite vocalists, during her presentation tonight on KREG at 8 o'clock, it was announced by studio officials.

The program will include "Canoe Song," "From an Indian Village," "By the Waters of the Minnetonka," "Indian Spring Bird" and "By Weeping Waters."

The composer's many years of intensive study of Indian music have brought forth many traditional songs that are priceless. These delightful selections as sung by this delightful artist will comprise a most entertaining program, it was stated.

Late News From Fullerton And Vicinity

BEACH HOME IS SCENE OF CHURCH MEET

FULLERTON, July 20.—More than 24 women of the Presbyterian church yesterday were guests of Dr. and Mrs. Graham C. Hunter at the Hunter home at Newport Beach, and had a covered dish luncheon preceding the missionary meeting that occupied the afternoon hour. Besides the women, many children attended the meeting.

Mrs. J. P. LaRue presided at the meeting. She called on Mrs. Sophia Kaylor, who reported on the relief work, and Mrs. C. F. W. Kohlenberger, who reported on the book reviews and study courses of the guild of the church.

Mrs. Elizabeth Robinson was in charge of the program and presented Mrs. J. E. Donaldson of Sunset Beach who talked on her recent trip around the world.

The next meeting will be in August at the home of Mrs. Donaldson at Sunset Beach.

Arno Art Club To Hold Meet Monday

FULLERTON, July 20. — The Arno Art club will meet with Mrs. A. W. Purdy at her home at 1011 North Harvard Monday, July 23, at 9:30 a. m. for a time of study.

THREE SPEAK AT MEETING OF SINCLAIR CLUB

FULLERTON, July 20.—Three speakers last night co-operated in presenting the Upton Sinclair program for governor at a reorganization meeting of the Fullerton club at Sinclair headquarters on East Commonwealth avenue. They were Dr. David Buchanan, formerly pastor of the San Diego Presbyterian church; C. R. Allen of Fullerton, Democratic candidate for assemblyman from the 75th district, and T. E. Pickerill of Santa Ana.

Harry Gerhart took over the work of organizing the 75th district, on resignation of Darrel McGavren, and John C. Herr of Fullerton was elected chairman of the district work, to handle affairs under Gerhart.

Dr. Buchanan, featured speaker, brought a message on "Your Economic Place in the Sun," urging that political parties should simply be minority and majority groups, and warning that "any man facing these conditions of extreme poverty, who would play party politics is capable of committing any crime."

He outlined three primary causes for the depression, first, private ownership of the mass production machine; production for profit rather than use, and a falacious principle of the medium of exchange of money.

"Want in the midst of a democracy should cover with shame all people of that democracy, and President Roosevelt felt that, for his first activity in being inducted in office was an effort to relieve distress," the speaker declared, as he told of the likenesses of the program of Sinclair and that already employed by the president.

Other points of the program of Sinclair are graded taxation; pension for the aged, the widows and underprivileged. On this point the speaker declared that "Only because we have become dehumanized from living under an inhuman system can we have suffered such neglect of the aged and the out of work groups."

The "End Poverty In California" program is designed to place the economic system in line with the other laws of the universe, and to place it in the sun," he declared.

Allen brought to his hearers various articles from the constitution of California, outlining people's rights under the constitution; T. E. Pickerill brought a short message on the need of cooperating for the Sinclair program, and said that in Europe Upton Sinclair is recognized as the greatest American author.

AMARANTH CLUB IN DINNER AND PARTY

FULLERTON, July 20.—Mrs. Charles Grafton last night opened her home to members of Amaranth Club Royal when she entertained 22 members at 320 Adams street at a covered dish dinner and card party, the monthly social gathering of the lodge.

Mr. and Mrs. Ely Biggs won prizes at bridge, as did Miss Hazel Smalley. Mrs. Florence Davis of Brea won the Hearts prize.

Mrs. Hazel Smalley presided at the short business hour, where arrangements were made to hold the next party with Mrs. William Brooks of Brea, August 16. It will be a party where all guests will attend dressed as children. A covered dish dinner will precede the evening of games and the business meeting.

Auxiliary Club In Sewing Meet

TUSTIN, July 20.—Considerable sewing for welfare work was accomplished by members of the Sewing club of the Tustin American Legion auxiliary Wednesday when they met at the home of Mrs. Pauline Cleary, 1043 West Chestnut street, Santa Ana. A covered-dish luncheon was shared at noon at prettily appointed tables.

Those present, other than the hostess, Mrs. Cleary, and her mother, Mrs. Linna Hanson, were Mrs. Laura Marks, Mrs. Charles Cleary, Mrs. Chester Curl, Mrs. Esther Johnson, Mrs. Dwight Hayden, Mrs. Mary Matthews, Mrs. Mollie Smith, Mrs. Vera Parks, Mrs. Helen Matthews, and Mrs. Florence Smith, of Anaheim.

INSTALLATION OF OFFICERS OF GRACE PARLOR, NATIVE DAUGHTERS. DRAWS CROWD

FULLERTON, July 20.—Grace Parlor, Native Daughters of the Golden West, which serves Northern Orange county, last night opened its eighth year of activity when Mrs. Matilda Enfield of Placentia was installed as president at ceremonies performed at Placentia Round Table clubhouse.

Installed with Mrs. Enfield were Mrs. Erna Watts, past president; Mrs. Rebecca Hasson, vice president; Mrs. Kate Hill, second vice president; Mrs. Alice Davis, third vice president; Miss Grace Hirigoyen, marshal; Mrs. Mary Rothaermel, of Whittier, recording secretary; Mrs. Dora Trendle, financial secretary; Mrs. Nellie Cline, treasurer; Mrs. Lena Wagner, Mrs. Lydia Oswell and Mrs. Ida Matter, trustees; Miss Johanna Lemke, inside sentinel; Miss Marie Jacobsen, outside sentinel, and Mrs. Marie Haiber, organist.

Mrs. Erna Watts, ways and means chairman, with Mrs. Kate Hill, Mrs. Hasson, Mrs. Trendle, Mrs. Edna Gender and Mrs. Enfield serving with her; history, and landmarks, Mrs. Alice Davis, chairman, Mrs. Rothermael, Mrs. Lena Aspden and Mrs. Lucanna McFadden; homeless children work, Mrs. Helen Anderson, chairman, Mrs. Christine McFarland and Mrs. Rena Johnson.

Welfare and Americanization, Mrs. Nellie Cline, chairman, Mrs. Ella Wallop and Mrs. Edith Phillips; inter-parlor, Mrs. Lena Wagner, chairman, and Mrs. Matilda Oswald; veteran welfare, Mrs. Marie Haiber and Mrs. Christine Dunham; publicity, Miss Marie Jacobsen, Mrs. Mamie Hirigoyen and Mrs. Lena Aspden; flower and visiting, Mrs. Kate Hill, chairman, Mrs. Mae Lemke, Mary Mason and Mrs. Sarah Donald.

The parlor served dainty refreshments at the close of the meeting. Announcement was made that the next meeting will be a public card party at the Round Table club August 2.

W. R. C. PICNIC AT IRVINE PARK

FULLERTON, July 20.—Members of the Woman's Relief corps of Fullerton yesterday met in regular session in the afternoon, to consummate business, and at 6:30 p. m. gathered with the social group of the corps, the Get-Together club, at Irvine park, for a party and steak bake.

Mrs. Mabel E. Harrington was accepted as a transfer member from Fullerton, and Mrs. Lavina Muse was installed as Junior vice president, supplanting Mrs. Gladys Taylor, and Mrs. Effie Colburn as press correspondent at the meeting.

M'LAUCHLAN CASE CONTINUED TWICE

PLACENTIA, July 20.—The case of the people against Charles McLauchlan of Anaheim, who was arrested Monday by Chief of Police Gus Barnes for distributing handbills and selling literature, part of which was said to be Communistic, without a city license, was continued twice yesterday on motion of T. L. McFadden, city attorney for Fullerton, prosecution attorney.

The final date set for the jury trial is Tuesday, July 24, at 9:30 a. m., in the city police court in Placentia.

ATTEND MEETING

FULLERTON, July 20. — Those from Fullerton Methodist church who last night attended the alliance cabinet meeting of Methodist church young people at Santa Ana First church were Loraine Raupe, Dorothy Little and Wanlyn Willhite.

METHODIST CHURCH GROUP AT NEWPORT

FULLERTON, July 20.—Forty-five young people of the High school department of the Fullerton Methodist church Sunday school yesterday enjoyed a day at Newport Beach, where they swam, had kayak races, and at night built a fire on the beach and roasted wieners for supper. They were accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Guy Campbell, Mrs. C. R. Vanderburg, Mrs. Ciara Leidtke, Mrs. C. Pyatt.

Fishermen Return From Trip to Lake

FULLERTON, July 20.—Three Fullerton fishing enthusiasts have returned from a most successful fishing trip to lower Lake Otie, near San Diego.

Henry Emms, Edward Kimkay and S. O. Lingo, all of Fullerton, took the trip to the lake, returning the same day. Emms made the largest catches. One of the strings of bass weighed 80 pounds, it was reported.

PLAN TO CUT DOWN NEWPORT C. C. BUDGET

NEWPORT BEACH, July 20.—Confronted with the necessity of economizing for the remainder of the year, chamber of commerce heads, in an executive meeting here last night, devoted the majority of the evening to a discussion of plans to cut down on the annual budget. It was disclosed by the treasurer's report that there was $955 in the treasury for the year, exclusive of the Tournament of Lights expenses, and a budget calling for $5500 expenditures. A committee will be appointed by the president to consider ways and means of reducing the budget.

The plan of L. A. Cox, of the Fullerton High school, for a program of playground activity for Newport Beach met with the unqualified approval of the group. The plan, as proposed by Cox, is self-financing, being financed by local merchants in return for advertising privileges. It was strongly recommended by Walter Spicer, Newport Beach lumberman, and president-elect of the Newport Harbor Service club.

The president ordered a special committee to make further investigations necessary, and to cooperate with Cox and Ralph K. Reed of the local high school in working out details of the plan. Roughly, the proposed program calls for the organization of Newport Beach youngsters into classes to learn swimming, water activities and the various sports, to be supplemented by a program of water carnivals similar to those held recently on Balboa Island, featuring the activities of the younger folk. The suggestion of J. M. Clarke, of the Balboa school of swimming and diving, for a swimming meet to be held in August, was referred to the special committee, as yet not appointed. The committee, it was said, will comprise members of the Boy Scouts, Sea Scouts, and high school.

The question of continuing the broadcast of fishing reports over station KREG in Santa Ana resulted in a decision to carry on until the end of the year and to invite the support of those business men interested in fishing activities, to assist in the financing of the program. Questions of advertising expense were laid over for another meeting pending further study of the budget and the possibility of additional city funds for this purpose.

Everett Hoagland and Robert Braun of KHJ, the Don Lee station, presented a plan for putting Newport Harbor on the Columbia network for the month of August. Suggestions for the division of the cost, and offers of financial cooperation were outlined and a special committee, consisting of George A. Rogers, J. A. Beek and W. L. Jordan, was appointed to discuss the matter with some of the business men of the community.

Former Residents Of Brea Are Back

BREA, July 20.—Mrs. George White and two daughters, Phyllis and Loraine, former long time residents of Brea, are here from their home in Trona and are living in the home of Mrs. Nondys Bibb, 100 North Orange. Mr. White is remaining in Trona where he is an engineer in salt mines but Mrs. White and the children will spend the summer here, being at Newport Beach a part of the time.

Costa Mesans Swing To Bourbon Party

COSTA MESA, July 20.—Out of 300 persons that have been registered to vote by him within the past few weeks Lloyd Willcutt, deputy county clerk, of Costa Mesa, stated today that less than sever per cent of those registering have registered as Republicans. All but two of the larger number registered as Democrats, he stated. Affidavits were signed by over 100 persons during the same period, changing their political affiliations from Republican to Democrat, he said, and one changed from Democrat to Republican.

SOCIAL EVENT HELD AT GARDEN GROVE

GARDEN GROVE, July 20.— A delightful evening was spent by members of the Business and Professional Women's Social club and friends at the home of Mrs. Clara Bruederle on North Euclid avenue, Wednesday evening, with Mesdames Alice Smith and Helen Engen as co-hostesses. Guests present included Miss Justine Whitney, county recorder, of Santa Ana; Mrs. Stella Diggins of Hollywood, Miss June Lindquist, San Pedro; Mrs. Earl Sheldon, Pasadena; Mrs. Ethel Phillips and Miss Clara Carmichael, Garden Grove.

At the business session, presided over by the president, Mrs. Hilda Reafsnyder, Miss Myrtle Ziegler was voted into membership by the club.

Six tables for bridge were arranged with clever score cards designed by Mrs. Alice Smith. At the conclusion of the games, first prize was awarded Miss Justine Whitney ;second price Mrs. Niota Sparks; and third prize, Mrs. Mabel Wilkinson. Delectable refreshments were served at tables centered with candles, and dainty bowls of flowers and maidenhair fern.

Present besides the hostesses and guests were: Mesdames Florence Barnes, Blanche Wisner, Clara Busker, Hilda Reafsnyder, Mildred Johnson, Irene Reafsnyder, Niota Sparks, Agnes McCullough, Mabel Wilkinson, Genevieve Crosby and Zelma Van der Linde; and the Misses Faire Virgin, Frances Dungan, Helen Knox, Mabel Head, Marcia Carmichael and Ann Ashley.

Social Club In Picnic At Park

MIDWAY CITY, July 20. — "Tumble Weed" club members enjoyed a hay ride to Irvine park Thursday evening, making the trip in the Robert Hazard truck, Mr. and Mrs. Hazard chaperoning the group on their picnic which was featured by a supper early in the evening.

The group met Wednesday evening for their weekly business and social gathering at the home of the Misses Mary and Marie Arnett and plans for the picnic were completed at that time.

The same group of young people attended both functions and were Mary and Marie Arnett, Frances and Melvin Heil, Genevive Salisbury, Emmaetta and Lois Hart, Bill Brumpton, Carl Warner, Clarence and Alfred Wasser, David Robertson, Gordon McAllister, Sally Tayes, Chick Hostettler, Bob Stroud, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hazard.

RECORD SET IN LAGUNA BEACH REGISTRATION

LAGUNA BEACH, July 20.—Indicative of an active interest in the business of government is the heavy registration of voters completed here yesterday, inquires revealed. According to figues collected at the chamber of commerce office, the total registration for the Laguna Beach districts totaled Wednesday night 1388, to which aggregate is to be added well over 100 yesterday, which would bring up the total to more than 1500, said to be the highest on record.

Registration yesterday was unusually heavy at the chamber of commerce office where Deputy Registrar Daisy Aitken added more than 80 names to the voting registrar. Men and women from outlying districts, persons who had remained indifferent to suffrage, yesterday for the first time established their right to vote. Another outstanding feature of registration in the past few days was the large number of young people, many of them having recently attained voting age, who registered.

Figures compiled for the past two days at the chamber of commerce registration place showed 61 Republicans, 52 Democrats, five non-partisan, and one single voter who declined to state his affiliation. The slight lead of the Republican party shown in these figures was lost, however, it was explained, by not less than 17 transfers from the Republican ranks to the Democratic forces Inquiries at other registration places disclosed an appreciable number of like transfers yesterday.

FETE MRS. REED ON HER BIRTHDAY

TUSTIN, July 20.—The birthday anniversary of Mrs. Eunice Reed, of Orange, was pleasantly observed Wednesday when her mother and sister, Mrs. Martha E. Ritchey and Miss Martha E. Ritchey, entertained a group of close friends and neighbors at their home on McFadden street. Baskets of roses and dahlias decorated the living room.

A delicious picnic luncheon was enjoyed at 1 o'clock under a large spreading mulberry tree near the home. A social afternoon followed, during which crochet was played.

Those sharing the happy occasion with the co-hostesses, Mrs. Ritchey and daughter, Miss Ritchey, and the honor guest, Mrs. Reed, were Mrs. Reed's daughter and grandson, Mrs. Eleanor Hogue and son, Douglas, of Orange; Miss Agnes Cummins, of Los Angeles; Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Utt and Mrs. George Brown, of Lemon Heights; Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Hatch and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Williams, of Tustin.

PASS TESTS

SAN JUAN CAPISTRANO, July 20.—Five Boy Scouts of the local Scout troop 12 recently passed a life saving test conducted by Bill Walters, life guard of Laguna Beach. This will give the boys one more Scout merit certificate. The boys are Robert Cook, Whitney Halladay, Billy Quackenbush, LeRoy Cady an dErnest Deer.

CHAMBER SEEKS GIRLS TO REPRESENT LAGUNA BEACH

LAGUNA BEACH, July 20.—Pulchritude of a most select type is being sought by the publicity department of the local chamber of commerce to represent the art colony at various beach activities along the Southland coast, according to Horace A. Dunn, director of publicity of the chamber.

At the present time, Dunn added, a "jungle beauty," to accompany the Laguna Lions club at the big Southland fiesta of the organization to be held at El Monte, is badly needed. The Laguna girl chosen for the part will appear with Elmo Lincoln, former motion picture actor and original "Tarzan of the Apes," for the beauty show forming part of the El Monte program.

The "Tarzan" girl from Laguna, Dunn explained, shold have long, dark hair and be between 18 and 28 years of age. Any young girl wishing to play the role on Friday, July 27, should communicate immediately with the chamber of commerce office.

GARDEN GROVE LIONS CLUB TO ENTER FLOAT

GARDEN GROVE, July 20.—At the regular meeting of the Lions club held Wednesday at Legion hall the matter of entering a float in the electrical pageant at Newport Beach on July 28 was discussed following a talk on the proposition by Harry Welch of Newport Beach. The following committee was appointed to confer with other organizations of the town in helping to sponsor the float. Charles Lake, chairman, Virgil Sparks and Robert Smith.

It was decided to have a "stag" party at the home of J. W. Crill on the evening of July 25 with E. O. Fulsom, Virgil Sparks, and Dr. N. Jesch, as the committee to make arrangements, and a dinner on the evening of August 29 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Schauer with the women as honored guests. These parties take the place of the regular noonday luncheons.

Dr. A. C. Robbins gave a talk on present economic conditions demonstrating his points with a chart.

The meeting was presided over by Rodney Collins, first vice president, in the absence of Donald Jordan. A surprise feature of the meeting was a shower of baby articles for Collins who is the proud father of a new son.

GARDEN GROVE MAN WEDS POMONA GIRL

GARDEN GROVE, July 20.—John M. Pearson, of Garden Grove and Mrs. Blanche Hall, of Pomona, were united in marriage Wednesday evening at 6:30 o'clock at the home of the latter's sister, Mrs. Montrose McCanne, of that city. The ceremony was performed by Dr. Stead, pastor of the Congregational church.

Following the ceremony a wedding supper was served to a few relatives and close friends. The couple will make their home at 793 Hawthorne street, in Pomona. Mr. Pearson, who has been organist in the local Methodist Episcopal church for the past 13 years, has given up his work although he will still retain his class of piano pupils.

Boy Honored On Sixth Birthday

DAUGHTER BORN

BREA, July 20.—A daughter was born yesterday afternoon, July 19, to Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Printz at the Snavely Maternity Home here. Both the mother and the baby are reported to be doing nicely. The daughter has been named Joan Dee. Mrs. Printz will be remembered as Miss Helen Woodard.

BIRTHDAY IS OCCASION FOR HAPPY EVENT

BREA, July 20.—A happy birthday surprise awaited Mrs. Harry M. Sellers on Wednesday night when her husband planned her appearance at the home of her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. George Pettit on East Elm street, where she was greeted by several close friends.

Following the fun of the surprise and the showering of good wishes on the honoree, the evening was spent in playing bridge with Mrs. Luther Cariker and C. F. Gordon scoring for first prize and the consolation going to Mrs. Sellers and Howard Mangan. Refreshments of sandwiches, coffee and a handsome birthday cake were served.

Attending in addition to the host and hostess and the honoree and her husband were Mr. and Mrs. George Folckemer, Mr. and Mrs. K. E. Gordon and Frank Rhome of Brea, Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Gordon, Bruce Gordon and Carl Johnson of Long Beach, Mr. and Mrs. Luther Cariker and Margaret Cariker of Fullerton, Mr. and Mrs. Archie Rosenbaum, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Mangan, Howard Mangan and Frances Murphy of LaVida Springs. All were attired in hard time costumes.

REPORT MADE ON W. R. C. CHARITY

COSTA MESA, July 20.—More than $10 in cash and groceries was given out by the J. N. Stiffler Post No. 145 of the W. R. C. as a part of the organization welfare work for the past month, it was reported by Mrs. Alice King, welfare chairman of the post, in their regular monthly gathering which was held in the social hall of the Community Church on Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. King also stated that 22 sick calls and 30 social calls were made during the same period, and that 44 bouquets had been distributed as a portion of the work in charity.

Mrs. Ida Woods, Mrs. Myrna Whitney, Mrs. Daisy Radabaugh, and Mrs. Alvyna Ober were named as a committee to represent the local post at a W. R. C. Federation meeting that is to be held in La Habra on Monday, July 23. On Wednesday, July 25, several from the post will attend a demonstration in the exemplication of ritualistic work at Santa Ana.

Those at the meeting were the Mesdames Daisy Radabaugh, Etta Tead, Clara McMurtry, Loretta Pangle, Margaret Long, Myrna Whitney, Ica Clark, Phoebe Mortimer, Ida Woods, Alice King, Estelle Miller, and Alvyna Ober.

A. Robinson, Mrs. Emma Sweaney and Mrs. Mary Prindle of La Habra.

Boys Renew Faith In Santa Claus

WINTERSBURG, July 20.—Boys who reside in the Boulevard Gardens area today were firmly convinced that Santa Claus is real and that he must come more often than just at Christmast time.

This belief was strengthened by the fact that the county sent out men and machinery to level some vacant lots near the boulevard that they might have a ball diamond. The field is now in good shape and there is considerable discussion of playing games with teams from surrounding communities.

REBEKAHS TO FETE STATE PRESIDENT

WESTMINSTER, July 20.—The entertaining of the state president of the Rebekah Assembly, Mrs. Jessice Fournier of Los Angeles, will include on next Tuesday evening at Odd Fellows hall a public dinner, with serving to begin at 6 o'clock under the direction of Mrs. Maude Michl as general chairman of local Rebekahs.

The receipts from the dinner will go into the Aloha Rebekah club, social organization of the local lodge.

Birthday Party For Donal Woods

LA HABRA, July 20.—At the Roy Tremaine home on East La Habra avenue, Mrs. O. F. Woods entertained with a party yesterday afternoon in honor of the eighth birthday anniversary of her son, Donald Woods.

Games were played. Each guest was given a gift from a large web from which were strings for each child. Refreshments were served at the dining table marked by placecards.

WIVES OF BREA LION CLUB IN FUN SESSION

BREA, July 20.—An informal meeting of the Brea Lions club was enjoyed at the weekly luncheon yesterday with several guests present to share in the fun when wives of the Lions made an unexpected appearance, swathed in sheets, and each Lion was asked to pick out his own wife. Only J. B. Phillips succeeded in doing so. The remainder paid fines.

Ed Peterkin, Ed Curtis and Dick Moderwell, in charge of the program, presented "The Cow-Girls", Sylvia Badger and Marcella Poyoreno, who sang several songs, accompanying themselves on the steel guitar. A one man show in two acts was put on by Roy Chillery of Valencia. Bettina Whitney, of the Orange county school of fine arts, gave an Italian reading in costume and also appeared in a Greek dancing number.

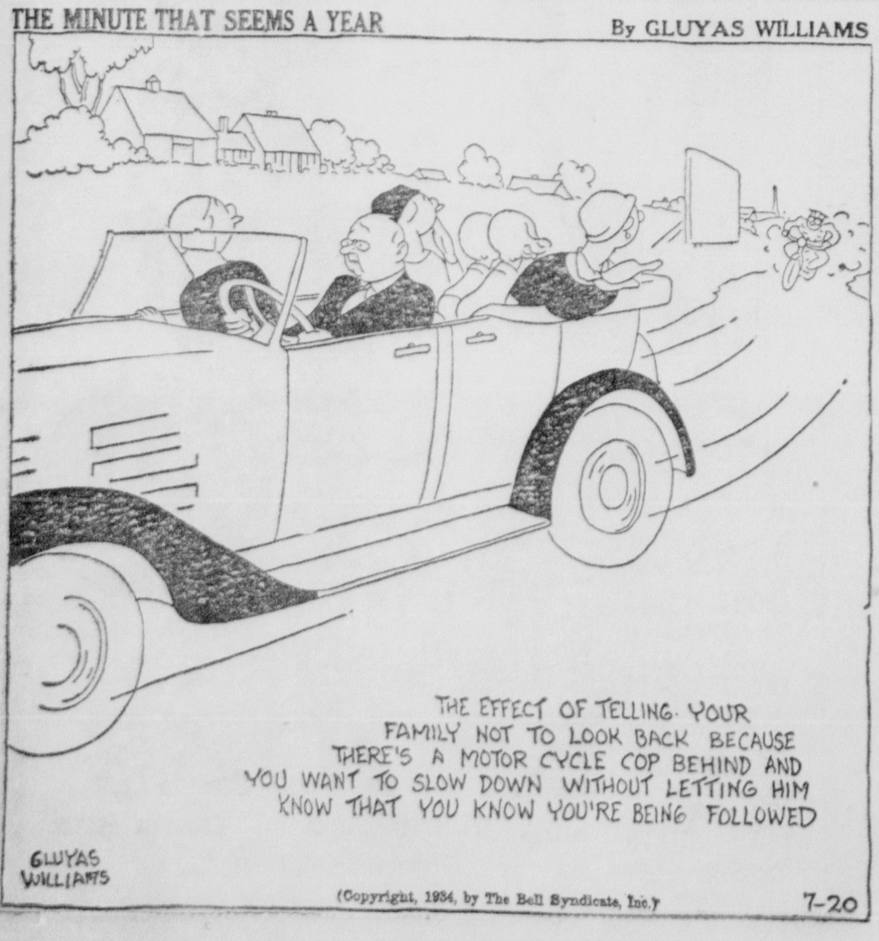

Virgil Kiger, captain of the Lions' baseball team, presented to president Glenn Curtis the ball used at Anaheim to capture the championship from Long Beach. The ball was autographed by all the Brea players.

An invitation was read from the management of the Newport tournament of lights that Brea be represented there on July 28 by a float. President Curtis named L. A. Hogue, J. B. Phillips and W. A. Culp a committee to cooperate with other interests in the city to that end.

Guests at the luncheon included the players on the Lions' ball team, a recognition of their having won the championship for the first half of the series. Dr. Curtis' guests were Dr. Duncan of Placentia and Dr. W. E. Jackson of Brea. W. W. Hay's guest was H. Stitt of Los Angeles. J. D. Neuls had as his guest H. C. Ferry of the Union Oil Company while Frank Wharton presented Dan Acosta as his guest. Guests of J. B. Phillips were councilmen Ervin and Gordon of Newport Beach. William Rogers of the Birch Oil company was a guest of Earl Templeman. E. E. Anderson and Robert Shanks, both former members of the club, were present as was W. J. Lambert, county auditor, of Santa Ana.

How Joe Cronin hates to give up. Practically everyone connected with the Washington Senators from Owner Clark Griffith to the bat boy, has been out or affected by injuries or illness since the American league outfits squared off in April. Their sick bay report reads like a running account of a revolution.

One would have believed that the climax was reached when Johnny Stone, the outfielder who came from Detroit in exchange for Golden Goose Goslin last winter, was carried from the field in Cleveland the other day with torn ligaments and a severely sprained ankle.

One rather expected Cronin to tie a white handkerchief to a bat and wave it from the dugout, but there's no quit in the manager of last year's champions. I couldn't name a ball player more proud of his profession, position, and himself than Joe Cronin.

"It will be a shame if we fall to repeat," asserted the Washington pilot, "for we're the best club.

"As Connie Mack points out, a pennant winner is not a great team unless it duplicates the performance, and it would be a pity for the Washington club to bow out this fall with that indictment."

WHITEHILL HOBBLED

With all their hard luck, Cronin believes the Senators would now be out in front had Alvin Crowder and Earl Whitehill stood up.

Paradoxically, Whitehill's ineffectiveness is attributed to a one-hit performance.

Whitehill had been complaining about the ball days before the took the mound against the Yankees in New York, and made Memorial Day memorable. The only difference between the American league sphere of 1933 and 1934 is the color of the stitches, but no one could tell Pedro that, and what happened on Decoration Day convinced him that he was right and the world cockeyed.

The Yankee management was using up balls left over from last fall, and Whitehill, suspicious of all balls, noticed the difference in the color of the seams with his first pitch in warming up.

CONVINCED?

Whitehill was masterful that day—flirting with the hall of fame right up to the final round. There was one out in the ninth before Ben Chapman deprived the Iowan of a no-hit, no-run game with a scratch single.

"What have I been telling you?" said Whitehill to Cronin, when the last shot had been fired. "You saw for yourself, didn't you? It was that old ball. I'm all right with it. The new one is too slick."

And the Earl of Whitehill hasn't had any too much luck getting the other side out since, despite the fact that the gloss again is being removed from American league balls by rubbing them in dirt.

Meanwhile Cronin confesses that he isn't sleeping and eating any too well, and, despite his high standing in the runs batted in column, the shortstop isn't swatting the onion as he should.

"I wouldn't care about the shut eye and groceries," smiled young Joe. "If I only could hit."

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

Don Meade is said to get his mount away from the starting gate quicker than any other jockey now in the saddle. . . . Dutch Ruether, former major league pitching great, now has a 19-year-old son on the way up to the big leagues. . . . He is Frank, right-handed pitcher for Seattle in the Pacific Coast loop. . . . Art Shires, now playing in the Texas League, hasn't hit a home run so far this season . . . and that's not so great for "The Great." . . . Steve Hamas, it seems, is a bit shy at mixing with King Levinsky . . . as he wants a guarantee of 15,000 iron men to expose his college profile to those roundhouse rights of the Kingfish. . . . Mary Elizabeth Hirsh, daughter of one of the leading horse trainers in the country, has been granted a trainer's license in Illinois . . . and becomes the first woman to be admitted to the ranks.

Games Tonight

Friday—Santa Ana at Torrance; Huntington Beach at Fullerton; Westminster at Anaheim.

Co-leaders of the National Night Ball league, Santa Ana and Torrance struggle at Torrance tonight for the psychological and mathematical advantage that goes with undisputed possession of first place.

Safely over Anaheim, one of their highest hurdles, the Stars make the long hop with increased confidence. Jim Coates, who shutout Anaheim, also blanked Torrance earlier in the season, and he will go to the firing line an even bet to score another decision over Pitcher Louie Neva. Coates had the '33 champions at his mercy last time, fanning 11 and turning in a 5-hit effort while his colleagues bunted Neva into defeat.

Since National league clubs made the turn into the second-half, Santa Ana has lowered the boom on Olive, Fullerton and Anaheim. Torrance has turned back Westminster, Huntington Beach and Long Beach the Huntington Beach joust being protested and appealed to President George Peterkin.

Schedule Favors Torrance

After tonight's tussles, Santa Ana plays in order, Westminster, Long Beach and Huntington Beach before beginning the final quarter's schedule. Torrance opposes Fullerton, Anaheim and Olive. This lineup slightly favors Torrance so it behooves the Stars to win tonight.

Manager Bill Cole is confident his men will do that very thing. The skipper does not hesitate to conceal his pleasure at the recent aggressiveness of the club, nor the splendid pitching of young Coates. Cole also calls attention to the improved hitting of Tommy Young and Ed Daley, two valuable infielders who were in an early season slump. Young brushed up his batting average from .250 to .324 by making eight hits in his last 11 times at bat. Daley has jumped from .267 to .290.

Westminster vs. Anaheim and Huntington Beach vs. Fullerton are other league contests scheduled tonight. The first one appears an open game. Huntington Beach is favored over the Bellhops.

Deny Fullerton To Quit

Speaking for the Fullerton Junior Chamber of Commerce, Bob Hatfield vigorously denies reports that Fullerton will quit the National league at the end of the present campaign. "Not a word of truth to it," says Hatfield. "We believe $300 a season well spent in publicizing Fullerton and selling good will. We'll be at the starting line when the whistle blows next May." . . . Riverside beat San Bernardino for the first-half championship of the American Night league, but San Bernardino protested its second defeat so more ado is in prospect. Incidentally, the long-winded playoff in the conference has delayed the inland schedule two weeks. The American leaguers won't finish their second-half until September 11. Unless the same club wins the second-half, another inter-league series then will be necessary, and if that should go seven games the American division won't have a representative ready for the Southern California playoffs until the first of October. It's a cinch the National league's champion won't like that set-up. The season here closes August 24, and a month's layoff might kill what waning interest remains in the Southern Cal. series....

No Protest Filed

President George Peterkin says he never has received an official protest from Huntington Beach over the game the Oilers recently dropped to Torrance, and would not consider it now even if one were filed. League rules require protests to be mailed within 24 hours, along with a $10 check which goes into the league's treasury if the complaint is denied ....Although Long Beach hasn't won a game this season, dropping 18 in succession to date, every club in the conference breaths easier when the Rear-Admirals have left town. They feel that the law of averages will act in favor of Long Beach eventually. But nobody wants to be the victim of that "law."

Starting with a four-run attack in the first inning, Olive piled up a 11-3 victory over Long Beach at Olive last night. Jack Dugan, recently acquired from the Orange team of the Orange County league, hurled his first full game for the Grenadiers, and kept nine hits well scattered.

Nann Coots hits a homer with one on in the first inning, and got another four-ply blow in the sixth. Griffith homed in the eighth. Callahan got four baseknocks for Long Beach. The score:

M. E. South Seniors	0	4	.000

The South Methodist Juniors and Seniors dropped deeper into the Santa Ana City league cellar today, after losing to the First National bank and the Elks club, respectively, at the Municipal Bowl last night.

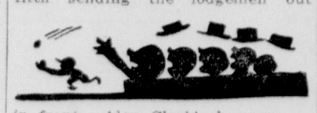

Defeat of the Bankers by the M. E. South Juniors was one of the major upsets of the first-half season, but the First Nationals made sure there would be no repetition of that debacle. They jumped all over young Nelson Bates in the first inning for four runs on hits by Neil Hall, Harold Youel, Jerry Heard, Bill Gibbs and Tony Kneip, and picked up four more in the fifth on singles by H. Youel, Gene Hitt and Elvin Mitchell, a double by Gibbs and a homer by Pargee.

Gilbert Yorba hurled shutout ball for the Bankers after giving up three runs in the first on McCullahs single, two errors and Boyd's double.

AMERICA CUP TEST RACES CALLED OFF

NEWPORT, R. I., July 20.—(UP)—The current series of test races to determine the outstanding yacht for defense of the America's Cup was brought to an abrupt end today. The cup committee announced that the series was finished shortly after the sloop Yankee withdrew because of an injury to its professional skipper, Gus Olsen.

Johnson Given Contract For '35 Season

CLEVELAND, July 20.—(UP)—Walter Johnson today had been voted a new one-year contract to remain as manager of the Cleveland Indians in 1935.

The announcement was made by Alva Bradley, club president, and followed closely on a storm of criticism of Johnson's managerial judgment after Monday's loss to the New York Yankees.

GOLF

By Art Krenz

No one likes to be short off the tee, and for the reason it is hard to impress upon the beginner that he should not press. To the player that slugs the ball, the cost is high in hooks and slices, lost balls, topped ones, and dubs.

How much better off he would be if he studied results. Take a round of golf so played and keep the card. Then play another round, striving not for distance, but for accuracy, and note the results. I'll guarantee a difference in scores.

GOMEZ OF YANKEES NURSES SORE ARM

CHICAGO, July 20.—(UP)—Manager Joe McCarthy of the New York Yankees was in doubt today about starting his southpaw ace, "Lefty" Gomez, again during the team's Western trip. Gomez has a sore arm and Catcher Bill Dickey believes that he needs a rest of a week or longer.

Two days ago Gomez appeared as a relief hurler against Cleveland and was hammered hard. He later reported his arm felt dead, and it has shown no improvement.

Five of the Orange County league's eight baseball clubs were tied for first place today after a night which attended to the downfall of two undefeated teams, Irvine and Orange.

Anaheim's hard-hitting outfit hammered Wilson Seacord, Irvine's ace moundman, for a 10-0 decision. Anaheim scored two in the first, one in the fifth, seventh and eighth, and topped off a large evening with a five-run barrage in the first of the ninth. Peltzer held Irvine to five scattered hits.

Minus Pitcher Jack Dugan, who has joined Olive of the National league, the contending Orange squad was beaten by Fullerton, 11-7. The veteran Ray Price started for Orange but was driven to cover in four innings after allowing six tallies.

Long Beach came from behind in the ninth to nose out Huntington Beach, 13-11. Winkler opened the Cub rally with a single. Ellis doubled and Vic Wilson cleaned the bases and broke up the game with a homer.

Brea won from Olive, 5-2.

KENNEDY SUSPENDED FOR POOR SHOWNING

WATERBURY, Conn., July 20.—(UP)—State Boxing Commissioner Joseph Lawlor today suspended Les Kennedy, Long Beach, Cal. heavyweight, knocked out in the second round here last night by Eddie Hogan Waterbury, and says he will ask all member states of the National Boxing association to take similar action.

Charging Kennedy with "indifferent fighting," the commissioner said, "it's a shame to have a boxer of Kennedy's type spoil the efforts of Promoter Mulligan to give Waterbury good boxing cards."

London Mile Race On Air Tomorrow

Major events of the Cambridge-Princeton-Cornell track and field meet in London tomorrow, including the mile race between Jack Lovelock and Bill Bonthron, will be described over Radio KHJ between 9:35 and 9:50 a. m.

The broadcast, originating in London's White City stadium, will be transmitted to the United States by short wave through arrangement with the British Broadcasting corporation. Harold Abraham, British track and field expert, will be at the microphone.

WANA DEFEATS WILLIAMSON; QUILLEN WINS

"Swede" Williamson beat Bill Wana at San Bernardino, and again in Ontario, but Orange County Athletic club fight followers guessed today that Wana must have been a victim of "home town" decisions on both those occasions.

Boxing Wana here last night, Williamson showed nothing that would warrant an opinion he could take Bill even in the Westminster southpaw's worst moments. Wana scored a convincing victory over the San Bernardino Swede, winning four of the five rounds and breaking even in the other, the third.

Williamson was on his bicycle from the gong that began each round. He was fleeter of foot than Wana, and consequently kept away from trouble, but Bill did all the fighting although his style naturally was cramped by Williamson's tactics. Even when Wana could catch the clever Swede, Williamson plunged into clinches from which Referee Jack McDonald had difficulty prying him loose.

Quillen Beats Sparza

Paddy Quillen won the semi-windup from Benny Sparza, but the fans were treated to the rare spectacle of watching a Quillen in retreat most of the way. Either Sparza forced Paddy's respect or the little fellow's will-to-win was not at peak. A fourth round knockdown, more or less lucky, won for Quillen. Sparza was not hurt. The punch caught him off balance, and he hopped to his feet without a count.

The eight preliminary bouts were uniformly good, much better on the whole than the two feature engagements.

Frank Trott and Jimmy Salvador fought a savage special event, Trott getting McDonald's decision after the judges disagreed. It was a desperately close battle. Salvador had Trott in a bad way in the third but the latter finished fast. Trott said he broke his hand early in the bout. He did remarkably well under this handicap.

Hernandez Wins Thriller

Another bruising bout was that between Art Hernandez and Jess Sanchez, Santa Ana featherweight. There was no love lost between the pair, and they battled like a couple of angry sailors. Hernandez finally took the decision after doing a little trapeze performance, going out over the top rope and back into the ring without touching the floor.

Taking a severe beating in the first round, "Baby Face" Romereiz then won three in a row to decision Freddy Young.

Bill Cook, dubbed the Texas cowboy, knocked out Miller Fonseca in the first, scoring two knockdowns before McDonald halted it. Cook was a very businesslike fighter.

Tony Cruiz kayoed San Berdino in one. Benny Gonzales shaded Dan McGrew in a clown fight between two fleshy 160-pounders. Giving away ten pounds, Laesor Rivers outpointed "Red" Pepper. Eddie Carter, Ontario colored featherweight, beat Jess Segobia in the kickoff.

WINDSOR LAD THIRD IN ECLIPSE STAKES

SANDOWN Park, England, July 20.—(UP)—Sir Robert Brooke's King Salmon, winner of the Coronation Cup at Epsom Downs, won the rich Eclipse Stakes today from a field of ten which included the Maharajah of Rajuipla's Derby winner, Windsor Lad.

Minneapolis Bags All-Star Contest

MINNEAPOLIS, July 20.—(UP)—The Minneapolis Millers, league leaders in the American association pennant race, today boasted a 13-6 victory over the association All-Stars in the first game of its kind over promoted by the league. The paid attendance was 7435 and the gate receipts approximately $5000.

DEER OUEST IN CALIFORNIA TO OPEN AUGUST 1

Scores of Santa Ana and Orange county hunters are oiling rifles, replenishing ammunition supplies, and getting ready for the opening of the 1934 deer season in coastal districts 2, 21-2 and 3, set for the morning of August 1.

The area to be thrown open to hunters has been lesesned over that of last year, but extends from the northern boundary of Mendocino to the southern boundary of Monterey county.

Hunters on Aug. 1 until sundown Sept. 14 may seek venison in the following counties: All of Sonoma, Yolo, Solano, Napa, Marin, Alameda, San Francisco, San Mateo, Contra Costa, Santa Clara, San eBnito, Santa Cruz and Monterey, and in parts of Mendocino, Lake, Colusa, San Joaquin, Merced, Sacramento, Stanislaus, Kings and Fresno. Cards defining the boundaries of the districts may be obtained from any branch of the Division of Fish and Game.

Fish and game wardens assigned to the three opening districts advise that deer are plentiful this year, and in excellent condition. In San Mateo a rancher reported seeing 84 in one afternoon in a pea field, and from other counties along the coast reports indicate that bucks are numerous. However, the commission may close a small portion in the Santa Barbara National Forest to hunting as the fire over a year ago left poor protection for deer.

Hunters here already are buying their deer tags, according to sporting goods dealers, and as the season nears the sale of tags and hunting licenses will become brisk. For the first time, those purchasing hunting licenses are being given buttons to be worn while hunting.

The limit is two bucks in all districts except the Modoc area, where the mule tail deer is protected by a one-buck limit.

Spotlight hunting is illegal, and wardens will be watching closely for this kind of offender, as the last legislature put teeth in the spotlight law. Shooting from automobiles also is unlawful. Deer may not be taken into a closed district until the tag is properly countersigned.

On August 16 the deer season opens in Districts 2 3-4, 4 and 4 3-4.

The average annual kill of deer by legal hunters in California is approximately 23,000. It is estimated that some 400,000 deer are in the forests of the state.

COMBINE RULES EUROPE RACING

DRIVERS UNDER 'IRON CONTROL'

BY HENRY McLEMORE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

The man is Cav. Ferrari; his organization, the Scuderia Ferrari, is most successful motor racing combine of all time.

The activities of the Scuderia is spread all over Europe. Wherever there's an important race—be it France, England, Tripoli, Isle of Man, Germany, or high in the Alps—a Scuderia Ferrari team is always there. Of the 11 great races run in this part of the world so far this year, 10 were won by the Scuderia. In eight of them the combine's drivers placed, one, two, three.

Cav. Ferrari, who, with Count Trossi, organized the Scuderia five years ago, never sees a race. But it is he, who, using daily telegraphic reports from his managers regarding the cars and the drivers, decides which men shall run and which cars they shall drive.

He is an iron discipline. The cars must be kept in absolutely perfect condition. Drivers must be in bed by a certain hour, and up by a certain hour. It is Cav. Ferrari who combs Europe for the best drivers. In the Scuderia's fold are 13 of Europe's most famed pilots, including the almost unbeatable quartet—Tazio Nuvolari, Guy Moll, Louis Chrion and Achille Varzi.

To insure replacements, the Scuderia conducts a training school in which promising youngsters are schooled for years before being given the wheel in a race.

The cars almost invariably are sent to the various events in great lorries, especially equipped to carry two racing cars, tires, tools and general equipment. An airplane is maintained on a yearly charter to rush drivers and mechanics from one part of the country to another. This method of travel enables the Scuderia to compete anywhere, anytime.

The Scuderia not only has the best drivers; it has the best cars, too. Under a contract it has the exclusive right to all Monoposto (one seater) Alpha-Romeos, admittedly the fastest, most durable racing cars made.

The Scuderia Ferrari, despite the great sums of money spent in building up its almost complete monopoly of European racing, is a paying concern. Last year Nuvolari alone won more than $250,000 in prize money in four months. The earnings of Varzi, Chrion and Moll, the three most successful drivers this year, are likely to pass half a million rollars. In addition to the prize money, automobile accessory firms, oil companies and gasoline companies compete to see which can have its goods used by the Scuderia Ferrari.

TENNIS

Three hard Class B matches marked yesterday's play in the Santa Ana round-robin tournament, with Carson Smith, Theron Willis and Roy Willis forced into three sets before gaining victories over Harry Nissley, Wayne Moon and Frank Bettis. The results:

Class B—C. Smith defeated Nissley, 10-8, 1-6, 6-1; T. Willis defeated Moon, 6-4, 3-6, 6-0; R. Willis defeated Bettis, 6-4, 4-6, 6-3.

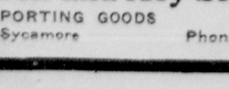

Class C—Coulson defeated Marshall, 6-4, 8-6.

LA JOLLA, July 20.—(UP)—Only one seeded player had been eliminated today as the Southland's tennis aces entered the fourth round of the La Jolla tennis championships almost in a body.

THE TINYMITES

STORY by HAL COCHRAN—PICTURES by KING

Brave Scouty thought to himself "I am thrilled o'er acting as a spy. I only hope that I can safely reach the distant camp.

"Then I'll spy on the Meany Men, and crawl back to our camp again. I wonder why each Meany is a tricky little scamp."

'Course, all this time, he crawled along, real pleased that nothing had gone wrong. The ground, however, was real hard, and crawling was no fun.

Once in a while he'd stop to rest and rub his knees 'cause he was dressed in short pants and his knees were bare. Sore spots were on each one.

"He surely is a real brave lad, and gee, but I'll be mighty glad when he returns. I'll bet the story he'll tell will be rare."

"Aw, don't you worry 'bout that lad," said Coppy. "We all know he's had a lot of real adventures. This is just another one.

"He'll spy upon our enemy. Then right back here he'll shortly be. What we think is real dangerous, he'll say was lots of fun."

Poor Scouty, though, fell in a trap. He stopped to take a little nap, and sev'ral Meany Men came out and saw him on the ground.

One whispered, "Get some rope. We'll tie this lad real tight, 'cause he's a spy." When Scouty woke up, with a start, his hands and legs were bound.

"Ha, ha. You will not spy on us. And don't you try to start a fuss," exclaimed one of the Meanies. You're a prisoner of war."

Poor Scouty knew it was no use to try and work the tight rope loose. He eyed the band of Meanies, wond'ring just what was in store.

TIMELY—

Whether so intended or not, President Roosevelt's order for an investigation of the ocean mail subsidies by the post office department has a relation to the San Francisco strike situation. Its issuance at a time when the president was fully cognizant of the controversy between the ship owners and their employes may have significance. At any rate, it serves to call attention, just at this moment, to the disclosures regarding the mail subsidies by the senate committee of which Senator Black, of Alabama, was chairman.

In general, that investigation showed that the subsidies paid in the guise of pay for carrying the mail enabled the ship owners, in many cases, to reap enormous profits for themselves while the government held the bag. Earnings from ships bought from the government on time were distributed in large salaries and bonuses to officers, in substantial dividends to stockholders, while obligations to the government remained unpaid. In some cases, even the interest was not met. According to much of the testimony, it appeared that the government was regarded simply as a good thing and that its interests need never be considered. Various accounts were faked so that expenses were often charged to the government which properly should have been borne by the companies.

One of the companies which benefited most from the government mail-carrying endowment was the Dollar Line, now involved with other lines in the strike on the Pacific coast. A striking instance of how government aid enabled those controlling the Dollar Line to make enormous profits was brought out in the testimony before the committee. Five men, including the two Dollar brothers, each put $100 in a pool, which was so manipulated as to bring in several millions. The president's order to look into these ocean mail contracts brings such things as this concerning the steamship companies to notice and they will probably not be overlooked by the strikers in making up their case.

ALL FALL FOR HER—

One of the members of congress to linger long in Washington after the close of the session was Mrs. Isabella Greenway, lone representative from Arizona and widow of the late General John C. Greenway. And there is no thought of minimizing in that word "lone," for, in its one member of the house, Arizona has more effective representation than many states entitled to a dozen members. Although serving her first term, Mrs. Greenway has already acquired influence and a reputation for getting things across that usually do not come till after many years of service, and often not then.

It is not only her good looks that win people to Mrs. Greenway. Her tumbled shock of hair, resembling a hay-cock whipped by the wind, would attract attention to her anywhere. It is her perfect poise, unaffected manner and quiet charm which at once put those around her at ease and make the congressmen generally want to tell her everything they know. They go to her with their troubles, they confide to her their secrets and, above all, they tell her about themselves and how wonderful they are. She listens sympathetically and appreciatively and they think she is marvelous. They would go the limit for her and, when they are unable to get something done, they appeal to her and she reciprocates by going to the bat for them.

Mrs. Greenway's influence has extended itself even to the senate and, when she has wandered over there to watch proceedings, she has always been eagerly sought out by members of that body. On some of these occasions, she has not neglected to do some discreet lobbying for measures in which she was interested. Toward the close of the session, some of her colleagues in the house came to her in despair about a bill carrying an appropriation which seemed to have not a ghost of a chance to get through. They begged her to help them. She obliged and, going straight to Speaker Rainey, gained his consent to let the bill get past the barrier.

If Mrs. Greenway is as solid with her constituents as she is with her colleagues in congress, she has nothing to fear from the election, and that may be why she was not in a big hurry to dash home and get into the campaign as most of the others were.

SOMETHING STILL BETTER—

According to reports which are coming into Washington, the work of appraising farm properties, which was going on under the farm credit administration, has almost ceased because of the passage of the Frazier-Lemke bill by congress and its approval by the president. Under the farm credit administration, farms were being appraised for the purpose of getting loans and scaling down indebtedness where possible. The Frazier-Lemke bill eases the debt situation for the farmers still more by allowing them six years within which to redeem property. This looks pretty good to the farmers and, according to the reports, they are waiting to see how the new law works before taking further proceedings under the old plan.

NEW DEAL TEST

A big test case to determine the constitutionality of the novel measures enacted during this administration did not come before the supreme court before it took the usual summer recess. The first case of the kind during the next sitting is expected to be that between the AAA and Chicago milk firms.

NEW YORK

By James McMullin

21-2 PER CENT

New York experts say the Treasury should be patting itself on the back. Unprecedented strength in the government bond market makes the September and October financing look like a solid gold cinch. The Treasury's device of making its last two offerings smaller than expected is working like a charm.

Despite recent selling by several large banks demand continues incredibly strong. The 4 1-4's called for redemption in October are currently priced at a figure which assures their holders a loss. Accrued interest won't begin to cover the spread between the present price and the par value at which they will be redeemed. Why this paradox? Simply because ownership of the bonds gives the inside track to whatever new offering is made for conversion purposes.

Not only that. Other issues which have not been called but can be are also selling at a premium which promises a loss instead of a yield. Many financial sharps are deliberately investing funds at less than no return on the gamble of getting first crack at future Treasury offerings. It doesn't look as if Uncle Sam's credit had suffered much from the "staggering public debt."

It's too early to say what the interest rates on September and October issues will be but experts agree that Maynard Keynes' vision of long-term U. S. bonds at 2 1-2 per cent is no longer a flight of fancy. Such a development would help all outstanding long-term industrial bonds which are not callable.

COOPERATION

Buying by small banks all over the country has been a potent factor in the continuous climb of federal securities. Government agencies have helped that along. For some months Federal Deposit Insurance, RFC and bank examiners generally have kept up continuous pressure on small banks to finish cleaning out their junk. New York learns they have often suggested government obligations as a suitable investment for the funds thus freed. Comment runs that Mr. Morgenthau should be grateful for such pratical cooperation.

SKIMMED

Several New York banks are conducting private but aggressive credit expansion campaigns of their own. Their scouts all over the country have been instructed to encourage loan applications from anyone who appears reasonably solvent in a line of business not over-occupied.

This sales campaign is beginning to get results. The informed predict that by the time smaller institutions in other sections get their houses in order and are ready to do a normal loan business again they will find the cream of their local crops skimmed by their big brothers in New York.

BRAKES

Federal Reserve circles are a trifle uneasy about their ability to control credit inflation once it gets into high gear.

Normally they could do so by restrictions on member bank borrowing. But member banks now have such fat excess reserves they could ladle out oceans of credit without having to borrow.

The Federal Reserve bank tried to get legislation through the last Congress allowing them to base reserves on rapidity of deposit turnover as well as on volume. This would have given them a much firmer grip but the proposal got lost in the shuffle and they feel they've been left with worn-out brakes on a car that can make 100 miles an hour.

Admittedly the car still needs an accelerator more than brakes. But the Federal Reserve is anxious to protect itself against taking the rap for something it can't help which may happen in the future.

DILIGENCE

Stock Exchange authorities are keeping a weather eye on stock deals originating abroad. An Exchange governor who is close to Richard Whitney is now in Europe for the purpose. Insiders understand he's supposed to notify New York promptly at the faintest sign of funny business. It isn't clear just what the Exchange would do then but the inference is it would find some way to head off manipulation.

Wall Street is amused by this sudden diligence. For years the Exchange maintained that market abuses were all due to non-member operators over whom it had no possible control. Now it will have an earnest stab at something it said it couldn't do. Critics comment it's odd what a difference government regulation makes.

PEST

As predicted here recently the omve to nominate a liberal Republican for Governor of New York is getting into stride. The current excitement about Samuel Seabury's candidacy is part of the plot. Seabury has as much chance to get the Republican nomination as Jim Farley but he's a wonderful stalking horse.

Republican conservatives know they're on the spot but there isn't much they can do about it. Chairman Macy is strong enough to block any hand-picked choice of theirs. If the Seabury boom stirs popular enthusiasm they'll have to grin and bear a liberal—or face an awful licking in November.

Macy is a pest to the conservatives but they admit he knows his political spinach.

BLOW

Another group has found RFC isn't the plum tree they thought. Operators of airports and flying services whooped last winter at reports eight million dollars had been set aside for them to borrow. So far seven applicants have reached for the plums—and they're still reaching. It's a sad blow to find that collaterel which isn't good enough for the banks isn't good enough for RFC either.

SIDELIGHTS

Italy's Conte de Savoia—only ocean liner stabilized against rolling by gyroscope—broke all records for passengers carried in its first 18 months of service. . . . The New York utility investigation will hire 200 accountants . . . 50 of them will be for one company.

Editor Register:

I have been reading your paper for a number of years, will continue so long as we are able to pay for it. Many times have I thought seriously upon matters and things appearing in its columns. Now I can refrain no longer from writing a word or so.

In yesterday's issue (July 17th) appears an address delivered by Mr. Head before the Creel-for-Governor club in Orange, wherein he states that the epic plan is an impractical dream of Upton Sinclair's; I am wondering, if God has seen fit, at this time, to send us a Daniel, that we might not go wrong? I'm wondering if that was typical of the feast of Belshazzar and the handwriting was spread upon the wall?

Mr. Sinclair is evidently trampling upon their toes, else (he) they would not be howling so very loudly just yet.

I think his interpretation of the EPIC plan is porous, not unlike the weave of the home spun cloth our pants were made of when I was a boy. How easily did they ravel when pricked in the weave. I am fearful some of newly made or employed magicians will never rescue us from the lions' den. I consider it poor Democracy when I hear an orator surmount the rostrum and cry aloud against the people. Now-a-days to say you are a democrat, you are understood to mean that you are for the people. The world is its people, not any part of them, but all of them.

Should we take time and refer back to college days, examine our old text books, English Literature, or Political Economy or any treatise of Economics, readily will we educe the Sinclair principle.

Why should we think only of human integrity and man's prerogative in terms of ability to earn and hoard his dollar?

I am reminded of years ago, when I used to visit the coastal countries of south Texas. Those great ranches with several thousand goats ranging the hills; one Mexican would shepherd a thousand goats. Should something befall the herder, his flock would go without water, sometimes for days, waiting to hear the call of their herdsman. I am fearful our present day herdsmen are failing to lead us to the proper fountain. Before you starve, listen to the call of the ONLY leader we have, Mr. Sinclair, and not the fellow hollowing "wolf" when there is no wolf at his door.

Moses was 120 years old when he lay himself down to die and never enter the promised lands because he smote the rock.

Be careful, allow them not to drift you farther into the cavern, for the entry is closing. Let the Israelites put Pharaoh's army to flight with all his slave drivers.

We have fine-combed the trades world for nearly 65 years and still we have nothing. They gathered the finance into the wrong end of the funnel. Let's turn the funnel end for end.

History repeats itself, Moses had Aaron, Joshua had Caleb, etc. Perhaps President Roosevelt needs Upton Sinclair.

TWO MONTHS TRIP TO NORTH ENJOYED

VILLA PARK, July 20.—Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Morningstar have returned home from a two months' trip through the north. They attended the commencement exercises at Berkeley at which Sterling Murdock was one of the graduates. They visited the geysers in Sonoma county, were in the redwoods several days, went up the Columbia river as far as The Dalles, visited the falls and the government dam, and crossed the Columbia.

In Yakima they visited Mr. Morningstar's sister, Mrs. A. L. Walters. At Seattle Mr. and Mrs. Morningstar were guests of Mrs. Howard, who was formerly Mrs. Lida Bixby of Villa Park.

After vsiiting Rainier Park they were in Vancouver, Nanaimo, Victoria and Patricia Bay. They were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Johnson, where they found Miss Estil Urschel of Los Angeles, and Miss May Bathgate of San Francisco.

In Victoria they visited the museum and parliament buildings, and later were in the Lewis and Clark Park for several days. They visited Salem, then Crater Lake, Shasta Springs, and the old town of Shasta, where there used to be several thousand inhabitants; Lassen Park, the hot springs, with its lakes of boiling water. They were at Susanville, National Park camp, visited the Supply company lumber mills and Shook factory, Lake Tahoe, Truckee and Mono Lake.

BENEFIT STAGED BY WHITE SHRINE

ORANGE, July 20.—One of the loveliest of summer affairs was the benefit dessert-luncheon card party, given Thursday afternoon in the beautiful gardens surrounding the home of Mrs. C. J. Hibben of 236 South Cambridge street, by the White Shrine of Fullerton.

Tables, centered with dainty yellow and blue floral pieces were placed under colorful umbrellas. Following the luncheon, contract, auction and 500 were played, with attractive prizes presented to the winners.

Co-hostesses at the pleasant affair, which was attended by more than 100 women: Mrs. E. H. Smith, Mrs. Sherman Gillogly, Mrs. Ernest Ross, and Mrs. C. Wesley Kolkhorst, of Orange; Mrs. Clara La Mont, Mrs. Adele Kellenbarger and Mrs. Glen Butcher of Anaheim, and Mrs. John Lang of Fullerton.

The largest fish ever captured was a spotted whale-shark, 38 feet long and weighing 26,594 pounds, harpooned off the coast of Florida by Capt. Charles Thompson in 1912.

Official Urges Prompt Action Against Citrus Pests

REPORTS SCALE IS APPEARING MUCH EARLIER

Control work against citrus pests, particularly black and purple scale, should proceed as rapidly as possible, according to D. W. Tubbs, county agricultural commissioner, in an announcement made today.

It was pointed out that the new brood of black scale appeared several weeks earlier this year than usual. Purple scale is appearing as a general infestation. Indications at the present time are that black scale in many cases will have reached a stage invulnerable to treatment within the next two or three weeks, said Tubbs.

"Both fumigation and oil spray trials applied within the last few days have failed to show appreciable injury," he stated. "To safeguard against damage, fumigation should be done over fairly dry ground whereas spraying should be applied as soon after irrigation as possible. Packing house managers have specifically requested that oil sprays should not be applied over the ripe fruit, as much of the fruit carries a green color this year and it is very difficult to sweat fruit which has been recently sprayed. Furthermore, fumigation later in the season over heavy crops of ripe fruit where trees have not been relieved of part of the load might be expected to cause some drop if the fruit becomes over-ripe."

Tubbs also called attention to the weather forecast which is being given daily by Floyd D. Young for the purpose of assisting commercial operators and growers in pest control work. This forecast, which is a new development in the service of the United State Weather bureau, is given over KNX each day at 12:14 p.m.

TWO NEW FILMS AT WEST COAST TODAY

"Charlie Chan's Courage", which opened today at the West Coast theater, introduces a new and novel twist in mystery stories. Warner Oland, portraying the wily detective, finds evidence of a murder, guesses the murderer, but can't find the murdered man.

FARM BUREAU GIVES OKAY TO ELLIOTT PLAN

The directors of the Orange County Farm Bureau, at an adjourned meeting at the Garden Grove Women's Civic club, last night approved the Elliott plan for flood control and conservation as a Federal aid project, with the condition that nothing be done with the river channel between the proposed Chester dam site at Prado and the diversion canals of the Santa Ana Valley Irrigation company and the Anaheim Union Water company.

Seventy-five officers of the Farm Bureau, representing all of its 10 Farm Centers, and most of the organization's departments and committees from all parts of the county were represented and took part in the meeting.

Everyone present was enthusiastic for action in the solution of Orange county's water problems it is reported, the only point of difference was how to take action on this important matter without interfering with the important negotiations being carried on under the leadership of the Associated Chamber of Commerce water committee in cooperation with the board of supervisors, Orange County Water district and the major water companies and interests.

Speakers at the meeting were Hon. Sam L. Collins, congressman from this district, who explained the situation of the Santa Ana river project with the Federal government; Dr. D. D. Waynick, chairman of the citrus department of the Farm Bureau and a member of its water committee, who spoke on the use and supply of water in Orange county; and M. N. Thompson, flood control engineer, who explained the Elliott plan as it affects the Santa Ana river, in an illustrated lecture, using the slides on the Elliott plan, prepared by the water committee of the Farm Bureau.

Betty Halladay Honors Friends

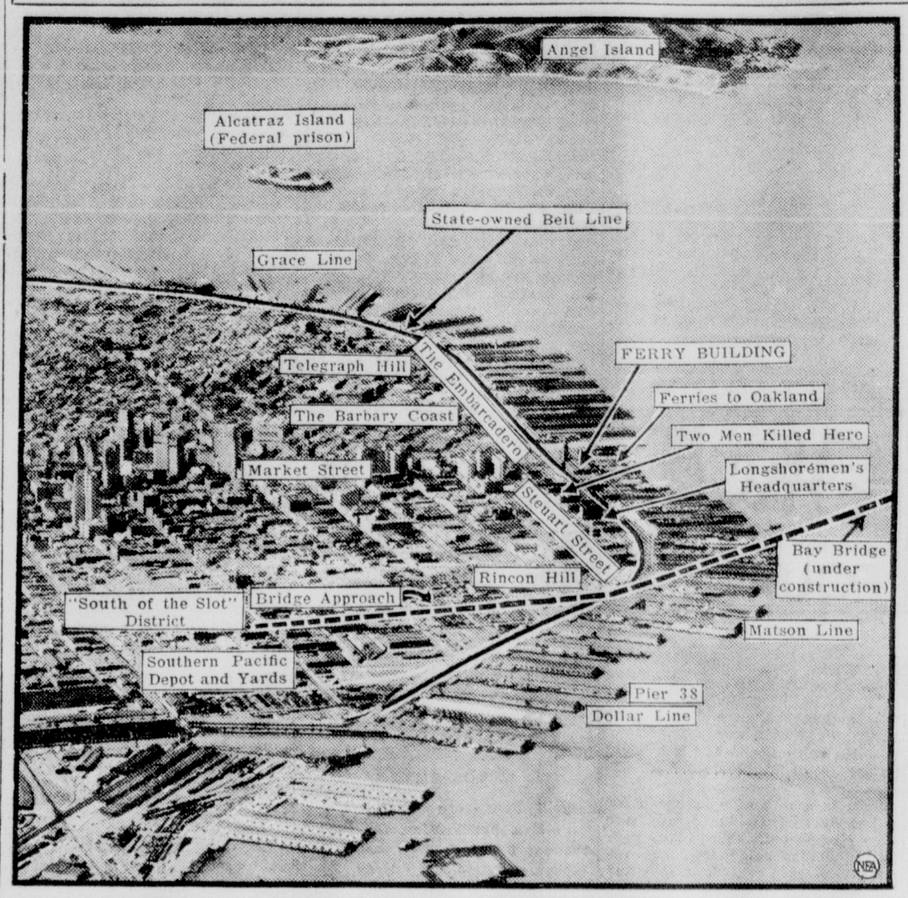

SAN JUAN CAPISTRANO, July 20.—Miss Betty Halladay entertained a party Tuesday evening when she invited her intimate friends of this community to meet two friends of Santa Ana, the Misses Jeanette Lewis and Harriet Chapin who were guests at the Halladay home.

In the rummy games which were the diversion of the evening Jeanette Lewis scored high and Margery Campbell scored second high. Each were awarded clever prizes.

Miss Halladay was assisted by her mother, Mrs. Harlow Halladay in serving a dainty refreshment course. Those present were the Misses Barbara Malcom and Virginia Stewart, Margery Campbell of Dana Point; Jeanette Lewis and Harriet Chapin of Santa Ana with the hostess Betty Halladay.

FOCAL POINT OF STRIKE TROUBLE

COMMITTEES OF S. A. LIONS ARE SELECTED

Appointment of committees of the Santa Ana Lions club, to serve during the ensuing year, were announced yesterday by President Kenneth E. LAFAYETTE DEALER REPORTS INCREASE

The unusually early spring is having a favorable reaction on the sale of cars, according to William E. Otis, jr., local dealer for LaFayette motor cars at Fifth and Birch streets.

"Spring gives the motorist an urge to travel. Since California offers such a variety of scenery which may be seen by making fairly long drives over good roads, motorists who have been driving their old cars for two, three and four seasons have made up their minds to own a new car with its many improvements, roominess, style, comfort and mechanical efficiency. This factor is causing many persons to look at the new LaFayette, built by Nash, which offers a value unique in motor cars, being an unusually big low-priced car, inheriting the advantages of its bigger brother in the transportation field," Otis said.

Otis also is the dealer for Nash, Graham, and Willys motor cars.

In Brazil, poisonous snakes are hauled by railroads free of charge. A national law requires that all poisonous snakes captured be sent to the snake farm at Sao Paulo, where their venom is extracted for use as snake-bite serum.

TREADLESS TIRES PROVE DANGEROUS

Treadless tires that are worn to the danger line, making them susceptible to sudden blowouts, punctures and deflations from cuts should be a warning signal to motorists in summer.

In the opinion of J. F. McHenry, local Goodyear dealer, figures on accidents last year show that of the cars involved, a major proportion had badly worn tires which likely accounted for a lot of the difficulties.

"This is why," he said, "without being considered an alarmist, I believe it is good sound safety policy for car owners to take the step of making their cars safe from the tire standpoint as well as to have good brakes, good lights and to drive carefully. We offer a free inspection that puts the motorist under no obligation to trade with us because we are, as tire experts, interested in the business of safer driving."

Court Notes

Howard Cramblitt 47, Sawtelle, was committed to the county jail for 60 days on a charge of disturbing the peace by Judge Chris Pann of Huntington Beach yesterday. Deputy Sheriffs R. E. Steinberger and James Workman brought Cramblitt to the jail last night.

Floyd Calhoun, 35, 1615 1-2 Durant street, was booked at the county jail last night by Deputy Sheriff James Musick on a warrant for disturbing the peace, and was released without bond by Judge Kenneth Morrison.

MARCHES OPEN PARK CONCERT BY CITY BAND

BY MRS. RUSSELL ROWLAND

The Santa Ana Municipal band opened the fifth concert of the summer last night with a set of two vigorous military marches, "Pomp and Circumstance," Nos. 1 and 2, by the English composer, Elgar. Next was played "Fra Diavolo" by Auber, the prolific French opera composer. While this overture is military in character, it offered considerable contrast to the Elgar marches.

Out of Rusia came the beautiful melodies that are woven into the waltz "Malaguena," taken from Moszkowski's opera "Boabdil." This was followed by the lively and rhythmic "Cuckoo March" by Goldman.

The first movement of the famous "Unfinished Symphony" of Schubert provided a real thrill for the audience. Musically, it was the most ambitious number on the program, calling upon the full resources of the band. If some of the subtle string effects were lost, it was nevertheless interesting to observe how well an orchestral composition of such magnitude can be handled by a wind-band. Director Auer's musicianship was shown in the way in which he brought out the beautiful melodic ideas.

Victor Herbert's irresistible "March of the Toys" followed. After that Chaminade's "Pas Des Escharpes" (Scarf Dance) was played. The charm and grace of this number are familiar to all.

"Prelude" and "Minuetto" from the Suite "L'Arlesienne" by Bizet were eighth on the program. In the prelude is found an ancient Christmas Song, which is considered one of the finest folktunes in existence. In the minuet is pictured the idyllic charm of the countryside in which the flute solo was especially lovely.

A complete description of "A Trip to Coney Island" by Tobani included boat and train whistles, announcements, a thunder storm, the din and excitement of amusement concessions, the imitation of famous orchestras, fireworks, and even the exclamations of the throng. These things, so graphically portrayed, had a quick appeal for the audience.

Several nationalities were represented on this program, Russian, English, French, Spanish and German. Director Auer is to be complimented on his good taste in the arrangement of these programs, and in the high quality of music he presents.

Air-Conditioned Coach Service In California Starts

The first air-conditioned reserved seat coaches for local train service in California are being placed in service today on the San Joaquin Limited, between Los Angeles and San Francisco, it was announced here today by E. B. Sharpley, Santa Ana representative of the Southern Pacific company.

The weather conditioned cars will add to the comfort of travelers on the daylight trip over the Tehachapi mountains and through the vast agricultural sections of the San Joaquin valley, it was pointed out.

Inauguration of this service follows closely completion of the work of air-conditioning about 80 cars for fast trans-continental trains such as the Sunset, Golden State, Overland and Cascade limiteds of Southern Pacific. On these trains the club, observation, lounge, dining cars were conditioned at a cost of more than $600,000.

VISITOR

Mapping plans for an aggressive campaign throughout Orange county in behalf of his candidacy for lieutenant-governor George J. Hatfield, Republican of San Francisco, former United States attorney for Northern California, visited this section yesterday and conferred with local friends and supporters.

In outlining his campaign platform and his policies if elected, Hatfield took a flat stand against an ad valorem tax and against the activities of Communistic organizations.

"Tax reductions accomplished this year under the Riley-Stewart tax relief plan must be maintained if business is to be aided in its fight for recovery, Hatfield asserted.

"With a state deficit estimated at approximately $31,000,000 and with state expenditures far exceeding state income it is vitally necessary that the interests of the common taxpayer be protected at Sacramento."

Breans Picnic At Long Beach

BREA, July 20.—Families associated here with the Chiksan Tool company, with friends, recently enjoyed an outing at Bixby Park in Long Beach. A basket dinner in the park and swimming were enjoyed.

Attending were Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Cunnings and daughter, Charlotte; Mr. and Mrs. V. J. Kubin, Robert, Adele and Eleanor, and Mrs. Gretta Lackey and her daughter.

The London county council is insisting on the banks of the River Thames being raised in 1500 places in the effort to prevent floods.

BIG INSURANCE PAYMENTS MADE IN TWO CITIES

Fullerton and Santa Ana are included in a group of California cities with the highest total of death payments from insurance policies during 1933, it was learned today from the special "Life payments" number of The National Underwriter, weekly insurance paper.

Orange county received further notice from the insurance policy of Ernest S. Gregory of Fullerton, who left the second largest death payment in the state, with a sum of $287,800. The largest was that of John G. Bullock of Los Angeles, who left $1,690,325. Fullerton, because of Gregory's payment, led Orange county cities wit ha total of $380,000 and ranked as the seventeenth in the state, while Santa Ana was nineteenth with $348,000.

The total payments for California totalled $172,000,000 while policy holders and beneficiaries in the United States and Canada received $3,465,224,187.

Anaheim had total payments of $166,000.

Huntington Beach, the only other Orange county city listed in the magazine, had a total of $43,000.

California as a whole showed an increase of $1,000,000 or one per cent more than the 1932 total of $171,000,000. California ranked fifth in payments among all states, while it is sixth in size of population, the per capita payemnt being $30.35.

Los Angeles led California cities in life insurance payments with $29,211,000 or a three per cent increase over 1932. Los Angeles ranked fifth among all cities in the country. San Francisco was second in the state with $14,841,000 with Oakland third. Other ranking cities were San Diego, Berkeley, Long Beach, Pasadena, Hollywood, Sacramento, Beverly Hills, Glendale, Santa Monica, Fresno, San Jose, Stockton, Piedmont, Fullerton, Altadena, Santa Ana, Santa Barbara, San Bernardino, Huntington Park, Alameda, Palo Alto, Bakersfield, Alhambra, Pomona and Hillsboro.

It was pointed out that although the large individual payments attract much attention, the bulk of life insurance payments are in small amounts that go to the rank and file of the people.

Surprise Celebration Ends With Picnic At Balboa

Starting with an early afternoon luncheon, a celebration of Hobart Jordan's birthday anniversary was staged recently by a group of interested friends. They arrived at the Jordan home, 1606 South Van Ness avenue, with all in readiness for serving a delicious repast with birthday cake as dessert.

Although Mrs. Jordan was not aware of the plans for the party, she had gathered fresh bouquets which made the home attractive for the occasion. The guests presented the birthday celebrant with gifts.

The group concluded the pleasant afternoon by going to Balboa Beach for a picnic supper.

Participating in the event with Mr. and Mrs. Jordan were Messrs. and Mesdames Frank Hunt and son, Frank jr., M. B. Morrison and son, Jerry; J. B. Hamilton, Hal Noel, Mesdames Peggy Melton, Gay Parks, Gladys Camlet; Miss Louella Clark; Alonzo Melton and G. Mott Shephard, all of this city; Mr. and Mrs. Albert Heimer and daughter, Helen, of Long Beach; Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Graves and son, Vernon, of Orange.

Jack Fisher Auxiliary Plans Various Events

Making plans for various events on their summer calendar, members of Women's auxiliary, Jack Fisher chapter, D. A.V., met Wednesday night in Knights of Columbus hall, with Mrs. Mary Fisher, commander, in charge.

Announcement was made of a fourth district picnic to be held Sunday, July 22 at Fourth street park, Ontario. Coffee, cream and watermelon will be furnished by Ontario chapter. All participants are to bring their own luncheons as well as table service.

Plans were made for the next general meeting of the auxiliary, scheduled for Wednesday, August 1, at 6 p.m. at Jack Fisher park. Members are to take covered dishes, bread and butter and table service. Coffee will be served. Games and contests will be provided for children attending.

Tentative arrangements were made for a card party to be held on the evening of Wednesday, August 29 in Knights of Columbus hall.

Applications for membership were accepted from Mrs. Ruth Henle of Santa Ana and Mrs. Ida McClune, Placentia. Reports of committees were given.

After the business meeting, the auxiliary joined the chapter for a social hour at which time the Hon. Sam Collins spoke briefly of his experiences in Washington, D. C. J. Ogden Markel sang "Boy of Mine" and "Just a Cottage Small," accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Marion Mower. Miss Bernice Miles read, "Breaking the News Gently" (Bitney) and "The Colored Lady at the Telephone" (Walter Ben Hare).

Refreshments of cakes and coffee were served by the auxiliary.

Young Couple Wedded In Los Angeles

Announcement was made today by Mrs. G. M. Vann, 107 North Parton street, of the marriage of her daughter, Miss Vivian Vann, to Jack F. Mitchell, son of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Mitchell, 511 Normandy place.

The wedding of the young people was one of quiet simplicity occurring Saturday, June 23 in Los Angeles at the "Wedding Chapel." They have now returned to this city where for the present they are making their home on Normandy place.

Mr. Mitchell, who attended Santa Ana high school, is associated with his father in a machine shop on French street. His bride attended Anaheim high school. Preceding her wedding she was complimented at a number of bridal parties and showers at which she received many lovely gifts to be used and enjoyed in her new home.

Student Recital

Program of Readings

Mrs. C. D. Hicks, teacher of expression, presented the Misses Helen Crowther and Ruth Smith in joint recital recently in Julia Lathrop music room, which had been decorated for the occasion with tall baskets of flowers.

Adding a surprise note to the evening, Mrs. Hicks presented Master Billy Davis, five-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Davis, South Sycamore street, in a series of readings.

Church Societies

Delta Alpha Picnic

Inspired by the summer weather, members of Delta Alpha class of First M. E. Sunday school participated in a delightful park party this week, sharing a picnic supper in Anaheim city park.

Tables were laid in the picnic grounds with their sheltering sycamore trees, and places were indicated for 33 class members. The occasion was a "home-coming" for several members who were given enthusiastic welcome after extended absences. Among them were Mrs. Ina Glasscock who had been in Redlands for several years while her daughter, Miss Thelma Glasscock, attended Redlands university; Miss Cora Craig, recuperating from a prolonged illness, and the Misses Nellie O'Brien and Mamie Lamb who had been on the absent list for some time.

Several special guests were welcomed also, the list including the Rev. George A. Warmer, pastor of the church, Mrs. Warmer, Charles, Florence and Craig Warmer, Mrs. Ida Confer and Messrs. Arthur Confer and A. L. DeBarr.

Sisters Welcome Fifty Friends to Bridge Tea

The hospitality of the George Dunton home, 1532 East Fourth street, was extended to half a hundred young people Wednesday afternoon when the Misses Barbara and Betty Dunton joined in entertaining their schoolmates and other friends at a bridge tea. Miss Betty Dunton has completed her second year studies at Pomona college, and Miss Barbara Dunton is a student at Santa Ana Junior college.

Mrs. Dunton assisted her attractive daughters in receiving guests and in carrying out other pleasant duties of the afternoon. Bright-hued zinnias arranged about the spacious rooms provided setting for bridge tables where the card contest was soon in progress.

Prizes for scoring first and second high in contract went to Miss Mary Nau and Miss Mary Tuthill. Miss Janet Diehl and Miss Valerie Demetriou held first and second high scores in auction.

The hostesses invited their guests to the sun room for the refreshment hour, at which time the Misses Mary Helen Bell and Ruth Warner poured tea from a prettily laid table centered with pompon zinnias. Sandwiches, cakes, cookies and nuts were served.

YOU and Your Friends

Miss Alice Hanson, 2648 Riverside drive, is recuperating from a three week's illness.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wones arrived unexpectedly Wednesday from their home in Redwood City for a visit with Mrs. Wones' mother, Mrs. Martha Taylor, 820 Riverine avenue, and brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Taylor, El Toro.

Miss Elizabeth Phillips of San Francisco, formerly of this city where she was secretary at the board of education office, was the guest this week of her sister, Mrs. H. B. Anderson of Monroe street, west of the city. Yesterday she called on old friends here of her mother, the late Mrs. Cornelia Hunt Phillips, before leaving for San Marino to visit her sister, Mrs. Fred Dodge (Helen Phillips).

Mrs. Sarah House, 1031 Fairview street, entertained as guests yesterday, her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. E. V. Cox and a brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Widerfelt, all of Long Beach.

Mrs. Estelle Gray of this city, department president of W.R.C., and Mrs. Gladys McDonald of Orange, department secretary, were in Glendale today attending a reception in their honor. The two will go to Torrance tomorrow to institute a new Relief Corps which they organized yesterday.

Mrs. C. S. Crookshank, Lemon Heights, returned yesterday morning from the east where she spent the past three months. She was in Chicago for two months, visiting with her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Cohen and attending the exposition. En route west, Mrs. Crookshank stopped at Greeley, Colo. for a month's stay with another brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Whitney. She traveled by train.

Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Gulledge 1338 West Seventh street, had as guests in their home yesterday Mrs. Gulledge's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Pistole, and the Misses Madge and Barbara Nell Tremor and Dorothy Mathews, all of San Diego.

Mrs. F. D. Hawkinson, 412 West Second street, left Monday by bus for Denver, Colo., to visit with relatives. She plans to be gone three weeks or longer.

Mr. and Mrs. Carey Haynes and daughter, Miss Margaret Haynes, 617 Cypress avenue, have returned home from Happy Camp Calif., where they spent the past month with Mr. and Mrs. O. J. Schaap. Mrs. Schaap is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Haynes.

Announcements

W. R. C. Federation No. 1, of which Mrs. C. F. Millen of this city is president, will meet Monday at 10 a. m. at La Habra Masonic hall. Luncheon at noon will be served by La Habra corps.

Social section of Santa Ana Woman's club will meet Tuesday at 12:30 p. m. for a picnic luncheon with Mrs. J. D. Watkins, 2050 Ocean boulevard, Balboa Beach.

Out Of Town Friends Share Anniversary Dinner

Inviting a little group of out of town friends to their home, 408 East Myrtle street, Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Bennett recently entertained with a daintily appointed dinner in celebration of their silver wedding anniversary.

The hosts observed a white and silver theme in all decorations, centering a large table with a handsome wedding cake frosted in white and mounted on a white and silver standard. Tall white tapers tied with silver ribbons rose from cut glass candlesticks. Nut cups, place cards and other details conformed to the appropriate theme.

Silver salad forks, teaspoons and cake server, with a large bouquet of flowers, were presented to Mr. and Mrs. Bennett on behalf of the guests. They included Mr. and Mrs. M. L. King of Pasadena, Mr. and Mrs. C. N. Schmidt, Mr. and Mrs. L. Hesseltine and Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Priestly of Ontario.

EAT AND GROW SLIM

Luncheon

Salad Plate:
1 large tomato
2 Tbsps. any cooked green vegetable
½ tsp. grated onion
2 Tbsps. diced cold meat
Diet mayonnaise
2 toasted crusts, dry
Iced tea with lemon and saccharin
Calory total 250

This is a love of a luncheon for a hot day. Feed the family and shoo them out, then take your own delicious salad from the refrigerator, put salad, toast and iced tea on a tray, get that story you didn't finish last night and settle down in the coolest corner in the house for 30 minutes, although an hour is better, and you will have enough gimp to last the day out.

Scald and peel the tomato. Scoop out the pulp, leaving a shell to fill. String beans, green peas . . . anything left from dinner will do. Mix it with seasonings and diet mayonnaise (mineral oil) and combine with the diced meat or half of a hard boiled egg, diced. Fill the tomato, arrange on lettuce with the sliced pulp at the side and put a dab of mayonnaise on top for good luck.

This is one place you can use the two crusts from the sliced bread loaf. Toast them to a crisp brown and cut in fingers while still hot and moist.

How about counting your own calories- You can do the job just as well as I can if you will send a stamped, self-addressed envelope and a copy of a favorite recipe. The calory list contains 330 food items listed in terms you can see at a glance.

A One-Dish Meal

2 pounds hamburger
1 large onion
2 Tbsps. bacon fat
1 can corn
1 package broad noodles, boiled
—Contributed Recipe.

Dice the onion and fry in the hot fat for 10 minutes. Pinch off bits of hamburger and fry until the red leaves the meat. Add the can of corn, the cooked noodles, and cook gently for a few minutes. Turn into a buttered baking dish and bake 45 minutes in a slow oven.

If you have a cupful of brown gravy, add it to this dish, and with it a half can of tomato hot sauce or mushroom sauce. Buttered crumbs make a crusty appetizing top when the dish is to be served immediately.

With this dish you might serve a stuffed tomato salad . . . the one used in the diet menu today, only the diced meat should be left out. The dish serves six, generously. The calory value per serving is about 460.

Wouldn't both the one-dish meal and the stuffed salad be grand food to take on a picnic? The hot dish could be kept hot, wrapped in many thicknesses of paper. The chilled salads, nested in a covered dish, would still be cold, if wrapped in paper. But do make your coffee on a camp fire or it isn't a picnic.

Popular Teacher Weds Long Beach Man In Las Vegas Rites

Mrs. Mabel A. Madden, 428 West Washington avenue, today announced the marriage of her daughter, Miss Mary Louise Young, to Carl D. Sanborn of Long Beach, an event of Sunday, July 15.

It was in Las Vegas, Nev., that the young people took their wedding vows. They were accompanied to that city by Mr. Sanborn's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Linsey of Pasadena, who were their attendants at the quiet rites. The Rev. W. L. Summers, pastor of the Las Vegas M. E. church, South, read the marriage service, for which Miss Young was costumed in navy blue crepe with all dress accessories in the same deep hue.

The new Mr. and Mrs. Sanborn returned to Long Beach, deferring their honeymoon until August when Mr. Sanborn will have his vacation from duties with the Continental Baking company. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Sanborn of Pasadena, and had his education in eastern schools before the family came to California. His bride followed graduation from Santa Ana High school with a course at U. C. L. A. Since completion of college work she has been a valuable member of the teaching staff at Julia Lathrop Junior high school, work which she will resume in September, dividing her time between Santa Ana and Long Beach.

Coincident with announcement of the wedding, friends of the bride began making plans for post-nupital parties to compliment Mrs. Sanborn, who is popular in school and social circles here.

They will return Saturday evening and while away will visit with the families of Rev. and Mrs. A. F. Laing and Mr. and Mrs. Perry Chansler, all of whom are camping at Big Bear.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cain and their son Raymond and daughter Frances have moved to Pomona where Mr. Cain is to be employed. They were former residents at the Diamond Bar ranch and the son and daughter are graduates this year of the Brea-Olinda union high school.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Wakeman are moving shortly from the property at the corner of Birch and Orange to the J. E. Reed house on South Seivers. Mr. and Mrs. M. G. McMahon, the former cashier in the Oilfields National bank, will move from the Reed property to the Walker Davis property on West Imperial highway, the Davis family having moved to Glendale where Mr. Davis is employed in a bank.

J. A. McCabe, L. O. McCabe and Mrs. Myrtle Bachman are receiving a visit from their sister, Mrs. Harriet Stubbs of Clarendon, Tex., and from their sister-in-law, Mrs. J. H. McCabe of Amarillo, Tex. Mrs. McCabe is accompanied by her son and daughter, Raymond and Helen McCabe. The brothers had not seen their sister for more than 20 years.

PATTERN 1876

BY ANNE ADAMS

When you come right down to it, it is really a very small cape . . . but what a difference it makes in the frock. It "dresses" a woman for the street. Makes her look more formally clad and feel even more so. Choose your fabric and color right and you can make this frock do double duty. For instance, if you make it of china blue cotton or linen or silk crepe you can wear it with a navy blue hat and little cape, and go almost anywhere on a warm afternoon. Without the cape and hat it becomes the nicest sort of an outfit in which to play a game of tennis.

Pattern 1876 is available in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40. Size 16 takes 3 1-4 yards of 36 inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins o rstamps (coins preferred) for this Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

The smartest warm weather fashions, the newest fabrics, and the Summer season's outstanding accessories are illustrated and described in the NEW ANNE ADAMS PATTERN BOOK FOR SUMMER. ORDER YOUR COPY OF THIS HELPFUL NEW SUMMER BOOK. PRICE OF BOOK FIFTEEN CENTS. BOOK AND PATTERN TOGETHER, TWENTY-FIVE CENTS.

Walnut Cracking Plant May Be Established Here

NEW VENTURE WOULD EMPLOY 100 PERSONS

ORANGE, July 20.—A large walnut cracking plant which will employ 100 women for a period of five months, may be established in Orange this year, it became known today, with the construction of a large addition to the Rosenberg Bros. and company packing plant and the arrival of $15,000 worth of new machinery.

Whether or not the plant will be placed in operation during the coming walnut harvest, starting about September 1, could not be learned, but all necessary preparations are going forward and the new industry is considered a strong probability for the near future.

A new walnut cracking machine has been received by the Rosenberg plant, a large new cleaner is to be installed, and two large stamping machines, to imprint the name of "Ensign" brand upon first grade walnuts shipped by the house, were unloaded yesterday.

Eighteen workmen are engaged in constructing the new plant extension, 50 feet by 100 feet, at the north end of the packing house which is located on the Santa Fe tracks immediately west of the depot, for which a building permit was recently taken out. Nearly all of the workmen are Orange residents, it is said. The building is to be completed by August 5.

The building, comprising 5000 additional square feet of floor space, is being built in preparation for establishment of the cracking plant, it is understood, and will be used to handle the entire cracking operations of the Rosenberg company in Southern California, with nuts arriving at the plant from some 3000 acres of groves from Ventura to San Diego.

The local plant was established in Orange four years ago and last year processed 2385 tons of walnuts. During the walnut harvest, employment is provided regularly to 20 men and 60 women for a period of three months. With establishment of the cracking plant employment will be provided for 100 additional women, it is expected, with operations lasting five months.

The local plant is one of 34 walnut and fruit houses maintained by the Rosenberg company, and before moving to Orange was located in Fullerton and Los Angeles. The manager of the plant is S. K. Watters, who has been manager of the Southern California walnut house of the company since its establishment in Fullerton in 1919.

A light walnut crop is anticipated this year, but additional acreage has been signed up, so that shipments of better than 2000 tons of nuts are anticipated.

Unemployed To Operate Shoe Shop

ORANGE, July 20.—Plans for a shoe repairing shop to be located in Santa Ana under the direction of the Cooperative Workers' Relief of Orange, were discussed at a meeting of the organization, held last night at the headquarters on West LaVeta avenue. The shoe repairing department which was allotted to the local exchange by the government, will involve an expenditure of approximately $2400, and will supply the 13 other exchange units in this territory.

During a business meeting, in charge of C. E. McKean, president and manager of the Cooperative Workers' Relief of Orange, it was voted to have a business meeting the first and third Thursdays of each month and a social meeting the second and fourth Thursdays of each month.

At the close of the meeting, guitar music was provided by T. Gist, after which refreshments of home made sake and coffee were served by Mrs. Agnes Melton.

ORANGE PERSONALS

ORANGE, July 20.—Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Courtney, of El Centro, who have been visiting in the home of the former's mother, Mrs. Angeline Courtney of 273 South Lemon street, left Thursday for Fresno where they will remain for awhile. They will return to Orange later in the summer.

MISS BEYMER BECOMES BRIDE OF E. M. GRAHAM

EL MODENA, July 20.—Of interest to El Modena friends will be the news of the marriage in Riverside Sunday of Miss Mildred Lucille Beymer, daughter of Mrs. Charles Ford Beymer, and Everett Martin Graham, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Graham of San Jose.

Dr. James Lewis Gillies of the M. E. church, read the service in the rose garden at the home of the bride's cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Lawrence, 1819 Chicago avenue, Riverside, in the presence of about seventy relatives and friends of the couple.

The bride wore a gown of white taffeta, trimmed with silk net, and a hat of maline. She carried a bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley. She was given in marriage by her father's only brother, William J. Beymer of Lynwood. Her attendants were her sister, Miss Marie Beymer as maid of honor, and Miss Marguerite Crayson as bridesmaid. Neil Beymer, brother of the bride, was best man.

Miss Gladys Sieber of Los Angeles played "Adoration" (Felix Borowski) as a violin solo before the ceremony, with Miss Ruth Graham, sister of the bridegroom, accompanying her. Miss Graham also played the Lohengrin and Mendelssohn wedding marches. A reception at the home of the bride's mother, 2089 Orange street, followed the pretty ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Graham will go to San Jose to make their home about August 1, after spending their honeymoon in the mountains. The bride's going away gown was of blue printed crepe, with white accessories.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Graham and Miss Ruth Graham of San Jose, Mr. and Mrs. George Graham and daughter, Barbara, of Santa Barbara, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Beymer of Lynwood, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Beymer and children of Orange, Mr. and Mrs. Chester Beymer and son of Fresno, and Mr. and Mrs. Chester Stearns of Orange.

NOMINATE OFFICERS OF AMERICAN LEGION POST

ORANGE, July 20.—Nomination for officers featured last night's meeting of the Orange American Legion post, with the election scheduled for Thursday evening, August 16. Additional nominations may be made prior to that time.

Among the nominations made last night were the following: For commander: Bob Steele, Ewald Weigner and Herbert Batterman; for first vice commander, Ed Wescott; for second vice commander, Dayton Ditchie; for adjutant, A. R. Benson, Ed Fisher, and Ed Wescott; for sergeant at arms, Charles Olson; for historian, George Carlson and Bob Phillips.

Under the Legion rules, no nominee may retire at the time of his nomination, and the lists are held open for additional nominations until the August 16 meeting when the election will take place.

The speaker of last night's meeting was Dr. E. L. Russell, of the Orange county health department, who spoke on the recent infantile paralysis epidemic, and reported the "situation well in hand."

CONFIDENCE IS RECOVERY AID, SPEAKER SAYS

ORANGE, July 20.—"Confidence in the government and industry is the only way the United States can come out of the depression," stated Congressman Sam Collins when he addressed members of the Orange Rotary club Thursday noon at their regular dinner meeting, held in the American Legion clubhouse.

Collins further declared that "The citizens of the United States must stop, look and listen before proceeding much further in the course the country is taking, as communistic influences have been felt in legislation as well as in the strikes."

He stated that the government of the United States in the past has afforded more advantages to the workingman than elsewhere. He also related that this enviable position was not the result of experimenting in government. 'Prohibition failed because of the failure on the part of the people to teach temperance. Because of the eighteenth amendment, it was taken for granted; thus the benefits and privileges of our government must not be taken for granted, but must be taught to the younger generation, with a challenge to those attacking the government."

George J. Hatfield, candidate for lieutenant governor of California, presented a short talk, during which he stated that the growth of strikes in California is due to a communistic influence.

A program of dancing was presented under the direction of Miss Dorothy Hinkley and six of her dancing pupils of Long Beach.

YOUNG PEOPLE OF CHURCH IN ANNUAL MEET

ORANGE, July 20.—A large crowd was in attendance at the annual young people's meeting of the missionary society of the First Presbyterian church, which met Thursday afternoon in the church parlors.

A play, "The Other Mary," was beautifully portrayed under the direction of Miss Shirley Haynes. The role of "Womanhood," was played by Miss Katherine Ferne Summner; "Mary," Miss Joe Green; "Lydia," a seller of purple; Miss Barbara Sutherland; "A Woman of Ephesus," Miss Wilma Stanfield; "Bertha," a Frankish Princess, Miss Elizabeth Lowry; "Aletta," Miss Evelyn Estes; "Ann Hutchinson," Miss Juanita Stanfield; "Ann Judson," the first missionary, Miss Henrietta Campbell; "A Modern Missionary," Miss Helen Lusn.

Devotions were led by Miss Henrietta Settle, while Miss Dulcie Green, accompanied at the piano by Miss Joe Green, sang, "Hold Thou My Mand," by Main.

During a business meeting in charge of Mrs. William Sutherland, it was announced that the next meeting will be held at the old Flippen ranch on East Chapman avenue, August 16. Mrs. C. B. Harper will be in charge.

At the close of the meeting, delicious refreshments were served in the church patio by Mrs. Jerome Westfall.

VILLA PARK

VILLA PARK, July 20.—Miss Betty Kyme, Miss Helen Louise McManus and Tom McManus of Pasadena were guests Sunday of Jack Rasch at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Rasch.

Miss Mary Spennetta and Paul Spennetta are guests of relatives in San Diego. Miss Mary will spend two weeks with her grandmother, Mrs. Chewning.

Recent guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry R. Tritt were Mrs. Tritt's father, R. H. Gilman of Redondo Beach; Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Gilman jr. and children of Laguna Beach, and Mr. and Mrs. Hammond of Fullerton.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph W. Cruzen and children returned home a few days ago after spending ten days at Rock Creek, near Bishop.

Plan Joint Meeting For C. E. Youth

ORANGE, July 20.—A joint meeting of all high school and college Christian Endeavor societies of the Christian churches of Southern California will be held Sunday afternoon and evening at the local First Christian church, it was announced by the Rev. Franklin Minck, pastor.

A reception will be held at the parsonage, on East Chapman avenue, between 4 and 6 o'clock, after which a combined meeting will be held, under the direction of Miss Cecil Nichols.

DARLING FOOL

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Monnie O'Dare, beautiful, poor and 20, is in love with Dan Cardigan, heir to one of the local fortunes. Dan professes to love her but is often neglectful. When she needs a friend Charles Eustace comes to her aid. Monnie believes Sandra Lawrence, in Dan's own set, is trying to win him from her. Bill, Monnie's older brother, plans to marry Angie Gillen, who works in a candy store, as 'soon as Angie gets a divorce.

Kay O'Dare, 16 and still in high school, is discontented with poverty. At a dinner party at Charles' house Monnie is heartsick when she accidentally sees Dan kiss Sandra. Hetty, a housemaid at the Lawrences, dislikes Sandra.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER X

There was the music, restless, throbbing; a tenor, wailing into a microphone:

"Anything you say, anything you do, Da-da, da-da-da,"

Monnie, dancing with Charles, lifted her head proudly, smiling. If her heart ached no one should know it. Charles asked, "Tired?" and she answered him gayly. Her tone couldn't have been entirely convincing, because he went over and shut off the radio.

Sandra pouted. "I like that! Just when I was teaching Danny a new step!"

Charles seemed not to hear. He clapped his hands and the Chinese boy, Kong, he had brought with him to Belvedere, appeared in the doorway, smiling faintly.

"How about some food, Kong?"

Dan glanced at his watch. "It's 12, Sandra."

In a low tone, Monnie told Charles she really must go. He put a warm brown hand on hers for an instant.

"Do you mean that?"

She did. So the houseboy was dismissed for the night, and presently Monnie found herself crowded in with Charles in the front seat of his car, Kay beside them.

Kay said, prettily, schoolgirl fashion, that she had had a beautiful time. She had "loved every minute of it." At the door, Charles detained Monnie for a moment.

"And you?"

"It was fun," Monnie told him. She thought Charles hesitated for a split second. Then he told her slowly, "We must do it again some time. I like that small sister of yours. She's charming."

"Everyone likes Kay." So that was the way of it, Monnie thought. Charles Eustace and Kay. Well, that was all right, too. Kay would be 17, soon. Kay was beautiful, too beautiful for her own good in this narrow-minded small town. It would be marvelous to see Kay have her chance.

They said good night then and the two girls drifted upstairs. Kay was far too excited to sleep. She came to sit on the edge of Monnie's bed, brushing that incredibly fine-spun golden hair of hers.

"Isn't he just too grand?"

"Charles? Yes. Wonderful," returned Monnie quietly.

"No, not him," cried Kay, heedless of grammar. "I mean the boy friend—the broker from the big city. Is he smooth!"

"Oh. I didn't notice."

Kay continued to wield the brush for a few moments without speaking. Then, abruptly, she burst out, "I hope you see now that Sandra Lawrence is the kitty-cat I always told you she was."

Monnie shrugged. "Does it matter?"

"Not in the least," Kay told her loftily. She's been racketing around the world for years now and hasn't even snatched herself a husband. I think she's getting scared and so has decided to work on something simple like Dan Cardigan."

"Do you think Dan's to be had—just for the snatching?" Monnie asked quietly. There was a slow, dull pain in her breast.

"Any of 'em are," chattered Kay, smearing cold cream into her exquisite skin and staring at herself in the mirror. "You just have to know the rules of the game."

"You mean I don't?"

Kay gave her sister an appraising glance. "I guess you know 'em all right but the trouble is you let your feelings get involved. That's bad."

"Laugh at me if you like," Kay advised equably. "But I know my stuff. I'll prob'ly get what I want. I'm—what d'you call it?—ruthless. You're too worried about the other fellow's feelings. It doesn't pay."

"Do you mind if I turn out the light, Kay," Monnie asked her abruptly. If she heard much more of this, the tears that had been threatening her all evening would be sure to overtake her.

Kay was asleep in three minutes. Monnie could hear her soft breathing.

She lay awake as the moon climbed high into the summer heavens. Sandra and Dan, Sandra and Dan, Sandra and Dan—She kept seeing them together.

Hetty, the maid, untied her apron strings and wadded the white object into a ball. Staring after the car that carried Sandra and Dan Cardigan off into the summer night, she looked furiously discontented. She waited until the roar of the motor dwindled in the distance. Then, with her small head cocked, bird-like, on one side, she listened cautiously for the other sounds of the household. Cook was whistling softly to herself below-stairs and there was the irritating tinkle of water from a half-closed tap. Otherwise all was silent. In this new and rather imposing house of the Lawrences everything was luxuriously perfect. There was deep piled rugs and formally draped curtains. "The decorator's dream," Sandra called it, pretending to scorn it but honestly proud of its richness and dignity.

Now Hetty moved on noiseless feet in the direction from which Sandra had just come. Sandra's room, the door flung wide, was like its owner—poised and elegant. She had planned all the decorations and the room was a symphony in white and red. Dull, creamy velvet and satin had been used for the upholstery of small chairs and the low chaise by the window. The curtains were of lacquer red, against Venetian blinds of soothing creaminess. There were no pictures, save a subdued Marie Laurencin in one corner, brooding over Sandra's modern dressing table with its angled mirrors and crimson bottles.

In all this daring purity, Hetty's black frock was like a blotch of ink. Arms akimbo, the maid surveyed the scene. She shut the door soundlessly behind her and advanced into Sandra's domain, her eyes flickering with repressed emotion — anger, resentment or mere ill-temper, one could not be sure which.

She tiptoed to the dressing table, sat down on the bench where only a few moments ago its mistress had preened herself and stared at the mirror. Discontented with what she saw there, Hetty clicked her tongue impatiently against her teeth and began to investigate the contents of the many small bottles and jars with which the table was littered.

She tried the effect of a carmine stain on her cheek and smiled. She unscrewed the cap from a tube of lip-paste and smeared this generously against her rather thin mouth. Then she used an eyebrow brush she found in a drawer. She dusted her sallow cheeks and nose with delicately scented powder and sprayed a mist of flower fragrance against her shoulder as she had seen motion picture actresses do.

She minced over to the clothes closet where on padded hangers and crystal shelves were disposed the impedimenta of Sandra's elegance. A cloudy blue chiffon frock she snatched from its transparent protector, holding it against her lean young girl's shape to see how it became her.

A sound came from downstairs—something that sounded like the bellow of an infuriated bull. Startled, the maid fled on the now crumpled apron, crammed the blue frock hastily back into its place, made a wild sweep at her rather bizarre countenance with a duster she snatched from nowhere at all, and flew out on the landing.

"Hetty! Hetty! Where are you?"

"You've been at it again. I knew it! Mark my words, you'll get the gate with your nonsense."

Hetty said sullenly, "Don't know what you're talking about."

"Don't you, eh? Snooping around the young madam's room and tryin' on her things! Can't I smell her perfumery? And your face! Go wash it in the pantry this minute. The mister just phoned he's bringing some men to dinner. Fine business if you turn up looking like a floozie."

Hetty showed herself at the kitchen door a few moments later, clean and chastened. But Mrs. Peterman was still grumbling.

"You'll find yourself out of a job one of these days and no two ways about it. With things the way they are I can't understand what's got into you. You won't get another place like this—not in a good while!"

"I hate this place," Hetty spat out.

"Oh, you do, miss? Well, isn't that just too bad? I know what's eating you, I do. Just because James is polite to the young lady and she to him you're jealous as a wild cat. I never heard such nonsense. Suppose you think you can tell your betters how to behave themselves!"

"She'd better watch herself, that's all I say," muttered Hetty, spearing balls of butter viciously from their bath of ice water and disposing them on the small crystal plates.

"Girls nowadays are out of their minds, that's all," Mrs. Peterman pursued, flinging open the oven door to peer in at the sizzling roast. "Don't know when they're well off. What do you want to bother with James for, anyhow? He looks nice all dressed up in his driver's uniform but what that gets you, I don't know."

"Thanks for the ad!" A tall youth, rakishly attired in a smart chauffeur's outfit in hunter's green, grinned at the two women from the doorway. "When do we eat?"

THE WEEKLY PANTRY SHELF

NEW BOOKS IN PUBLIC LIBRARY

BY VERNA RAMSEY

All that now remains of Samuel Hadlock of Maine, showman extraordinary is related to us by Rachel Field. She says it is "a gold snuff box; a silhouette cut in London in 1824; an old compass, maps, and a chart; a marriage certificate in German script; and two tattered copybooks crowded with faded entries in a vigorous Spencerian hand; these and a story of romantic adventure and love and tragedy."

That story Miss Fields tells in "God's Pocket," with the help of the showman's diary. Samuel Hadlock jr. was born about 1792 in Cranberry Isles, Maine. He took up sealing and whaling in the far north. Tiring of this, he conceived the idea of touring the fairs of Europe with a show. Accompanied by two Eskimos and with an exhibition of native weapons, utensils, and relics, he left for the continent. His success was phenomenal. Kings and queens and rogues alike fell under the spell of his colorful personality.

The journal of his adventures was loaned to Miss Field by Hadlock's grandson. It is a record of sights seen in the villages and courts of Europe; of meetings with ropalty; of the showman's love for a "Prussian lady"; of the keen observation of a man whose imagination was quickened by any deviation from the human pattern. The quaint spelling adds to the charm of the diary.

The title of the book has a place in the atmosphere of the story. Miss Fields says she chose "God's Pocket" for the title because "it was an actual phrase used by the old man and seemed to belong to that northern cove and the loves and journeyings and strange enterprises of an island man in that small pocket of eternity which each of us fills for a lifetime."

Dr. W. F. G. Swann is known to be a vivid and witty expositor of recent developments in science as well as a physicist who has made noteworthy contributions in his field. In "The Architecture of the Universe" he lives up to his reputation both for mastery of his subject and for skill in presenting it.

The book is intended primarily for the educated layman. Many readers who have no special knowledge of physics or mathematics are nevertheless interested in the broad features of the design of the physical world and especially the significance of man's endeavor to understand that design.

The style is informal and popular. The author's fresh viewpoint and his vivacity and freshness of illustration make his chapters both stimulating and entertaining. He discusses medieval and modern dogmas in natural philosophy; the dawn and development of the modern era; the nature of matter; the development of the atomic theory; modern atomic theories; certain principles in physics; the fate of the universe; dimensions; the theory of relativity; space and time; vital processes and science and theology.

The situation in attempting to understand the principles of the physical world, Dr. Swann compares to that encountered in contemplating a great architectural structure. It is possible to comprehend the general lines of the structure without that technical knowledge of the methods of mixing cement necessary to the builder. The explanations and illustrations given in this book will immeasurably widen the horizon of the reader's thoughts regarding the architecture of the universe.

In these times of trying circumstances, many people are seeking to find work in a new field or to create a new job. This is no simple task. It requires the recasting of old habits into new molds. It requires courage, originality, and no small amount of persistence. Violet Ryder and H. B. Doust present "Make Your Own Job" in the hope that it will be of practical assistance to such individuals.

The experiences of 50 men and women who actually have made their own jobs have been used as a basis for the chapters in this book. The unusual vocations they selected cover a wide range including types of work suitable for men and women of varying age, ability and temperament. The informal style in which the chapters are written has been used with a view to helping the reader visualize the occupations and form some idea of the kind of person likely to be successful in each particular one.

Having taken stock of his equipment—mental and manual as well as the tangible—the individual may proceed to examine the vocations that seem to lie within his powers. He may find one that fits his requirements precisely. Others, using the ideas here set forth as a nucleus, may be able to add new ideas of their own. The underlying principle of each venture described is to find some unusual need that can be filled or some service that can be rendered for which people are willing to pay.

Other new books in the library are:

Daviot, Gordon—Richard of Bordeaux.

Gade, John—The Life of Cardinal Mercier.

Halle, Fannina W.—Woman in Soviet Russia.

Harlow, Alvin F.—Old Waybills.

Miss Adams has just completed a year of teaching in the grade schools in Panama and will return for a second year, having secured another year's leave of absence as art teacher in the Brea elementary schools.

NEGLECT OF COMMON CONSTIPATION IS A SERIOUS MATTER

Prevent This Condition with Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

The first question your doctor asks is whether you are constipated or not. He knows that this condition may cause headaches, loss of appetite and energy, sleeplessness. It is often the starting point of serious illness.

You can prevent and relieve common constipation so easily. Just eat a delicious cereal once a day. Laboratory tests show that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" and vitamin B to aid regular habits. ALL-BRAN is also a rich source of blood-building iron.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that found in leafy vegetables. Within the body, it forms a soft mass. Gently, it clears out the intestinal wastes.

Isn't this "cereal way" safer and far more pleasant than taking patent medicines — so often harmful? Two tablespoonfuls of ALL-BRAN daily are usually sufficient. With each meal in chronic cases. If seriously ill, see your doctor — ALL-BRAN is not a "cure-all."

Enjoy ALL-BRAN as a cereal, or use in cooking. Get the red-and-green package at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Are You Tired by 11:30?

If you begin to get fagged by 11:30—blame your breakfast! Either you didn't give your body enough nourishment, or you didn't give it the right kind.

You're smart enough to give your automobile the right kind of gasoline and oil—why not give your body the right food?

At least one meal a day, especially in this hot weather, eat Shredded Wheat, milk, and fruit—and see how it steps up your efficiency—how much better you feel—how much less you mind the heat!

You won't get tired before meal time if your body is running on Shredded Wheat. It gives you the elements you need for energy, tissue building, resistance to disease, and it contains bran to keep you regular. No wonder it makes you feel fine! Nature might have made a better food than wheat, but she didn't! Start Shredded Wheat today.

THE WEEKLY PANTRY SHELF

Westminster

WESTMINSTER, July 20. — Mrs. Mary Keith of Berkley is a houseguest this week of her sister-in-law, Mrs. Vorginia Patterson, having come south Monday with her daughter, Miss Virginia Carlyle, who is on a vacation at Balboa.

Word has been received here of the transfer of George Bitts, former local resident, by the Commerce Discount and Acceptance company in the Los Angeles branch of which he has been for several years, to San Francisco where he has gone.

Miss Elizabeth Phillips of Oakland has been spending a few days here this week with her sister, Mrs. H. B. Anderson and family and calling on old friends.

Dinner guests in the home of Mrs. John M. Angell the first of the week included Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Harper and two children, Jack and Edward of Bellflower and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Ferguson of Azusa.

A. D. Baker and son, A. D. Baker jr., of Hemet were calling on former Westminster friends Wednesday. The men who are former local residents are spending a few days in this vicinity while enjoying the fishing from the Huntington Beach barge.

C. F. Day of Corona is a guest of his sons, O. J. and Clyde Day, and families this week.

WESTMINSTER

WESTMINSTER, July 20.—Elsworth and Loyal Skinner have spent three days with their families here from Coalinga, returning north, Tuesday, a days' fishing from the barge was enjoyed by Mr. and Mrs. Elsworth Skinner and their nephew, Robert Rumbould, the latter of whom captured a 17 pound halibut.

Miss Camille Christopher spent Wednesday and Thursday of this week in Los Angeles where she took her state examination to get her license as beauty operator. Miss Christopher has attended a beauty academy in Santa Ana the past seven months. Miss Christopher spent the nights of her absence while taking the examination with her grandmother at South Gate.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Borchard of Anaheim were entertained Tuesday evening in the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Eder.

LA HABRA

LA HABRA, July 19.—Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Earl and two daughters, Virginia and Eleanor, of Indianapolis, Ind., arrived to visit with Mrs. Earl's two sisters, Mrs. Sam Sharp and Mrs. A. J. Cookerly, of La Habra. Yesterday, accompanied by Mrs. Sharp, the Earls left for a few days' visit to Sequoia National park, and later will drive to interesting points in Southern California. They spent the week-end at Big Bear lake.

Mrs. Anna C. Launer returned to her home on North Main street and East Erna avenue Monday for a three-month visit with her sister and two brothers in Highland, Ill., and other relatives in St. Louis, Joplin and Clayton, Mo. Her trip also included a visit to the world's fair. Mrs. Launer attended the fairs of 1904 at St. Louis and 1915 in San Francisco. It was her first visit in the east in 23 years.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Luehm and family, Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Schuepback and son, Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Welch and two daughters and Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Davis and two sons of La Habra returned yesterday from a vacation stay at Corona Del Mar.

June Upton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. . O. Upton, of Mt. View drive, has recovered from the measles.

Mrs. Charles Norton, who has been ill at her home on East Ocean avenue the past month, must remain at home for several more weeks. Yesterday her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Maitre sr., of Los Angeles, arrived to stay with her.

BARBER CITY

BARBER CITY, July 20.—Late arrivals from the state of Colorado, Mr. and Mrs. Whitacre, have taken the J. M. Swayer house, corner Jane and Barber streets, Barber City and are now occupying it.

Word was received here Monday that Homer Hilborn who with Mrs. Hilborn, is spending the summer in their former home town of Portal, South Dakota, had a stroke on July 9, that leaves him practically helpless on one side of the body. He is able to walk about a little. Mr. and Mrs. Hilborn expect to return here in September.

Miss Marion Melvin has returned from Long Beach where she was the guest for a week of Mr. and Mrs. Zylstras and family.

Miss Georgia Callison who suffered a severe illness, is improved and is allowed about the house a little now by her physician.

FOR YOUR RECIPE FILE

RIPE PEAR JAM

4 cups (2 lbs.) prepared fruit
7½ cups (3 1/4 lbs.) sugar
1 bottle Certo

Peel, core, and crush completely or grind about thre pounds fully ripe pears. If desired, about three teaspoons spice may be added.

Measure sugar and prepared fruit into large kettle, mix well, and bring to a full rolling boil over hottest fire. Stir constantly before and while boiling. Boil hard one minute. Remove from fire and stir in Certo. Then stir and skim by turns for just five minutes to cool slightly, to prevent floating fruit. Pour quickly. Paraffin hot jam at once. Makes about 11 eight-ounce glasses.

MINT JELLY

½ cup apple vinegar
1 cup water
3-1/4 cups (1 lb. 7 oz.) sugar
green coloring
½ bottle (½ cup) Certo
½ to 1½ teaspoons spearmint extract

Measure vinegar, water and sugar into large saucepan. (Strained juice of two lemons may be substituted for vinegar, then use 1½ cups water.) Mix and bring to a boil over hottest fire. While mixture is coming to a boil, add coloring to give desired shade. Use coloring which fruit acids do not fade. As soon as mixture boils, add Certo, stirring constantly. Then bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard ½ minute. Remove from fire, skim; add extract, according to flavor desired. Pour quickly. Paraffin hot jelly at once. Makes about five eight-ounce glasses.

PEPPER RELISH

3 cups (14. oz.) prepared pepper
6½ cups (2 3-4 lbs.) sugar
1½ cups apple vinegar
1 bottle Certo

Cut open about 1 dozen medium peppers and discard seeds. For best color, use equal amounts green and red sweet peppers. Put through food chopper twice, using finest knife. Drain pulp in sieve.

Measure sugar and vinegar into large kettle. Add prepared pepper, packing it solidly into cup until juice comes to top. Mix well and bring to a full rolling boil over hottest fire. Stir constantly before and while boiling. Boil hard 2 minutes. Remove from fire and stir in Certo. Then stir and skim by turns for just 5 minutes to cool slightly, to prevent floating fruit. Pour quickly. Paraffin hot relish at once. Makes about 9 eight-ounce glasses.

RHUBARB JAM

4 cups (2 lbs.) prepared fruit
7 cups (3 lbs.) sugar
1 bottle Certo

Slice fine or chop about 2 pounds rhubarb. Do not peel. Red-stalked rhubarb gives the best color. If desired, add 1 teaspoon ginger to measured rhubarb.

Measure sugar into large kettle. Add prepared fruit, flooding each solidly packed cup with water. Mix well and bring to a full rolling boil over hottest fire. Stir constantly before and while boiling. Boil hard 3 minutes. Remove from fire and stir in Certo. Skim and pour quickly. Paraffin hot jam at once. Makes about 11 eight-ounce glasses.

TOMATO RELISH

3 cups (1½ lbs.) prepared fruit
6½ cups (2 3-4 lbs.) sugar
1 bottle Certo

Use canned tomatoes or scald, peel and crush about 2½ pounds ripe tomatoes. Boil 4 cups crushed tomatoes 10 minutes, uncovered, stirring occasionally. Add 1-4 cup lemon juice and grated rind of 1 lemon. (For use with meats, add ½ teaspoon rich ground cloves, all-spice and cinnamon, or Worchestershire sauce to taste.)

Measure sugar into large kettle. Add prepared fruit, filling up the last cup with water if necessary. Mix well and bring to a full rolling boil over hottest fire. Stir constantly before and while boiling. Boil hard 2 minutes. Remove kettle from fire and stir in Certo. Skim, pour quickly. Paraffin hot jam at once. Makes about 9 eight-ounce glasses.

SEEK TO RAISE CONCERT FUNDS FOR ANAHEIM

ANAHEIM, July 20.—Solicitation of funds for the presentation of a series of three or possibly four concerts in the park this summer was started here today under a program outlined Wednesday at a meeting of the Merchants and Manufacturers association. It is estimated that $100 will be needed for each program.

Oscar Renner, chairman of the committee named by the chamber of commerce estimates the cost and probable value of the concert series, reported at the meeting that the musical events would more than pay for themselves through benefits derived by the merchants. He pointed out that in former years between 3000 and 4000 people attended every concert presented in the park.

The present program will be in addition to the project for eight proposed concerts submitted to SERA. It was announced at the Wednesday meeting that the proposed concerts to be presented under the Professional, Technical and Women Workers division of SERA would not be available until late in August if at all.

WOULD LIMIT RUM PERMITS FOR ANAHEIM

ANAHEIM, July 20.—Possibility of action being taken to prevent the issuance of additional liquor licenses in Anaheim is looming following the meeting Wednesday of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association. The suggestion that such action be taken was made by L. H. Loudon, president of the group.

It was pointed out that the action, if taken would be for the purpose of making Anaheim a well balanced shopping center that would become the shopping center for Northern Orange county. It also was pointed out that to make the city the mecca for Northern Orange county shoppers the city must be made attractive to women shoppers.

Indication that the merchants, members of the association, would support the plan was seen in discussion of the proposal. Members of the association expressed themselves as feeling that there are now adequate liquor houses operating in the city and that any more might overshadow the merchandising structure to such extent that the town would become less attractive. No action was taken in the matter until the association can investigate the legal phases of the proposal.

A program to make the Merchants and Manufacturers' association self-supporting also was discussed. A plan of dues payment will be worked out by the following committee: Victor Loly, Harry Horn, Sam Hilgenfeld, George Reid and L. H. Loudon. In the past the association has depended on the chamber of commerce for finances.

FLORES ARRAIGNED ON STABBING COUNT

ANAHEIM, July 20.—Antonio Flores, Anaheim Mexican is having his preliminary hearing today before Police Judge Frank Tausch of a charge of assault with a deadly weapon. He is accused of having slashed Ramon Lopez during a drunken brawl at the Lopez home.

The fight in which Flores is alleged to have slashed Lopez occurred last month at the end of a Saturday night drinking bout. According to police Flores attempted to flee after cutting Lopez but was held for police by another man who had been at the Lopez home for a short time.

Both Lopez and Flores were arrested and Lopez served a jail sentence upon his plea of guilty to being drunk. The complaint against Flores was signed by Lopez's wife.

PRIZEFIGHTER GETS 125 DAY SENTENCE

ANAHEIM, July 20.—John Torres, one time Santa Ana prize fighter is in the county jail serving 125 days, the penalty imposed upon him yesterday by Police Judge Frank Tausch after Torres had pleaded guilty to drunken driving. Torres was fined $250 with the alternative of spending 125 days in jail. His operator's license also was suspended for a period of six months.

Charley Rodriquez, 19, Santa Ana, who was arrested with Torres and charged with being drunk, was fined $25 with the alternative of spending 12 1-2 days in jail and chose the jail sentence.

Both men were arrested Wednesday night when patrolmen trailed the car driven by Torres along a wavering route on South Lemon street.

BUSINESS LICENSE RETURNS INCREASE

ANAHEIM, July 20.—"Happy Days Are Here Again" if license fee collections are any indication according to Chief of Police James Bouldin who also is city license collector. Bouldin said today that approximately $5000 had been paid in business licenses up to last night. This amount, he said is greater than any amount collected in business fees since 1929.

License fees payable six months in advance, became delinquent July 15 and a 10 per cent penalty added to the fee. Bouldin pointed out that in addition to collection a greater amount of cash for the present period there were fewer delinquencies and penalties than usual.

FINANCIAL AND MARKET NEWS

NEW YORK STOCKS

NEW YORK, July 20. — (UP) —A mounting bearishness crept ino tshare and commodity markets today and prices were battered down in the most active trading in several weeks.

On the stock market trading was around the million share level—the best trading since early June—with prices 1 to 4 points lower and many issues at new lows for the year.

Rabbits—Under five pounds, live, f. o. b. Los Angeles, 8 and 9 cents.

Live Poultry Comment

LOS ANGELES—An easy and unsettled tone prevailed on Leghorn broilers at listed prices with majority of buyers unwilling to pay over 14 to 15 cents, due to iregular quality of arrivals, and only a few fancy broilers were bringing top price. Demand for ducks was light and some dealers reported purchases at 8 cents for average run with 10 cents paid for top quality. Light Leghorn hens were easy at 11 cents due to poor quality, while good quality, heavy hens were in limited supply and firm. Colored hens were unsettled due to liberal receipts from out of State, including a car of livef rom Kansasand miscellaneous truck arrivals. Hrade lacked snap with buying limited to current needs.

CHICAGO, July 20.—(UP)—Wheat closed 1¾ to 2 cents a bushel lower today on selling induced by a "Modern Miller" report that the government, in its latest crop estimate, had underestimated the witner wheat crop in soft wheat states. Corn and oats were relatively steady, the former closing unchanged to ⅛ cent lower, and the latter off ⅜ to ⅝ cent lower.

A FIGHTING INDIVIDUALIST

His name is Norman C. Norman. He is a manufacturer of jewelry in New York. A bill for $100 to maintain the code authority in the jewelry business touched him off, and his letter is a denunciation and repudiation of the New Deal and all its works.

It is an interesting letter. Norman never signed a code. He never attended a code meeting. He never signed the president's re-employment agreement. He never permitted the Blue Eagle to be hung on his walls. He has been running his business for 46 years without the partnership of Mr. Roosevelt.

The administration has never invested any money in his business. As long as his own money is invested in the business, he will run it just as it has been run for the last 46 years. He refuses to pay the bill, and will fight to the last ditch to maintain his individual rights.

This is all so sincere to the individualist that he finds not a single flaw in the argument. He does not recognize himself to be a part of a society in which people help him to make his money, and in whose interests society has much at stake.

Suppose Mr. Norman pays starvation wages. Suppose he employs children of tender years, and wrecks their health. Suppose by such methods he compels every competitor to run his business in the same unsocial way. And suppose these people whom he exploits get together some night and wreck his plant, will he maintain himself by his own sturdy arm, or will he call on the police or the national guard to vindicate his humanly unchartered rights?

Mr. Norman, to carry out his economic philosophy, ought to move his business away from New York to the lonely Sahara desert or to the unexplored jungles of Central America. There he can be an individualist such as he demands the right to be; but not in New York, not in the United States of America, and not in the inhabited civilized world in the year of our Lord, 1934, nor in the second year of the presidency of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The tragedy of the whole situation is that Mr. Norman does not think of society at all. All his interests center in his own personality. He thinks he has an unanswerable argument, but he is destined for disillusionment before he gets through with his $100 bill.

A GOVERNOR LOSES HIS JOB

The Supreme court of the state of North Dakota hands down a decision that William Langer may no longer be governor of the state, in spite of the fact that he was duly elected to that office, and that in the recent primaries he was renominated by a very large majority of his party to run again for the office.

Governor Langer had been federal relief director for his state. While acting in that capacity he solicited funds from relief workers under him—presumably to run his political campaign. It was found out; and he no longer could serve as federal relief director.

Later he was convicted in a federal court and sentenced to jail for 18 months and ordered to pay a fine of $10,000. That is the reason the Supreme court rules that he may no longer be governor.

But Governor Langer wants to continue as governor, and evidently a lot of people want him to continue as governor. Is it not a bit gratuitous on the part of the gentlemen of the Supreme court of North Dakota to deny him this right?

Many would answer "yes." But that is because they do not think. Even if a majority of the people wanted Mr. Langer to continue as governor, there is undoubtedly a large number, constituting a minority, who do not want a man for governor who has not observed constitutional requirements.

We live under a government of laws and not men. The constitution is above the individual. It is there because the right of every individual under the law must be respected and safeguarded. And when a public official violates that fundamental law, it does not matter whether 95 per cent of the people want him to be their governor. The five per cent under a democracy have rights which no majority can take away from them.

Mr. Langer and his friends may not like it. But that is the only way in which a true democracy can function. If that principle of democracy is subverted, then good-bye to the rights of the humblest and the fewest.

THE FORCE OF PUBLIC OPINION

Every movement of a public character depends for its success or failure upon the attitude of public opinion. Public opinion is elusive. It is difficult to define. It is not easy to forecast its trend.

It is mightier than constitutions or statutes. When Mr. Dooley observed that the Supreme court of the United States always followed the election returns, he described with exactness the power of public opinion.

It is quite evident the strike leaders in the northern section of the coast began to sense that public opinion was swinging against them. With a vast economic power in their hands, they could not use it successfully against a hostile public opinion.

The general strike or the sympathetic strike can never succeed unless the abuses or the injustices which provoke them also arouse the larger public. The average citizen is willing to make sacrifices if he believes that the cause which calls for them is worthy of them. This accounts for the more conciliatory attitude of the strike leaders in the later negotiations.

Each side in the conflict is eager to commend itself to public opinion. In these days arbitrary methods will not go. And that applies to both sides in labor conflicts. Labor may easily lose all that it has gained by headlines. And employers may find themselves forced very much farther than they ever thought of going by arbitrariness.

The force which creates public opinion is often inspired by selfish propaganda. By applying unpopular names, it is easy to conjure up bogies in the public mind. But in the long run, reactions to such unfair propaganda are inevitable. The way of justice and fair play, of conciliation and understanding, is always wise. A victory in a skirmish by unfair means may lead to a rout when the public awakens to the fact that it has been duped.

These are facts which all parties in a conflict should consider. It is a good rule which Emerson laid down, when he said that when two parties are exasperated with each other, it becomes the duty of someone to strike a new note.

MAN LOST IN TELEPHONE BOOTH

We've heard of people who have forgotten they'd left their cars parked downtown and who have gone home and to bed; we read the other day of a man who forgot that he had brought his wife downtown and went home on the street car, leaving her sitting in the parked automobile. But here is a new one: A man who lost himself in a telephone booth. It happened in Chicago, where so many things happen. The man went into the telephone booth and telephoned too long. The drug store closed and he was locked in. He called the police, but since he was unable to give the store's address, the telephone call had to be traced before the police could rescue the man lost in a telephone booth.

Steam Airplanes

New York Times

Impressed by the success of the Besler brothers of California in successfully driving an airplane by steam, the Manchester Guardian wonders if by some odd trick of fate steam power after having "slowly edged off the land and water highways of the earth, should find a new home in the air." There are reasons for such optimism. In South Dakota two Army officers will soon rise, in the largest balloon ever built, into the stratosphere, there to make observations which will add to our knowledge not only of the cosmic rays, but of the air itself. In that cloudless region of thin air and light winds, where one day is like another and where the word "weather" is meaningless, the more imaginative aeronautic engineers see hermetically sealed planes winging their way between Europe and America at speeds of 500 miles an hour. To them breakfast in New York and dinner in London is no wild dream.

One obstacle that stands in the way of the stratosphere airplane is a suitable power plant. The gasoline engine breathes air like a human being. That it may not die at great heights, gasping for oxygen, it must be supercharged," which means that air must be compressed and forced into it. Although the supercharger has been with us ever since the war, its addition to the power plant is coupled with more weight and a heightened complexity. Here we have one reason for looking upon the steam engine with favor. So long as a flame can be kept alight under a flash boiler steam can drive a suitable propeller at any height. And the flexibility of steam and the enormous reserve energy! Efficient as it is, the gasoline engine has nothing to equal its virtues. Boilers and condensers may spell weight, yet such is the progress made with alloys of great strength that the steam engine is no longer the ponderous contrivance it was.

Over a hundred years ago Stringfellow flew a model airplane with steam. Langley's early success with models was also achieved with steam. Hiram Maxim pinned his faith to a 300-horsepower steam engine which was to life the biggest airplane ever built until Curtiss laid down his America for transatlantic flight which the outbreak of the war thwarted. The steam engine has a respectable background, even though it was the gasoline mater repeat iself. For decades flying in the lower atthat gave us the practical airplane. History may yet mosphere had to wait upon the invention of a suitable motor. Now that the upper atmosphere lures the aviator, it is a motor again that presents a major problem.

Revolt Not Censorship

New York Times

The popular uprising against nasty films has brought forth in some quarters a counter-cry of censorship. But it is hard to see how censorship figures in what is essentially a buyers' strike. The leaders of the boycott have not asked for legislation. They are directing their attack against Hollywood's pocket nerve.

Alarmed champions of the free human spirit overlook the fact that legal supervision now exists in the movie industry. Have they never seen the preliminary notice on the screen stating that this show has been passed by the Board of Censors? If anything, the present crusade is a movement away from censorship. As an official institution the censorship has failed. The public is now resorting to the thoroughly democratic weapon of organization and agitation.

Telephone Audiences As Provided In Germany

San Bernardino Sun

Out of tragic Germany comes an amusing story. Foreign correspondents have been told that, "under the law regulating public assemblies," they are forbidden hereafter to carry on telephone conversations in any other than the German language. In a few instances, conversations have been cut off by the police for infringement of the ban.

Asked how the law regulating public assemblage could be applied to telephone calls, the authorities replied:

"There are always more than two. We are listening in."

Three may or may not be a crowd on a telephone line, but in Germany it is an assemblage. And thinking it over, the story isn't so amusing, after all. The constant surveillance it reveals seems a little sickening to an American.

Yosemite on a Stamp

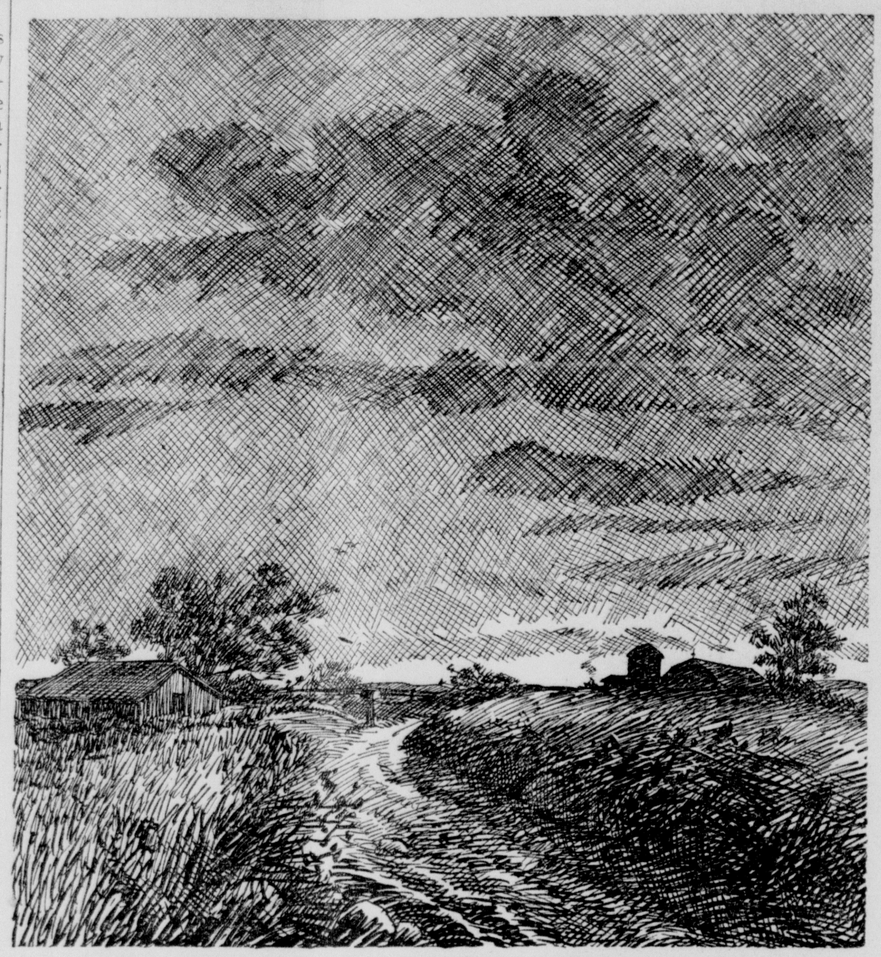

San Francisco Chronicle

The postoffice department is issuing a new series of one-cent stamps to stimulate interest in the national parks. By right of preeminence Yosemite was honored as the first of the series, the design showing a scene of the national park with El Capitan in the foreground.

While it would seem that it needs a wider canvas to reflect the beauty and majesty of our national parks, we have Secretary Ickes' word that the Yosemite issue is the most beautiful he has ever seen.

The first sheet, autographed by Postmaster General Farley, was set aside for President Roosevelt, while philatelists the world over are eager for the new issue.

THE INDIAN PASSES

On learning that members of his race are playing excellent golf.

Long ago I believed that the Indians
Were a race that could not be reclaimed;
That they always would be
Untrammelled and free,
Their proud haughty spirits untamed.
They would not lead the life of a Pale Face
Though they possibly might learn his speech,
And his thoughts and his ways,
To the end of their days
Would be always removed from their reach.

But since I have learned that the Red Man,
Discarding his bow and his spear,
Has learned how to dub
'Round a course with a club
And to master the golfer's career,
I am filled with a sad perturbation,
For a man who can foozle a ball
With a fair show of force
Over bunker and course
Can not be a savage at all.

No man of barbarian temper,
Which he never has learned to discard,
And whose temper is hot
Can learn how to swat
A pellet across a great yard.
If the Red Man can handle a driver
Or land on a green with a spoon,
Or play round in par,
I will bet a cigar
That he's bound to be civilized soon.

Did he fail for it? pop said, and ma said, It made him very thawtful, and a little later a grocer boy passed us, wisseling merrily as he went by in his white apron with his baskit of groceries to deliver, and I said to Willie, Now, Willie, there's an example of a lucky boy, he has werk to do in the werld and he loves it. He's performing a useful function and no doubt helping to support a loving family and at the same time he's out in the sun and air and glad to be alive and in active motion. Now Willie, wich would you rather be, the grocer boy or the little boy in the limmazine? I asked him, ma said.

Do my ears deceive me, or did he say the grocer boy? pop said, and ma said, Well, not quite. What he said in axual werd for werds was, I'd rather be a boy in a white apron wisseling and riding all by myself in a big green automobeel. That's where his sense of values comes in, Willyum. He realized instinctively that the possession of riches is no bar to true happiness as long as you keep a simple hart, ma said.

Thoughts On Modern Life

BY GLENN FRANK

WATCH THE MASS MOOD

Yesterday I indicated how, whether in phases of reaction or revolution or unpredictable uncertainty as now, the mass mood is a conditioning force in the formulation of both political and economic policy.

Today let me say a little more in detail why it is important for us to keep closely in touch with the temper of the masses.

It is important to do this if we are to act effectively in the development of either political or economic policy. And it is quite as important to the business man, industrialist and financier as to the statesman. For a good stretch of years now there has been going on a steady plebeianization of government throughout the world. The man at the bottom of the pyramid has his finger in the pie as never before.

This fact is, in a sense, independent of his formal political status. It is quite as manifest under dictatorship as under democracy. Not even a Mussolini could grind down the masses if he ran Italy solely in the interest of the top four per cent of her people. It may be set down as one of the new axioms of the time that the business man who does not devise policies that make for the security of the many as well as the profit of the few will, in the long run, be bankrupt, and the statesman who does not devise politics that make for the satisfaction of the masses will, sooner or later, be broken.

It may be said that this means the end of the brilliant performance of the independent genius who, in politics and economics, knows better than the crowd what the long-run interests of mankind require. It may be said that this means a short-sighted autocracy of the average and the slowing to a snail's pace of the enterprise of a nation. I do not think so. But, whether we like it or not, this is the imperative of the age in which we live. The crowd is in control.

Luckily, I think, the peculiar nature of an age of science, technology and power production is such that it can be kept a going concern only as the human needs of the swarming millions are served adequately. The business of a mass production age cannot but backfire if a philosophy of the few dominates it. The market of a mass production age dies if the masses lack ample leisure and adequate income. Only through such mass leisure and mass income is mass consumption possible on anything like the scale our productive capacity indicates. The crowd, if I may say it again, is in control. Science and the machine, not the agitators, have put it in control.

This is why it is important, before we buckle down to more specific considerations, to ask what the current temper of the crowd is.

Our Children By Angelo Patri

Dear Children:

I know that you liked to be loved. You would like to be what the girls call "popular." Attention and affectionate service from others makes you feel comfortably warm about your heart and quite naturally you do what you can to win all this. Sometimes you are so afraid that you are not going to win it that you overdo things and make mistakes as when you are forward and bold in the presence of your elders.

Not long ago I saw a little boy make such a mistake and I felt very sorry for him. I knew that he wasn't really bold and impudent and willfully bad mannered. He wanted very much to have the visitor like him but he went the wrong way about it and got into trouble.

Anton's mother was entertaining guests and he was brought in to be introduced. His mother had told the visitors that he played the violin and was doing rather well, his teacher thought, so they asked him to play. One of the visitors was a famous player and it was more than kind of him to be willing to listen to a child. It was to him that Anton turned and said, "O, play yourself if you want to. I'm fed up with the old stuff. There's nothing in playing a violin. Any old fool can do that. I wouldn't touch it if my mother didn't make me." Then, before the stunned musician could gather himself to make a reply Anton strutted before a lady old enough to be his grandmother and said, "Well, I see you've got your new teeth. They do improve your looks. Don't they, mother?"

I felt sorry for Anton. It is always a mistake to try to bluff your way to attention. If you are frightened and can't think of anything to say without being bold and loud and swaggering, keep still. Learn to smile and bow and keep still when shyness comes over you. Boldness is shyness showing its other face, that's all. Cover it with silence, a smile and a bow.

If you are asked to play smile and bow, go at once to the piano and do your best. A good way to begin, when you are scared, is to run scales very softly, until you can steady your fingers and see the notes. Then plunge into the thing and go ahead. If you are playing the violin you have a better chance. Take your stand in a doorway, at the far end of the room. Again, play softly some phrase that you know well and, when your hand steadies down to the job, begin.

When you have fear about entering a room arrange to carry something in your hand. A plate of refreshments, if they are being served. A roll of music if you are to play, a flower for the visiting lady. Anything that gives you a reason for coming into the room and something to do after you get there. If you value your happiness at home or abroad, don't try to make your way with bluff and bluster and boldness.

Don't speak to older people first. Wait for them to speak to you and then you have the chance to answer. That saves you a lot. And if you don't know how to answer, fall back on that smile and bow. They'll carry you through many a trying time. And by and by they will bring you to the place where fear leaves you and confidence fills you and you can meet the most august of guests gracefully. The whole secret lies in forgetting about being the bright and shining star of the occasion. Be content to wait your turn and be willing to be one of the background until you grow strong enough and important enough to shine in your own right. That comes later, much later.

Yours, A. P.

MANY RIVERS DRY UP

Emporia, Kansas, Experiences Fortieth Consecutive Day Of Over 100

Scorched by a drouth of several months duration and 100 degree temperatures which have taken a huge toll of human life, crops and livestock, the southwest is facing the menace of a water famine.

Streams have disappeared, leaving dry beds. Wells have failed. Springs have dried up. Only the larger rivers and deep wells remain as sources of water supply. The danger of famine is confined chiefly to rural communities. It costs money to drink water in some localities.

The drought that has brought on this situation is unprecedented in this region. Some parts of Kansas have not received rain since last September. Emporia, Kans., experienced its 40th consecutive day with cloudless skies and temperatures above the 100 degree mark.

Wild life is dying. Sportsmen plan a restricted season on game because of depletion of game birds due to drouth. Snakes, lizards, jackrabbits and other wild animals boldly invade barnyard watering troughs.

Drain On River

The Missouri river continues to supply the larger cities of Nebraska and Missouri with water. The drain on the big muddy stream is tremendous, Kansas City alone using 71,000,000 gallons daily. Deep artesian wells are an aid in Nebraska but the southeastern part of that state, where a shortage heretofore had been unknown, faces an acute situation.

A baseball team could play a game in the Platte river bed in Nebraska without the players getting their feet damp. Residents are alarmed by the receding water table that guages the sub-surface flow of that stream. The ancient art of "water witching" has been revived. "Witchee" have been employed to locate wells at Newhawka, Neb., for a new PWA water system because geologists failed to locate wells.

Fear Epidemics

Practically all Missouri points isolated from the Missouri river or other large streams are threatened. In the western part of the state the river's old bed has provided supplies for many communities. Central Missouri cities dependent upon small streams have limited use to necessary household purposes. Epidemics of typhoid fever traceable to polluted supplies have broken out.

In eastern Missouri water for motor cars is more precious than gasoline. The Mississippi river guarantees St. Louis' supply.

Except in a few southwestern counties the critical situation in Iowa was alleviated by abnormal rainfall since July 1. The only acute condition is at Creston where the state emergency relief agency is shipping 46 railroad tank cars daily from Council Bluffs.

REDONDO MAN DIES OF HEAT IN IOWA

SIOUX CITY, Ia., July 20.—(UP)—The badly decomposed body of Walker Sanborn, 45, of Redondo Beach, Calif., was found in a field near Sioux Center, Ia., today.

Sanborn jumped from a Transcontinental bus last Saturday, shouting, "I won't be killed in cold blood," and fled across a meadow.

Information Sought From L. A. Authorities Today To Fix Sentence

LOS ANGELES, July 20.—Full details of the activities of Burmah White, youthful "bride bandit," convicted of aiding in a series of ruthless robberies with her husband, Tom White, paroled convict, who was slain by police, were sent to the state board of prison terms and paroles yesterday.

The information was sent to the board in compliance with a request for data to enable the parole board to determine and fix the length of time of the "icy" blonde's sentence to the woman's prison at Tehachapi.

The 19-year-old former Santa Ana high school girl, who was arrested and convicted of aiding her paroled husband in staging a series of robberies which included the shooting of Cora B. Withington, school teacher, who was blinded for life by a bullet from White's gun, was sentenced to serve from 30 years to life imprisonment by Superior Judge Fletcher Bowron last November 6.

But, police pointed out yesterday, under the state law the final determination of how long Miss White must serve is made by the board, which also has the power to parole her as it did her husband.

"Be particular in advising us whether or not the prisoner had weapons or a weapon in her possession and whether or not said weapon was used," the parole board asked in its communication to Chief of Police James E. Davis.

"This party and her husband held up several automobile parties, grocery stores, drug stores, et cetera, and in one case shot a woman through the head, blinding her for life and at the same time wounding her male companion. They also shot at another victim. This party stood by or sat in the car during the robberies, laughing or smiling and in such ways showed a hardened and cold-blooded disposition."

LUPE VELEZ HALTS HER DIVORCE SUIT

LOS ANGELES, July 20.—(UP)—The divorce suit of Lupe Velez against Johnny Weissmuller, film Tarzan, was dismissed today on motion of the actress' attorney.

Superior Judge Robert Kenny placed the suit off calendar without comment but it was known that the fiery Mexican actress and her former swimming champion spouse had again effected one of their many so-called reconciliations.

Judge Kenny had promised yesterday to throw the suit out of court if Miss Velez did not appear today to prosecute. Her attorney, Neil McCarthy, forestalled such action, however, by asking for the dismissal.

SUGAR FACTORY STARTS OPERATIONS NEXT WEEK

"Bad Actor" In Army Circles Taken From Guards In Bold Hold-Up

NEW YORK, July 20.—(UP)—A gunman rowed over to the Governor's island military reservation in busy New York harbor today, held up eight soldiers and escaped with Melvin Blanton, of Camden, Ohio, a long term prisoner known in army circles as a "bad actor."

The island is the headquarters of the Second Corps Area of the U. S. army and the entire 16th infantry is stationed there. Nearby were many boats in the harbor.

Disregarding these hazards, the gunman beached his boat and strolled over to a sentry guarding Blanton and two other prisoners.

"Drop your gun or you'll get hurt", he said in conversational tones.

The sentry, Private Stephen F. Grezegorak, found himself looking into the muzzle of a high calibre revolver. He threw his own automatic rifle to the ground. Blanton snatched up the weapon.

An army truck with three men in it rolled up.

Blanton and the civilian ordered them to line up with the sentry and the two other prisoners. They obeyed.

Two other men drove up behind the truck and they, too, were forced out and told to stand with the others.

"Don't try to follow us or it will be too bad," Blanton said.

He and his liberator ran to the nearby boat and pushed off. As Blanton rowed, the gunman stood up, covering the soldiers with the rifle.

GAMBLING BARON ADMITS OWNERSHIP

NEW YORK, July 20.—(UP)—William J. (Curley) Graham, Nevada gambling baron, today admitted part ownership of a corporation which operated "The Stockade," known as Reno's red-light district.

Over the heated objections of John Taafe, chief defense counsel in the $1,000,000 mail fraud case in which Graham is accused of being a participant, Graham said he owned stock in the Riverside Securities corporation. This was later known as the Acme corporation, which allegedly controlled the "cheap night life" of the divorce colony.

BYRD DECIDES TO GO BACK TO BASE

LITTLE AMERICA, Antarctica, July 15—(Delayed)—(By Mackay Radio to UP)—Abandoning his plan to remain isolated 123 miles out on the Ross ice barrier, Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd has ordered a motor tractor crew to leave for his hut.

Two meteorologists, yet to be named, will go to take Byrd's place at his hut, and stay until October as he had intended to.

LATE NEWS FLASHES

MINNEAPOLIS, July 20.—(UP)—Additional national guard troops were rushed into Minneapolis late today after police, opening fire with sawed-off shotguns on an angry crowd of striking truck drivers, wounded more than a score of persons. Several others were slugged and injured in the bitter rioting.

LOS ANGELES, July 20.—(UP)—A special session of the legislature to draft measures for unemployment relief was favored today by the county board of supervisors in a formal recommendation forwarded to Governor Frank F. Merriam.

Harvesting Of Crop To Start Soon

Returns Expected To Run From $700,000 To Million Dollars, Said

PROSPECT of increased returns for sugar beet growers, probably aggregating from $700,000 to $1,000,000, was indicated today by officials of the Holly Suga company here in announcing that the tentative date for the opening of the 1934 season will be next Wednesday. Payroll for plant operations is expected to run about $150,000.

Under provisions of the recently adopted Jones-Costigan act by Congress, growers will benefit from increased prices, it was learned. Average prices last year to growers ranged near $5.50 per ton of beets, and with the anticipated normal crop now in the fields, returns approaching $6.50 or more are anticipated, it was said.

Harvesting of the beet crop on large scale will open Monday with about 2500 men included in the gangs. Beets will come to the Santa Ana refinery from Orange, Los Angeles, Riverside and San Diego counties, since there are only two mills in Southern California and one south of Los Angeles. The beets come in by truck and rail and are expected to be of sufficient volume to maintain plant operation for 90 to 100 days. There are about 10,000 acres under cultivation which are harvested for the Santa Ana mill.

About 400 employers will be used in the mill, all of whom have been selected and given their duties. Virtually all the labor has

First Steamer With Cargo To Leave Since May 9 Off For Orient

PORTLAND, Ore., July 20.—Under guard of 90 regular police the first cargo-loading activities in the upper harbor since May 9 started today with the steamer San Julian taking on ties for the orient.

Eight miles away at Camp Clackamas 1000 national guard troops were ready to move to Portland at a minute's notice.

In the labor temple the central labor council's strike strategy committee which, in the face of mobilization orders issued by Governor J. L. Meier, reiterated its pledge to Senator Robert F. Wagner to defer a general strike, met behind closed doors.

One hundred and fifty strike pickets stood outside police lines a block away from the San Julian loading. Police were armed with gas, shotguns, clubs and their side-arms. The pickets made no move to interfere with the loading operations.

Orders Issued

Orders to the guard were issued by Gov. Julius L. Meier of Oregon. He gave the orders just after Oregon labor leaders had told Senator Robert Wagner, head of the national labor board, that they would abandon their plans for a general strike if the national guard was not called out.

WHAT PURPORTED to be a Chamber of Commerce personal attack upon J. F. Burke, as published in The Register yesterday, was sent out of Chamber of Commerce headquarters by Secretary Geo. A. Raymer without the knowledge or consent of any members of the board of dirctors, it was declared by J. P. Baumgartner, president of the Chamber of Commerce today in a letter to the editor of The Register.

Both personally and in his official capacity, Mr. Baumgartner said that neither the Chamber of Commerce nor its directors were responsible for Raymer's act, or for the statements or implications of the article carrying the by-line 'By J. E. Lloyd' and thus purporting to have been written by him."

Mr. Baumgartner's letter is as follows:

"I have read with surprise and regret the article on the first page of yesterday's Register, in ten point type, under the heading 'Burke Unmitigated Hypocrite Says Chamber of Commerce Circular to County Papers.'

"Permit me, both personally and as president of the Santa Ana Chamber of Commerce, to assure you and your readers that the 'press release' referred to was sent out by Mr. Raymer without the knowledge or consent of any of the directors of the Chamber of Commerce; and that neither the Chamber of Commerce as an institution, nor any of its directors, is in any measure morally responsible for Mr. Raymer's act or for the statements or implications of the article carrying the by-line 'by J. E. Lloyd' and thus purporting to have been written by him."

Raymer himself, under fire for using Chamber of Commerce funds and facilities in his official capacity to send out the scurrilous attack, confessed today that the letters were sent out without the knowledge of his board of directors. By an oversight, he claimed, the letters were sent out on the wrong piece of paper.

Despite the fact that the Chamber of Commerce letter, accompanying Lloyd's attack upon the editor of The Register, was mimeographed by Chamber of Commerce employes, printed on Chamber of Commerce "Special Notice" blanks, and signed by Raymer as "Sec'y, Chamber of Commerce," Raymer stated today this appearance of official action was an "oversight" and he regretted the "mistake."

A business man in commenting on the matter today said that "this appearance of official action was the only thing that would have prompted any consideration by anyone of such a scurrilous letter by an unknown writer."

"Through an oversight on my part, the letter accompanying Mr. Lloyd's letter to the press of Orange county, was written on Chamber of Commerce stationery, thereby making it appear an official document.

"However, the letter was sent out on my own responsibility,—neither the board of directors, nor any member thereof, knowing anything whatsoever about the Lloyd statement nor the letter sent with it.

"I sincerely regret the mistake that caused said statement to be interpreted as being a Chamber of Commerce action."

MEDIATOR

Sen. Robert Wagner, former head of the National Labor Board, who made a hurried trip to Portland by airplane, to offer his services as an advisor in the port strike.

PRESIDENT IS PAID VISIT BY BIG DIRIGIBLE

AT SEA WITH PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, July 20.—(UP)—(By Radio via U.S.S. New Orleans)—President Roosevelt's flagship, the trim cruiser Houston, steamed through squall-swept seas toward Hawaii today after a visit from the navy's air queen, the dirigible Macon.

She had come from her base at Sunnyvale, near San Francisco, at an average speed of 50 knots, bringing mail to the president.

Mr. Roosevelt stood on the windswept deck for some time awaiting the Macon's arrival.

Commander A. V. Wiley, recently placed in charge of the dirigible and a survivor of the Akron disaster, ordered two of his supplementary pursuit planes to fly achead of the Macon as she neared the Houston.

The planes swooped low over the cruiser's deck and dropped papers and a greeting from Commander Wiley. The Macon soared for an hour over the Houston and her convoy before pointing northward toward her base.

"The president's compliments to you and your planes on your fine performance and excellent navigation. Well done and thank you for the papers."

Low hanging clouds and a change in course of the Houston increased the navigation problem for the Macon. The Houston's course was changed to relieve the pain of a crew member, operated upon for appendicitis, by preventing excessive rolling.

The president received Postmaster General James Farley's report that the postoffice department had a surplus of $5,000,000 at the end of the fiscal year ending June 30. Mr. Roosevelt wired Farley congratulations, pointing out that it was the first such surplus since 1919.

The president, his sons and party were guests at a dinner party arranged last night by officers of the Houston.

MARITIME STRIKE STILL UNSETTLED; STORES OPEN AND BUSINESS RESUMED

Teamsters and Carmen Expected Soon to Return to Work; Vigilantes and Police Continue Raids

FARLEY AND WAGNER ARRIVE

SAN FRANCISCO, July 20.—(UP)—An estimated 150,000 men and women went back to work today after four days of general strike which paralyzed the San Francisco bay area.

Half of them were union members who returned to work in answer to the orders of their leaders calling off the strike. The others were workers who had been forced into idleness by the closing of business and industry.

There remained the teamsters, the carmen's and the maritime strikes yet to be settled.

But the workers seemed to be leaving most of that to the president's mediation board, and to General Hugh Johnson, NRA chief, Postmaster-General James A. Farley, who arrived here today, and Sen. Robert Wagner, head of the National Labor Board, to worry about.

The throngs which poured into the city from early morning ferry boats, seemed more amused than angered at the presence of National Guardsmen along the Embarcadero. Passengers on street cars kidded the conductors and motormen who had returned to work.

Merchants made arrangements for a big day's business. Window displays, which had been removed entirely or had been covered in many stores during the darker days of the week, were restored. Shelves gradually were filling with stock. With transportation nearly normal and conditions quiet again, shoppers were coming down town in throngs.

Streets Crowded

The early morning streets were busy with traffic. Grocers and produce retailers went to market, finding commission houses filled with fresh fruits and vegetables and grocery warehouses again available to them with large stocks of staple foods. They hauled these away in a brisk procession.

There were no pickets anywhere to be seen.

The Industrial association announced that it had 35 trucks moving cargo on the waterfront. They met no resistance. The National Guard maintained its tightly drawn lines around the wholesale produce and the Embarcadero.

W. E. Thompson, president of the union concerned in the Market Street Railway strike, gave out a formal statement denouncing Samuel Kahn, president of the railway company.

Thompson said that Kahn's attitude was consistent with "bluffing policy he has pursued here ever since he came to San Francisco."

Offer To Arbitrate

"We offered to arbitrate before we walked out," he said. "We are ready to return to work the minute the company will agree to arbitration."

Thompson claimed that the Market Street Railway was one of the very few traction companies

BAKER REPORT ON AIR FORCES FILED

WASHINGTON, July 20.—(UP)—The long-awaited Baker report on the U. S. air forces today was said to oppose a unified independent command of the services distinct from the present branches of the service.

The report has been submitted to Acting Secretary of War Harry H. Woodring. It has also been distributed confidentially to high officials of the war department. It will be made public Monday.

The report was prepared by a board under the direction of Newton D. Baker, secretary of war under President Wilson. The board was created by Secretary of War George H. Dern to study and report on the status of military aviation.

Contrary to expectation, the report was understood to contain no serious criticism of the present military aviation set-up. It highly praised it as the most efficient in the world.

LANGER TO DEMAND OLSON BE OUSTED

BISMARCK, N. D., July 20.—(UP)—Close friends of William H. Langer, replaced for the moment as governor of North Dakota, intimated today that he will ask the legislature to impeach Acting Governor Ole Olson, four justices of the state supreme court, and other high state officers.

Langer will address the special session of the legislature this afternoon. He is known to exercise some measure of political control over a majority of both houses. He was preparing in the seclusion of a river cabin, a speech expected to demand impeachment of Olson and all his political followers.

Several hundred farmers milled through the town shouting threats against the four justices who, in ruling Langer, under conviction for a felony, was disqualified to continue in office, first caused him to declare martial law to maintain his status and then yield temporarily to Lieutenant Governor Olson.

NAVAL SEAPLANES AWAIT NEW ORDERS

ASTORIA, Ore., July 20.—(UP)—Six naval seaplanes, comprising squadron VP-7, waited here today for orders that will send them winging northward to Seattle ahead of schedule.

The six planes, one-half of those engaged in a mass training flight from San Diego to Dutch Harbor, Alaska, and return, arrived yesterday afternoon after a normal though stormy flight from Paradise Cove, Calif. Their original orders call for departure for Seattle, next stop, Saturday morning.

Lieut. Com. Shoemaker, flight commander, who came here with the VP-7 squadron, said the VP-9 squadron of six planes, which remained at Paradise Cove, may be sent forward ahead of schedule, and that if this is done, the leading squadron will have to pull out for Seattle ahead of their arrival.

JAPANESE CABINET ASKS BIGGER NAVY

TOKYO, July 20.—(UP)—Japan's new cabinet tonight pledged itself to strive for naval equality with the United States and Britain.

Premier Okada, in his first public statement since taking office, declared Japan will seek to gain her naval aims at the London conference in 1935.

He declared Japan wanted universal friendship. He pledged himself to continue Japan's present foreign policy.

The premier, however, did not go into detail on these subjects. Observers believed he was not ready to make a statement of policy, but did so in deference to the Japanese press, making it as briefly and as perfunctory as possible.

HARVESTING OF SUGAR CROP TO START MONDAY

been selected from Orange county and will be paid a daily payroll of about $1500 during the continuation of the season. This does not include the men in the harvest fields, who are paid by private contractors and farmers.

It is expected that in excess of 100,000 tons of beets will be harvested and refined this year, which is about a normal crop. The growth of the beets started out better than usual, and a bumper crop was anticipated, but unforseen weather conditions and lack of hot weather deterred the rapid growth, and a normal crop resulted.

Practically the entire output of the Holly mill here is sold in Southern California. The beet acreage has dwindled from former years to such an extent that the Santa Ana mill, built in 1912, is the only one of five formerly operating in the county. Night and day shifts are run throughout the season.

REV. EDGAR WILL ATTEND CONVENTION

The Rev. Samuel Edgar, pastor of the Reformed Presbyterian church, will leave Santa Ana next Monday for Winona Lake, Indiana, to attend the annual meeting of the church. John Curry, sessions delegate, also will attend.

Two particularly important questions, foreign missions and a change in the terms of communion, are before the annual meeting this year, it is said.

The Covenanter church, it is stated, has stood for years in the front rank of the denominations in generous giving to missions, having for several years led the churches in amount per capita. Now it faces the question of how to adapt the workers in the field to the decrease in force and finance.

The Rev. Mr. Edgar will attend the fiftieth anniversary of the Eskridge, Kansas, church, where he was pastor before coming to Santa Ana. He also will preach in Chicago on his way East.

WILL ROGERS says:

SANTA MONICA, July 20. —(To the Editor of The Register:) In 1926 I was in England during their world-famous general strike. And, brother, it was general, not a paper printed, not a train, not a bus, not a wheel turned. Well, I never got through telling of the composure of those level-headed people.

Well, I went to San Francisco, and I tell you we were not so "nutty" under stress as you might think. It was as quiet as the British. The only thing went haywire was the headlines in the out-of-'Frisco papers. I hope we never live to see the day when a thing is as bad as some of our newspapers make it.

There is lots of sense in this country yet.

Yours,
WILL ROGERS.

CALAVO MEMBERS GETTING REFUND

Many local Orange county avocado growers are among the members of the Calavo Growers Exchange who are receiving this week a surprise partial refund, which was accumulated through savings achieved under the present low operating budget. A grand total of some $10,000 is being received by growers. Even a small refund was deemed improbable earlier in the season, as the present operating retain is less than half of last season's budgeted retain.

The surprise "dividend of co-operation in marketing" represents savings made so far this season of at least 7 per cent under the budgeted marketing costs of the avocado growers' cooperative, according to an association statement. It also represents to a considerable degree the benefit that all members secure through the joining of additional growers. The partial refund is an entirely additional proceed for each grower's fruit, over and above proceeds already received from pool payouts. Fruit delivered prior to July 1 is receiving the refund now, while that delivered after June 30 will receive the partial refund later.

ACCIDENTS CAUSED BY DRIVING ERRORS

Practically two-thirds of the automobile accidents of 1933 were due in some degree to driving errors. Among these, exceeding the speed limit resulted in the greatest number of deaths. Although the number of accidents from this cause accounted for about one-quarter of all the mishaps which involve improper motoring practices, the fatalities comprised approximately one-third of all the deaths resulting from driving errors, Chet Loomis, district manager of the National Automobile club, said today in a warning to motorists.

"It is well to remember," Loomis said, "that speed too great for road conditions is a potent factor in the accidents involving improper passing, failure to grant the right-of-way, driving off the roadway and reckless operation. The number of accidents from these causes and exceeding the speed limit comprised approximately three-quarters of all the mishaps which in 1933 may be assigned to driving effors. The deaths from these accidents totaled nearly four-fifth of all the fatalities resulting from improper actions of motorists.

TOURISTS WARNED OF FLOWER LAWS

It is unlawful to cut, destroy or remove any native tree, shrub, fern, herb, bulb, cactus, or flower on state or county highway rights of way. Chet Loomis, district manager of the National Automobile club said today in a statement to motorists.

Despite warnings, tourists are still seen transporting large bunches of wildflowers, in violation of California's new law, which reads further: "It is unlawful to cut or remove for commercial purposes the above flora from any public land or private land without the written consent of the owner.

"To knowingly sell or transport for sale the above flora cut or removed from state or county highway rights of way or any public land or private land without the written consent of the owner."

Any state or county firewarden, or any peace officer of the state is empowered to enforce this law with a fine not to exceed $200 —imprisonment not to exceed six months, or both fine and imprisonment.

that has refused to accept the national transit code. Street railways lines in Seattle, Oakland and Los Angeles are working under it, he claimed.

The municipal railway company here also has accepted the code, he said.

The Market Street railway was operating its skeleton service today with non-union crews, the labor leader said.

Police and "vigilante" raids on Communist meeting places continued last night, with the result that this morning there was a total of 350 alleged Communists in jail here and many others in nearby cities.

The San Francisco jail quarters were becoming so crowded that many had to sleep on the floor.

In Berkeley a crowd of 300 men wrecked a hall on Tenth street, said to be used as a Communist meeting place, destroyed two pianos, several hundred camp chairs, a radio and a library.

Round Up Ten

In Santa Clara county a crowd rounded up 10 alleged Communists and took them to the county line at Gilroy, ordering them to "keep going and don't ever come back."

"If you don't drastic measures will be taken," they were told.

In Berkeley a "citizens committee" made the rounds of meeting places, even stopping at the First Congregational church to warn a speaker, C. A. Anderson of the Berkeley Philosophers' club, to be careful what he said against the government.

The "committee"—which had no formal standing so far as is known —next wrecked a supposed Communist gathering place on San Pablo avenue.

Homes of supposed Communists were visited and bricks tossed through the windows with notes wrapped around them reading:

"We, the members of a committee of Berkeley citizens organized for the purpose of purging the city of Berkeley of all communists, bolsheviks, radicals, agitators and other anti-government groups, hereby notify you that we are aware of the fact that you are directly linked with this group."

Carmen Meet

Some 1600 of the Market street railway strikers met at noon and re-affirmed the decision to stay out "until the company agrees to arbitrate the grievances growing out of intolerable conditions."

Meantime, the joint marine strike committee met and it determined to continue the strike of maritime workers.

The decision of the strike committee was announced by Harry Bridges, chairman of the San Francisco longshoremen's strike committee and a leading member of the group that counseled the general strike.

"The committee still assumes its original stand," Bridges said. "It wants recognition of seafaring unions, abolition of company controlled hiring halls for seamen and control of the longshoremen's hiring halls by the longshoremen The committee is awaiting the next step by President Roosevelt's national longshoremen's board."

Meantime the independent strikes of the cleaners and dyers and of the laundry drivers' unions were ordered terminated by union officials.

The drivers reached a wage agreement with employers and the cleaners and dyers declared a 30-day armistice. During the armistice a theatened wage cut will not be put in effect, employers agreed.

FIVE DAYS LEFT IN COLLEGE GRID VOTE

CHICAGO, July 20.—(UP)—With only five days of voting remaining in the nation-wide poll to select an all-star college team to play the Chicago Bears, National professional gootball champions, at Soldier field Aug. 31, the personnel of the team began to take shape today. Only seniors last season are eligible for the team.

Ends: Skladany, Pittsburgh, and Smith, Washington.

Guards: Rosenberg, Southern California, and Schammel, Iowa.

Center: Bernard, Michigan.

Quarterback: Laws Iowa.

Fullback: Mikulak, Oregon.

Sauer, Nebraska, is leading the fullbacks but will be unable to play because of a recent operation for appendicitis. Twenty-seven players will be selected for the college team, which will start training Aug. 15.

OIL MAN FINED ON LABEL COUNT

Dick Martin, charged with violation of the California gasoline and oil substitution act, was given the alternative of spending 25 days in the county jail or paying a $50 fine when he pleaded guilty before Judge Halsey I. Spence in Fullerton justice court today.

Martin, a truck driver for an oil company, was arrested in June following the filing of a complaint by James L. Gardiner, representative of the state. Martin was charged with having re-labeled a gasoline pump at a Fullerton service station which was partly filled with another brand of gasoline.

He paid the fine.

TORRENTIAL RAINS IN POLAND CEASE

WARSAW, July 20.—(UP)—Cessation of torrential rains in mountain districts gave hope of flood relief to southern Poland today, though rivers still were rising and great areas of land were under water.

An official statement listed 180 known dead, with hundreds missing. In the flooded area, 55,000 persons were estimated to have fled homes and 30,000 were in danger. Two million persons altogether were affected. Damage was estimated at $38,000,000 (200,000,000 zloty).

STATE AND DEFENSE REST HICKMAN CASE

SAN FRANCISCO, July 20.—(UP)—The prosecution and the defense closed presentation of evidence today at the trial of Millard Hickman, shipping executive, accused of the murder of Louise Jeppesen, 23-year-old Utah girl.

Closing arguments were expected to continue through today and part of Monday, the case going to the jury late Monday.

gic points in Portland. This move was countered by an increase of police reserves at the same spots.

It was believed generally that the militia concentration at Clackamas voided labor's promise to Senator Wagner.

Expresses Regret

Learning of the Governor's militia call in which he said the troops were mobilizing "in case of emergency," Senator Wagner expressed regret. He was in conference with the strike committee last night, preparatory to leaving for San Francisco to meet the President's mediation board, when he heard the news.

Meanwhile, the Waterfront Employers' association took a militant stand against labor with the announcement that it intends to start movement of cargo from Portland's docks today. The port has been sealed since the strike started on May 9.

Observers saw in the Portland situation a crisis similar to that which came in San Francisco prior to the calling of the general strike there. In San Francisco, the Industrial association decided to run trucks. Pickets attacked the machines and drivers. Governor Frank Merriam sent in the militia and the union men, unable to face machine guns, selected the general strike as thir most formidable weapon.

LEGION GROUPS TO CONVENE IN DISTRICT MEET

Orange county Legionnaires and members of auxiliaries today were preparing to attend a 21st district meeting of American Legion posts and auxiliaries of Orange, Riverside and San Bernardino counties to be held all day tomorrow and Sunday at Huntington Beach.

Most of the day tomorrow will be devoted to social events. A golf tournament will launch the series of events at 1:30 p. m., to be followed by a pre-convention Legion political caucus at Memorial hall at 4:30 p. m., when policies of the district will be decided upon.

An informal dinner will be served at Memorial Hall at 6 p. m., which will be followed by a big parade of Legion drum and bugle corps and auxiliary drill teams through the streets of the city at 7 p. m. A dance will be staged at the Hall starting at 9 p. m.

Sunday morning at 9 o'clock a breakfast will be held, when further discussion regarding Legion politics will be held. Another caucus will be held at 10 a. m. and the main business session, when officers will be elected and other important business transacted, will be at 1:30 p. m.

LEAGUE OFFERS AID IN NAMING SERA OFFICIALS

Decision to offer cooperation in the selection of two men for the SERA adivsory board in Orange county and to leave action on water questions up to the individual cities instead of the entire league, was made by the executive committee of the Orange County League of Municipalities at the Green Cat cafe last night.

In discussing the status of the SERA in Orange county, it was finally decided by the committee that the league would be willing and glad to cooperate with SERA officials and State Administrator R. C. Brannion in selecting men for the two vacancies. Those present emphasized that there was no desire to dictate policies but merely to assist.

Flood control and water conservation policies should be decided by cities, not the league, the committee decided. Water problems are of a highly technical nature and deserves the undivided attention of the individual cities, not by a large group of men representing all the phases of city government, it was said.

Duplication of costs in city and county government, municipal liability, gasoline tax distribution, business and professional licenses and unemployment relief by cities will be among the topics which the league will recommend be placed on the program of the state league convention in Pasadena in September, it was decided.

Mayor W. L. Fowler of Redlands, chairman of the program committee, will be asked to attend the meeting of the Orange county group next Thursday in Newport Beach and outline the porgram for the mayors and councilman division. The local requests for program topics will be given to him at that time.

The question of boarding prisoners at the county jail was brought up again and decision made to have the committee appointed by President A. C. Hasenjaeger, recommended that action be deferred until an answer is received from the board of supervisors regarding a resolution sent to the board some time ago.

It is expected that President Hasenjaeger will resign next week, since he is no longer a member of the Santa Ana city council. Vice President L. A. Hogue of Brea will take over the presidency and his post probably left vacant until the regular elections in September. Mayor Charles Mann of Anaheim has been recommended to fill the post of representative on the state board of directors, which was left vacant by the resignation last month of former Mayor Paul Witmer of Santa Ana.

Big Balloon And Baseball Classic Shown On Screen

A number of unusual scenes are shown in the Register World News Events which now are on the program at the Broadway theater, according to Manager Lester J. Fountain.

LEAGUE HEARS UTT DISCUSS STATE FINANCE

Assemblyman James B. Utt addressed the Santa Ana League of Women Voters on the revenues and expenses of the state government yesterday at an all-day meeting of the League in the home of Mrs. J. D. Campbell, Tustin.

Utt showed the members how much was received or expended in each division, and used a diagram to illustrate just what proportion of the total amount each item represented.

The League voted to send President Roosevelt a letter commending him on the work done in C. C. C. camps, and expressing the hope that the work would be continued.

CONFLICTING STORIES TOLD IN BOOZE TRIAL

Conflicting testimony was given this morning in the jury trial of Mrs. Julia Sulzer, 1907 West Fifth street, who is charged with selling whiskey not in the original containers and without a license.

City Attorney Clyde Downing questioned A. F. Maendele and J. N. Hernandez, special police investigators who worked in Santa Ana to secure evidence on establishments selling liquor, to open the prosecution. Defense Attorney Harry O. Warton of Anaheim placed Mrs. Sulzer and her sister, Mrs. Maggie Dunton, on the stand before the noon recess.

There was a sharp conflict in testimony as given by the witnesses. The investigators claimed that they were served a meal and whiskey on April 25 in a nine-room house at 1907 West Fifth street. The two women denied ever having seen the investigators, said they did not move into the nine-room house until May 1, and conducted their Cotton club cafe at 1904 West Fifth street, across the street, up to April 30.

Dr. Elizabeth Tock testified that a bottle of whiskey assertedly purchased by the investigators from Mrs. Sulzer contained 48.6 per cent alcohol by volume and 41.1 per cent by weight. The whiskey was introduced as evidence by Downing.

Judge J. G. Mitchell renewed the jury trial at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon.

THOMAS S. ROADES DIES AT HIS HOME

Thomas Sherman Roades, a resident of Santa Ana for the past 22 years, passed away today at his home, 1703 West Nineteenth street, following a heart attack.

Mr. Roades, who was retired, was 67 years old at the time of his death. He is survived by his widow, Amanda E. Roades, and six children: Mrs. Grace Bennett, of Pomona; Mrs. Mable Hemmel, of Santa Ana; Mrs. Cathrine Bonham, of Pomona; John L. Roades, of Coalinga; Calvin J. Roades, of Santa Fe Springs, and Henry S. Roades, of Santa Ana. Also four sisters, Mrs. Catherine Wagner, of Fullerton; Mrs. Jennie Woodside, of Visalia; Mrs. Mary Martin, Klamath Falls, Oregon; Mrs. Bessie Gabler, of Bakersfield, and one brother, Lee Montgomery, of Anaheim.

Announcement of funeral services will be made later by Harrell and Brown.

DOCTOR AND PATIENT ON AIR TRIP TO N. Y.

JURY AWARDS $327 DAMAGES FOR DOG BITE

Debating less than half an hour, a Santa Ana justice court jury yesterday decreed that Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Streed of Brea should recover $327 and attorney's fees for a dog bite which Mrs. Streed suffered on December 6, 1933, when attacked by a dog owned by Mr. and Mrs. Fred Boling of Brea.

Mrs. Streed charged that the Boling dog chewed its way from the Boling yard and jumped on her at the rear of her home. She suffered painful wounds on her arm and elbow and the suit sought damages of $900 for herself and $95 for her husband for loss of her services.

Mr. and Mrs. Streed and Chester Wells testified for the plaintiffs while defense witnesses were Ada Boling, Fred Boling, Bessie Sweet, Charles A. Hood, Welma Pheiffer, Charles G. Curtis, Viola Baker, Helen Bailey, Helen Vance and Robert Williams.

Damages awarded by the jury were $300 for Mrs. Streed, $27 for Streed and $40.20 attorney's fees. Jurymen were Asa Hoffman, Emily I. Alleman, C. E. Clem, Anna M. Scudder, James Hall, J. E. Kellogg, Benjamin Heemstra, Ruth Kemper, Anna Hasenjaeger, Oma M. Hall, Dollikins B. Sawdey, and Clara Whitson.

DISMISSAL OF CASE SOUGHT BY DEFENDANTS

Trial of Dr. W. J. Ross, head of the Ross dog and cat food factory at Los Alamitos, and his nephew, Glenn Ross, charged with cruelty to animals, in complaints signed by Fred H. Bixby, rancher, and F. J. Lee, state humane officer, continued in Seal Beach justice court today with the defense attempting to have the case dismissed because of alleged lack of evidence that the asserted acts of cruelty took place in Orange county or that the stock involved was the property of Dr. Ross at the time of the alleged cruel acts.

The state rested its case last night after Deputy District Attorney Preston Turner, who is prosecuting the case, had presented a number of witnesses who claimed they had seen cruel acts against horses and other stock used in the manufacture of dog and cat food at the factory.

An 11-year-old girl testified that she had seen workers at the factory sink hooks into animals that were still alive. Other witnesses testified to the crowded places into which the horses were jammed, and others testified that the animals were fed fox tail grass with the results that burrs became imbedded in the horses' nostrils, mouths and feet. Many of the animals were covered with raw sores and were so weak from lack of food that they could not stand up, according to testimony given.

Those who testified included Lee and Roy McCarrel, of the humane department; Dr. C. C. Warn, veterinary and humane officer of Los Angeles; Tony Avilla, dairy worker; Jack Kimeno and J. Sjostrom, ranch workers and Carl Oakford, Long Beach stock dealer who told of the condition of the animals which he noticed when on a buying job at the plant.

CHILDREN START BLAZE CAUSING DAMAGE OF $860

Children playing with gasoline in the garage at the home of D. A. Jones, 1602 Orange avenue, caused a fire at 2:40 o'clock yesterday afternoon which completely destroyed the garage and damaged the residence, according to fire department records.

Firemen extinguished the flames in about 45 minutes and prevented further damage to the house. There was no automobile in the garage but several articles and stored materials were murned. Total damage was estimated by fire officials at $860.

FILM EXECUTIVE IN ATTACK ON BOYCOTT

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., July 20.—(UP)—Charges by Harry Warner, motion picture executive, that Cardinal Dougherty of Philadelphia is "un-American" in his attitude toward the movies, re-echoed through Hollywood today following Warner's startling speech at a luncheon given for Postmaster General Farley on a studio set.

Warner's charges were received mostly in silence by Farley, a prominent Catholic layman, who only indirectly mentioned the situation in his speech before the group of film executives and Democrats yesterday.

"The same as every other industry, you will always, and always must, respond to public opinion," Farley said. "Only by doing that can you hope to prosper and win the approval of all our citizens.

HIGH LIGHTS OF FRAZIER-LEMKE BILL OUTLINED

J. J. Dwyer, conciliation commissioner for Orange county, today issued a statement concerning the operation of the Frazier-Lemke bill, which was adopted by the last Congress and which was designed to be of assistance to agriculturalists.

The statement follows:

"I feel that the Frazier-Lemke bill, which was passed by the last Congress for the relief of farmers, is of great interest to the ranchers of the county, and I think, as conciliation commissioner of the county, that I should call to their attention the main provisions of the act, to the end that such of our ranchers as come within the purview of the act be given an opportunity to take advantage of the same. The following is a brief synopsis of the law as finally passed.

"The law provides in substance: that any farmer filing his schedule under section 75 of the bankrupt law, asking for a composition and extension of time in which to pay his debts, may, at the time of the first hearing, petition the court, that all of his property, both incumbered and unincumbered, be appraised and that his exemption be set aside to him and that he may be allowed to retain possession of a part or all of his property and pay for the same under the terms and conditions of the act.

"The referee or conciliation commissioner then issues an order, setting aside the debtor's exemptions and orders that the possession of part or all of the property shall remain in the debtor.

"Then, upon request of the debtor, with the consent of the lien-holders, the conciliation commissioner shall agree to sell to the debtor any part or all of said property upon the following terms:

"Payment of 1 per cent of the appraised value in one year from date; 2 1-2 per cent in two years; 2 1-2 per cent in three years; 5 per cent in four years; 5 per cent in five years, and the balance of the unpaid appraised value in six years from the date of the agreement; interest on the unpaid balance of the appraised value at the rate of 1 per cent as it accrues, and all taxes to be paid by the debtor.

"The proceeds of such payments to be paid to the secured and unsecured creditors as their interests may appear.

"Under such an agreement the debtor has the right to sell any part or all of said property, provided he pays into court the appraised value thereof, or he may give bond, approved by the referee or conciliator, that he will so do.

"If payments are not made in accordance with the agreement, the secured creditors have the right to enforce their claims in accordance with law. If the above conditions are complied with by the debtor, he may apply for his discharge.

"In the event that the creditors do not agree to a composition, the court shall stay all proceedings for a period of five years, and the debtor shall retain possession of all or part of the property, as may elect, and pay a reasonable rental therefor during the five years, first payment of rent to be made within six months of the date of the order. At the end of the five years or any time prior thereto the debtor may pay into court the appraised value of the property elected by him, and the court thereupon shall by an order turn full possession and title to the property and he may apply for his discharge."

DEATH VICTIM SON OF PROMINENT MAN

Discovery was made today that the man found dead on a railroad platform in Orange Wednesday was Rex Dryden, 52, son of the late Col. J. L. Dryden, famous political leader and author of Illinois, who passed away in San Diego five years ago.

Coroner Earl Abbey is still attempting to trace friends of Dryden, since it is understood that he is the last member of his family. Abbey is also anxious to find a motive for his death, since it was determined from the autopsy yesterday from the Gillogly funeral home that he had swallowed lye in a suicide attempt. A driver's license on his person gave a clue to his identity.

According to Dr. Charles Tingley, 1428 Bush street, a childhood acquaintance of the Dryden family, the victim was a mechanic by trade and had lived in the East and Southern California.

GRIFFIN ADMITS GUILT ON COUNT OF KIDNAPING

Billie Griffin, 49, today pleaded guilty to the kidnapping and attack of a six-year-old Santa Ana girl and will face judgment in superior court next Tuesday, July 24.

Griffin entered his plea to both counts when arraigned before Judge J. O. Moncur, of Quincy, Plumas county, temporarily presiding in Judge James L. Allen's court.

The defendant had admitted taking the child to his apartment and keeping her all night. Police, who had been searching for her following her reported disappearance, found her on the street, walking toward her home, at 5 o'clock next morning.

Griffin at first denied attacking the child but later confessed.

Four other criminal defendants arraigned today before Judge Moncur all pleaded not guilty and demanded trials.

Riley Dodd, charged with contributing to the delinquency of three young boys at an oil lease in Brea canyon July 13, will be tried August 9.

Trial of Fred L. Brush, charged with non-support of his daughter, aged 7, at Anaheim, was set for August 16.

Ray Hernandez, charged with drunk driving at Fourth and Birch streets, Santa Ana, July 14, will go on trial August 8.

Pastacio Ramirez will be tried August 14 on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon, it being alleged that he attacked Manuel Tafoya with a razor July 1.

JUDGMENT IN WHEELER TRUST SUIT FOR SON

Concluding hearing of the suit brought by Sheldon Wheeler, Irvine rancher, against his father, John L. Wheeler, the First National Bank of Santa Ana, and the San Joaquin Fruit and Investment company, involving the administration of a trust covering the property of John L. Wheeler and his former wife, Louise Wheeler, now deceased. Superior Judge Lloyd E. Griffin late yesterday decreed an accounting which left a net balance in favor of Sheldon Wheeler amounting to $5000. This was entered as a judgment against the father, J. L. Wheeler.

The defense was openly elated by the decision, which denied other demands of the son, including his suit to set aside a conveyance of 20 acres by the bank, as trustee of the Wheeler property, to the elder Wheeler. It was not known today whether the son would appeal the case.

The bank's authority to execute the conveyance was upheld, as was its right to execute a mortgage upon the trust property. The trust covered a 40-acre ranch in the Irvine district, a residence in Santa Ana, certain personal effects and insurance policies, all of which was held to be community property.

The son, Sheldon, who was a beneficiary under the trust scheduled to receive a share of income from his mother's half of the trust, following her death filed suit charging that the bank had deeded the best half of the 40-acde ranch to his father, had turned over several insurance policies and permitted the withdrawal of large sums of cash from the trust. He claimed that half of the $45,000 mortgage upon the 40 acres had been paid off, thus clearing the 20 acres deeded to his father, and leaving the remaining $22,500 mortgage on the half left in trust.

It developed that the reason the 20 acres had been conveyed to the elder Wheeler was that the $45,000 mortgage was due and there was a doubt that the bank could execute a new mortgage. So 20 acres was deeded to J. L. Wheeler, and a new mortgage was placed upon that half for $22,500, which funds were used to reduce the $45,000 to $22,500 on the other half of the ranch. Each half thus was in the same situation as before, as to encumbrance.

Much of the trial was devoted to hearing evidence on the respective values of the two halves of the ranch. At the conclusion Judge Griffin allowed the son $7500 representing the value of the Santa Ana dwelling, the difference in value between the two halves of the ranch, and half the cash value of an insurance policy that was cashed at $846. An offset against this total was allowed to J. L. Wheeler, amounting to $2500, and representing half of a $5000 payment he had made upon the original mortgage. The net judgment in favor of the son was therefore $5000.

The court reserved decision for a few days upon the cross-complaint of the San Joaquin Fruit and Investment company, asking foreclosure of the mortgage upon the trust property.

Creel Committees To Meet Tonight

SPEAKER TELLS OF CONDITIONS UNDER SULTAN

Conditions in Turkey during the past 25 years were reviewed for members of the Lions club yesterday noon by the Rev. Samuel Edgar, pastor of the Reformed Presbyterian church, in a talk about Mustapha Kemal Pasha, present dictator of the Turkish empire.

The Rev. Mr. Edgar served as a missionary from 1907 to the beginning of the World war. He went through two wars and two massacres, and gained first-hand knowledge of the deplorable conditions of the country and its people under the old Sultan. In one town where he was located, with a population of 25,000 people, there were only 130 children in school.

The speaker described a massacre of Armenians in Antioch which left only one Armenian man alive, who had hidden in a well, while the women were placed in Turkish harems. He said the Armenians were subdued but never conquered.

In 1919 Rev. Edgar participated in the American Red Cross relief expedition into Palestine, led by Col. John Finley, now head of education in New York state, and told of General Allenby's victory against the Turks, whose sultan he described as a "hardened old devil."

The speaker reviewed the development of Mustapha Kemal Pasha, his humble birth, his defense of the Dardanelles aginst the British guns, his defeat of the invading Greeks and French, and his leadership of the Young Turk movement, which made him Turkish dictator and one of the world's leaders.

Fullerton police yesterday arrested George A. Leonard, alias H. Harris, and booked him at the county jail under $100 bail on a charge of passing fictitious checks, which is a felony.

When arraigned before Judge Halsey I. Spence in Fullerton justice court today, where a preliminary hearings was set for July 26 at 9:30 a. m., the name of Harris was read on the complaint. The arrested man declared his name was not Harris, but Leonard.

According to complaint, Harris, or Leonard, issued a check for $12.50 signed by Allen Mattson, on a Los Angeles bank. An investigation showed no depositor of that name, at the bank, it was said. He passed the check at the Robinson Market July 7, it was alleged.

YORBA LINDA BOND ISSUE IS DEFEATED

By a majority of 42 votes, electors in the Yorba Linda grammar school district yesterday turned thumbs down on a bond issue of $12,000 for the construction of an auditorium on the Yorba Linda school.

Out of a total of 523 voters, but 197 voted, 85 casting a "yes" vote and 127 voting "no." The school board had submitted the proposal to construct the auditorium to the voters. The auditorium would have cost $18,000, of which amount the school board has $6000 on hand.

SPEAKER URGES ADOPTION OF TOWNSEND PLAN

The working out of an adequate old age pension plan, which will provide the necessities and comforts for ten million people over 60 years of age and provide employment vacancies for those of working age, is the most important piece of legislation of the New Deal to be taken up by congress in January, according to John K. Tibbets, San Bernardino publisher, who addressed a Democratic rally at Woodman hall last night.

There are 27 proposed pension plans under consideration, the speaker said, and the Townsend plan is the most logical in providing intelligent distribution of wealth.

Paying tribute to the leadership of President Roosevelt and the humanitarian Democratic program which places the rights of people above the rights of property, Tibbets urged the necessity of sending Democratic congressmen to Washington who are actuated by the same high motives of the President and who will aid constructively in carrying out the Roosevelt program.

Such a man, he said, is James L. Davis, of Santa Ana, whom he described as honest, morally clean, a thinker, a law student, one who knows human nature and the needs of the people. "Roosevelt needs Davis in congress to help carry out his program for the welfare and happiness of the American people," Tibbets said.

Last night's rally was held under auspices of the Santa Ana Davis-for-Congress committee, with Carl M. Heim, committee chairman, presiding. Heim said the election of President Roosevelt was providential and it is just as important that the right men be selected for congress, because the "Roosevelt program must go on." He said Davis is the only Democratic candidate who can be elected to congress from this district, and that he is actuated by the same motives and principles which actuate the president.

Chairman Nichols of the Townsend old age pension plan in Orange county said there are now 34,700 signatures in Orange county to the pension petitions, and that Davis meets every requirement of those who want a strong pension supporter at Washington.

Short talks were made by Joe Peterson and H. F. Kenny, candidates for the Democratic nomination for assembly for the southern district of Orange county, and Stephen F. Gallagher, attorney of Anaheim, who lauded the Democratic program and pointed to the necessity of electing men to all legislative offices who support the Roosevelt policies and ideals.

England, Too, Has Drought Problems

If you don't think that England, like America, has suffered severely from the drought, this picture should convince you! While in normal times tons of water gush over the Teddington Weir, here's how the big dam appeared after 26 days without rain—with narp a trickle in sight.

CHURCH HONORS DR. WARMER AT RECEPTION

The congregation of the First Methodist church tendered an enthusiastic reception to their pastor, Dr. George A. Warmer, and his family last evening in recognition of his return to Santa Ana for the eighth successive year. The attendance was estimated as the largest at any of the numerous receptions that have been held from year to year.

The event was under the joint direction of the Woman's Aid, the Dorcas society and the official board of the church. The hall was profusely decorated for the occasion. Miss Ethel Coffman introduced the various items of the program.

O. H. Barr spoke of the work of the pulpit committee and the "Open Season" on preachers, in which he outlined the difficulties of retaining the services of a man like Dr. Warmer when there are so many urgent calls for leadership elsewhere. The last conference has been particularly critical, he said, in that for a time it appeared that Dr. Warmer would be moved from Santa Ana in spite of the protests of the committee and the congregation.

Charles Warmer spoke on "Wheels—Actual or Prospective—for the Parsonage Household." He told in an interesting and humorous way, of the sensations attendant upon the uncertainties of pastoral tenure, and the thrills of moving and saying goodbye to associations that have been developed.

The program opened with an instrumental trio, Esther Vogt, piano, Ann Mae Archer, 'cello, and Robert Forcey, violin. Marqule Hare sang a solo, with Esther Vogt as accompanist. Jeanette Lutes gave a reading. Herbert F. Kenny sang a toast to Dr. Warmer that had been specially composed for the occasion by W. A. Taylor, with Eva Ramsey as accompanist.

Dr. Warmer replied with an expression of appreciation of the kindness and fellowship of the occasion, and his pleasure in being returned for another year. He quoted statistics to show the growth of the church during the past seven years, and directed the congregation toward the work of the coming year with its responsibilities and challenges. Mrs Warmer spoke a few words of appreciation. A social hour was spent and light refreshments served.

SIX BOOKED FOR INTOXICATION; TWO MOTORISTS

Six men were booked at the county jail last night and yesterday on liquor law violations, including two for drunken driving, one for drunkenness on the highway and three for intoxication.

Joe Rivera, 32, 159 North Cypress avenue, Orange, was brought to the jail at 8:30 o'clock last night on a drunk driving charge by W. E. Hausel, special deputy sheriff. According to police reports, Hausel said that Rivera wrecked his car at Rio Vista and East North street near Anaheim and had been seen driving in a drunken condition just prior to the wreck by Arnold Stickle, living near Anaheim.

John Torres, 29, 2304 West Fifth street, was booked to serve a 125-day sentence for drunken driving and Charles Rodriguez, 23, 2337 South Olive street, was committed for 12 1-2 days for drunkenness by Anaheim police.

W. F. Gilliland, 36, proprietor of Tex's Home cafe in Sunset Beach, was arrested for drunkenness on the highway and booked at the jail at 3 a. m. today by Deputy Sheriffs James Musick and G. F. McKelvey. It was reported by officers that Gilliland had been in a fight before his arrest.

Chief Gus Barnes of Placentia booked two Mexicans for drunkenness, Jesus Escobar, 42, and Frank Romerez, 42, both of Placentia.

Dr. Buchanan to Be Speaker For Sinclair Meeting

"Franklin Delano Roosevelt and Upton Sinclair, the men and their programs," will be the title of an address by Dr. David Buchanan of San Diego, at the Sinclair for Governor headquarters, 425 North Sycamore street, at 8 o'clock tonight, according to announcement from Harry S. Gerhart, campaign manager for Orange county.

Dr. Buchanan has been speaking at a number of meetings throughout Orange county this week as part of a tour through the state. Last night he spoke at Fullerton on "Your Economic Place in the Sun." Dr. Buchanan claims every man is entitled to an equal democratic opportunity in economics as well as in government, and unless the food-shelter-clothing problem is solved for all, we have no right to boast of our vaunted American superiority, Christianity and civilization.

According to Gerhart, Dr. Buchanan's experience on the lecture platform and as a traveller has qualified him as a powerful speaker and a tremendously interesting lecturer.

Former S. A. Man Killed In Texas

Word was received today of the death Monday, July 2, of Frank Thornhill, former Santa Ana man, in Beeville, Texas.

Mr. Thornhill was a former resident of Snta Ana and was well known here. He removed to Texas several years ago to work in the oil fields. According to the word received here death was due to concussion of the brain received in an oil field accident.

Among other survivors is a brother, Orb Thornhill, who is residing at Washington and Bristol streets, Santa Ana.

Interment will be made in Sedan, Texas.

At one time, paper wheels were used on railroad cars. They were invented by Richard Allen, in 1869, and were first tested on the Central Vermont railroad. They were made of many sheets of paper, coated with flour paste, and compressed under enormous pressure.

COUNTY LABOR HEADQUARTERS TO BE IN S. A.

Removal of headquarters of the Orange County Central Labor Council from Anaheim to Santa Ana, was announced today, following a meeting of the council at Anaheim last night at which the change was decided upon.

The larger membership in the various locals in this district and the possibility of increased membership in the rapidly developing coastal area adjacent to Santa Ana were given as among the reasons for the action.

The county meetings will hereafter be held on the first and third Thursday evening's of each month at the Labor Temple, 415 West Fourth street, Santa Ana.

Possibility of reviving the Building Trades Council was reported last night by M. C. Ewing, who said there is a growing sentiment in this direction, and he has hopes a re-organization may be effected by the first of the year.

Three members, President Auperle of the Central Labor Council, Organizer Stone, and President Conkey of the Anaheim-Fullerton Typographical union, were endorsed for appointment to the SERA committee, one to be selected.

'HOW KILLERS BEAT THE LAW' BY CAPT. DON WILKIE

Former U. S. Secret Service Operative —and World Authority on Law Enforcement and Crime

America is at war! Gangster chieftains have erected a bandit empire within the portals of our country. Their fortifications to date have been invulnerable to attack. That is because of their subtle planning their adept tactical maneuvers. America is torn within by a civil strife that has been so cunningly initiated and maintained that, unknowingly, eighty-five out of every one hundred men, women and children in the Land of Liberty are today paying tribute to the enemy.

No isolated examples of the type of warfare waged portrays in all of its phases the secret methods of the enemy as does the true story of Freddie Kildane—gangster killer.

It all happened back in the days before I'd met him. He was blowing safes then for a living. And no better yeggman lived. He was huddled before the safe in a shade factory, on the West Side, in Chicago. His flashlight lay on the floor by his knees; its white circle of light on the steel door before him. He had packed his explosive around the knob of the door—and sealed it with soap. Nothing left to do but cover the safe with blankets to deaden the sound of the explosion. At that instant he heard the sound of a step behind him. He straightened and threw his flash into the darkness before him. At the same instant the deadly dwarf gun came from his pocket. He was staring into the startled eyes of the night watchman. An outstretched hand held a gun, and Freddie claims he saw the trigger finger tautening. But his own roared first. The watchman sank slowly to the floor, surprise and pain written on his face. But the hate of the predatory criminal was roused in the heart of a killer. Eight times the gun roared in quick succession. Each time one of those heavy leaden slugs tore its way into the body of the watchman as the murderer's steady aim followed the slumping figure down to the floor. Freddie fled. A passerby had heard the firing and stepped aside, into a dark doorway, just as Kildane flashed past him. The police came but the man was dead. Fingerprint experts sought in vain for telltale marks. Kildane wore gloves. And with presence of mind, he had taken his tools with him. To police, untrained in the highly scientific methods of crime detection, such as are made a profession abroad, there was but one clue—the coldly calculating series of nine shots, when one, or at most two, would have been enough. The Coroner stated every slug had crashed in a spot in the dead man's chest no larger than a silver dollar. Only one man killed like that. Such was the whisper that spread through gangland. And through stool pigeons and paid informants, the police got the tip. Freddie Kildane was missng about his old haunts. He had melted into the netherworld of crime. But the chance witness outside the building came forward. He had seen a man run from the place, he said carrying a small satchel that rattled. And he remembered his cap. It was an odd shade of green, he was sure. Yes, he would know it again if he saw it. Time passed—and the careful watch kept on Freddie's wife paid dividends. He was apprehended as he left her home—wearing a cap, but it was dark blue. No matter for such petty detail. He was tried, found guilty and sentenced to die in the electric chair.

But Freddie Kildane was no amateur. He was wise to the way of things. He was a member of an organized gang whose leader sat high in councils of the legitimate mighty in Chicago and directed their crimes through a combat leader. And Freddie had been a faithful lieutenant, killing, hi-jacking, voting as told. He knew a great deal. So the word went out. His friends got busy. A huge defense fund was raised. Respectable criminal lawyers, prominent members of the Bar association were approached. The man was a citizen. He had his rights under the Constitution. Their fee was high, but was promptly paid. Freddie must be saved. So the organized gang spread throughout the length and breadth of bailiwicks their leader controlled on election day. Coercion, threat, intimidation and blackmail—with now and then a nasty beating—quickly filled the coffers of war. So the high-priced, high-standing legal counsel accepted the defense. And word went out by grapevine that the big boss, hidden under cover of respectability far behind the ramparts of political power, was pleased. The eminent counsel unlimbered their big guns. But before they had even functioned, when the subtle power of their mere identity became known, those who were crime-wise in Chicago knew the answer. The defendant would beat the charge. It was a sure thing. Oh yes, it would take time. Because the regular legal procedure must be followed. Then came the roar of the criminal lawyer's big guns.

A motion for a new trial was immediately filed, stressing a dozen strong technical reasons for a reversal of the sentence of death. Weeks passed and the motion for a new trial was denied. But they still had the Supreme Court for appeals. So the appeal was dictated. There had been an error of form in impanelling the jury that convicted Freddie Kildane. A certain word in the indictment was wrong. The trial judge had erred in allowing a witness to answer a question. He had erred again in refusing to allow the witness to answer a question. The record of evidence was spotted with these glaring errors by the list of exceptions defense counsel had taken. Besides this, they claimed the Judge had not maintained an impartial attitude during the trial. And the District Attorney had spoken a word that was forbidden! If any of these claims were found correct, they argued, a new trial should be granted. So the Supreme Court took the appeal. And defense counsel sensed that august body was already deeply impressed by the fact that Freddie Kildane had actually worn a dark blue cap the night of the murder, while the star witness for the prosecution had sworn the fleeing killer wore one that was dark green!

Such were the activities within the law—all in order. But deep down in the burrows of gangland sinister plans had been made. The story of that star witness was damning. Something had to be done. Then one day the witness died accidentally! It seems he fell from a crowded "L" station platform before the oncoming wheels of a through express. He was ground to death under the wheels. They picked up the pieces, and officers carried him to the morgue in a gunnysack. So much for the star witness, but how about the others?

The new trial was won before it had been granted. For Freddie's friends under the lash of the Boss, had been doing nice work in the meantime. No one had seen how the star witness was maneuvered close to the platform edge. In the crowd no eyes had witnessed the neat little push that sent the man clawing through the air, under the mutilating wheels. The ways of the master of accidents were too subtle for human eyes. The parade to the "hot-chair" was rapidly disintegrating! Intimidation of witnesses had been persistent, but a harried Prosecutor was unable to prove it, in view of the rules of evidence and court procedure. One or two had left the State—sure in their hearts that the cold, deadly voice on the phone meant sure death had they stayed. Still others had read of the case—and for the sake of safety for the wife and children had changed their minds about important details.

Then the Supreme Court granted the new trial—as perhaps it found it requisite upon itself to do—in view of the subtle twist appealing attorneys had given those technicalities of the Law's interpretation, first invented for the protection of the innocent. The witnesses were called. But they were either missing or had changed their minds. All in all, it appeared there was insufficient evidence. So the tricks of the trade had served their purpose. Attorneys for the defense vociferously and with much show of righteousness demanded a verdict of acquittal—in view of the absence of the "least scintilla of relevant evidence." The Prosecuting Attorney was forced to agree because, so far as fact went, there were no witnesses to present! So there was nothing for the Judge to do but grant it!

So the Judge told the Jury and the Jury told Freddie he was free to go. And Freddie was free—to kill another watchman.

That was murder, completely and callously done. But it was a killing performed in a protective sense while the murderer was engaged in another type of felony. Indirectly by its meaning, it excoriates the system in vogue today as endorsed and maintained by the public in its detection and prosecution and punishment of crime. Let us look further behind the scenes. First, it may be best to raise the curtain not upon such murders as this, but upon murder as it has become an art in America.

Murderers shot down close to ten thousand men, women and children in the United States in 1928. Murderers assassinated another two thousand the same year by other methods than the gun. It will be next to impossible to avoid the murder of another twelve thousand this year—or more! And next year. These twelve thousand murders were sixteen times as many as in England and Wales combined, pro rata the population. With five million people living in Scotland, there were only eleven murders in one year, while in Massachusetts, with twenty per cent less inhabitants, ten times as many murders. In Japan in one year there were four hundred sixty-one murders with fifty-eight million population. In the United States with twice the population, there were thirty times as many murders. And Japan and England and Germany and Spain; in fact, the whole civilized world stands ready to swear under oath that life is held cheaply in America, cheaper than anywhere else in the world. This disregard for the value of human life runs proportionately parallel with the growing disdain for any and all law.

Let us go in deeper. The average age of each of the known murderers was between twenty-seven and twenty-eight for the youngest, and the older, thirty-seven. The American Insurance Expectancy tables show twenty-five additional years to be the normal expectancy of this age. Which means this average murderer would live twenty-five years beyond the date of the murder. Assume that eighty-five hundred of the twelve thousand murdered came to their death by the gun, instead of the nine or ten thousand shown. In twenty years there would have occurred approximately one hundred seventy thousand deaths from murder. And our expectancy tables prove that the oldest of the murderers of this number should still be alive. By this process we can conservatively conclude that we would have one hundred twenty thousand red-handed murderers free on our streets today. Deductions have been made for the inroad of death among them, the penalties paid by killers in death and prison, insanity and disappearance. This is a conservative figure—one hundred twenty thousand guilty men and women who have each shot down someone in cold blood—roaming the country freely today—out of the crimes of the last twenty years.

This condition appears a more personal threat if it is remembered that so many potential two-time killers cannot live and move about among us without bringing us face to face with the threat they represent. The taxi driver who brings you home, the waiter who serves you, the conductor who takes your fare, milkman, janitor; any of these. It means that many, many times monthly most of us have touched shoulders, perhaps unmeaningly crossed the path of these deadly killers. Your scoffer may say: "But there are one hundred and forty millions in America—that makes a mere handful of one hundred twenty thousand." But does it? Let us compare. In 1920 there were one hundred twenty-two thousand lawyers and judges and there were one hundred twenty thousand men and women killers! More murders in America than normal school pupils; almost as many killers as clergymen; four red-handed, cold-blooded murderers in America to every five doctors or surgeons! More murderers than there are organized police, and fully twice as many killers as peace officers of the Federal Government!

The United States of America has no near competitor in the shameful record of murder. Italy has 4.5 murders annually per 100,000 population. We have more than 13 dead annually by murder for each 100,000 people! Here are some other comparative figures: England, whose poor law we took over in its entirety, its good in some phases, has less than .6 per 100000. And that is the bottom rate. It has continually decreased in England. It has continually increased in this country.

Dr. F. L. Hoffman, a statistician of note, remarks:

"The story revealed by statistics of homicidal deaths is an amazing and deplorable evidence of our drift into a nation-wide violence and contempt for the sanctity of human life. Our record is not approached in this respect by the corresponding record of any great nation of the earth, properly called civilized."

Again, in the Province of Ontario, among a population of a little more than 3,000,000, murders numbered 49, representing a rate of 1.9 which compares with a rate of 2.5 for Massachusetts and 8.4 for the United States Registration area back so far as 1922. In Australia, with a population estimated at about 5,500,000, there were 92 murders, or at a rate of 1.6 per 100,000 against a rate than of 8.4 for this land of the free and the home of the brave. It begins to appear it is well we are brave. But we are dormant—docile, long suffering. In other words, for every murder on a per capita basis in Australia we marked up five.

The report of the Commissioner of Police for the metropolis of London speaks volumes:

"There were seventeen cases of alleged murder of persons over one year of age, ten less than in the preceding year. In one of these cases it was subsequently established that death was due to natural causes. In eight cases the murderer committed suicide. (Author's parenthesis: Mark that. So sure is justice—so unobstructed—so certain is death.) Seven persons were apprehended and charged with murder and of these one was charged with murder committed the preceding year. And one was responsible for three cases. Five of the persons arrested, including the one responsible for three murders, were found to be insane at the time the crimes were committed; one was convicted and sentenced to death, and one was discharged by the Magistrate. In the last case the prisoner was charged, on his own confession, with the murder of a woman with whom he had cohabited. He visited her room, and finding her apparently asleep, tried to arouse her by shaking her head. Failing to wake her, he left the house, but returned shortly and was informed she was dead. He thereupon conceived the idea he was responsible for her death and thereupon surrendered to the police but her death was found to have been due to natural causes. In one case of murder no arrest has been effected."

There you have a reasonable murder record. Why the vast difference between it and ours? A score of reasons. Prominent among them public lethargy, public disrespect for law and order. There are others, such as lack of crime detection, blinded courts, antiquated legal procedure, politics, absence of universal finger printing, and prisons that punish.

* * * I am just in receipt of the compilation of figures for the first seven months of this year. The homicide record as of August first, 1933, for the first seven months of this year discloses a startling increase. Added to the steady leaps with which the total murders in America have mounted each and every year since 1880, these figures become the more terrible. They follow:

	No. Murders Reported
January	990
February	784
March	1028
April	1164
May	852
June	686
July	820
	6324

A total of 6,324 murders for 214 days in this country! Chicago alone reports the following:

January	35
February	26
March	42
April	46
May	25
June	29
July	30

The figures collated by the Bureau of Census for the Department of Commerce, for 1930-31, are further enlightening.

Murder	6.7	8.1	7.6	7.7	8.	8.2	8.3	9.	9.3
Suicide	10.2	12.5	11.9	11.6	12.2	12.3	12.9	15.6	16.8

To better judge what those deceiving percentages really mean, remember that the 9.3 percentage for murder in 1931 actually means 11,160 men, women and children murdered in cold blood. The discrepancy between this figure and the approximate 12,500 who were actually slaughtered, is due to lack of reports from some states to the Census Bureau. This means a murder every forty-two minutes—in a land of liberty! The larger percentage of this red slaughter is not composed of "crimes of passion." Instead, the greater portion of them are conceived in greed; cold-blooded, planned killings of a "business type." They are the "erasures," the "rubbing out" of enemies of organized crime.

Analysis again gives the true picture. From 1920 to 1930—a mere ten years of national existence—we have witnessed a fearful growth of 50 per cent in the slaughter of citizens by the route of murder, bought and paid for.

Nor would such a cursory examination of this record give the true picture. I have purposely set down, below the murder record, the number of suicides reported. Why? Because men who have rubbed shoulders with crime; investigating officers, coroners and deputies of both Sheriffs' offices and County States' Attorneys, know that a startling percentage of all deaths reported as "suicide" are in fact murder—cold blooded cunningly planned killings that rightfully belong within the category of "perfect crimes." For by their character they defy solution. A conservative estimate, based upon the opinions of 112 such informed law enforcement officers, is that fully 10 per cent of all reported "suicides" were murder!

Based upon the reliability of that premise, the admitted and reported homicidal statistics mount to an even more shameful total. The 11,160 murders reported and admitted becomes nearer 14,000 souls! And here is an inside fact, apropos of this discussion: A very small percentage of the reported "suicides" by hanging, were suicides. By far the vast majority of them were murder; cunning, diabolically clever murder, based upon a little known medico legal fact relative to strangulation and its attendant marks. It would ill become me to furnish details. I might well be charged with the crime of accessory before the fact for thousands of "hanging murders" to follow were I to further clarify that statement.

The disregard for the value of human life displayed by this fearful murder record is America's greatest shame. There has never been anything like it in all the civilized world. It is a veritable plague of assassination that writes plain upon our national coat-of-arms. It smears it with a bar sinister that establishes us as a nation among whom there is no sacrilege to God or man—in snuffing out human life.

So much for murder and the assassins strolling our highways and byways.

What is the reason for this damning condition? It does not lie deep within the tortuous theories of biology, pathology or physiology. No such complicated reasoning is required. It is much simpler to see the truth. But it is a series of truths—rather than a single one. So many things are responsible in part for this terrible condition, that merely to list them must suffice now.

First, there is public lethargy. There is no nearly infallible method of crime detection, court prosecution or punishment that will instill fear of God and man in the hearts of the predatory criminals who roam the land. Organized criminals are responsible for such proportion of the total of murder, robbery, burglary, kidnaping and arson, together with other felonious crimes, as represent the difference between a normal amount of crime and this terrific total that staggers the world. And organized criminals neither fear detection prosecution or punishment, if, when and as detected, and convicted. Other things are at fault. There are shady bail bondsmen, crooked criminal lawyers, adequate courts of tremendous power—but most judges of the latter are elected to office by votes! Ah, there's the rub too often. Court procedure, rules of evidence, are frayed, antiquated worn out in service. They are the remnants of older days; of another time, and are no longer equal to the task of modern days. There are weak juries—even professional jurymen. There are sob-sisters, sentimentalists; sweet, but ill informed old ladies who clutter the prisons with tenderness for brutal killers; with aid for habitual criminals of every type. There is capital punishment, but it is not enforced, nor is it a statute of universal application. There is no corporal punishment. There are private detectives of the shady sort who function to subvert justice. There is no uniform penal code; no centralized National Secret Service. There is no unity of police action among the several states. There is no universal fingerprinting system. There are no border patrols. Then lastly, but far from least there is politics; rotten, filthy politics, that permit traitors in office to sell protection to organized crime. Politics have ruined our courts, prostituted justice, often contaminated parole and pardon boards and corrupted too many prison managements.

A strong statement? Yes. And easy charges to make. But if you will go further with me into the pestiferous swamps that bar the way of justice through the jungle of crime, we will see proofs of every statement; proofs read out of the facts, unsullied by conclusion or personal opinion. And then together, we may foresee, build and offer a remedy that may keep our Country worthy of its heritage.

PLYMOUTH OFFICIAL ATTENDS MEETINGS

The business world today offers unlimited opportunities for the trained, intelligent "hard-worker," with more chances for advancement than at any other time in history, H. G. Moock, general sales manager of the Plymouth Motor Corporation, declared today.

Moock is in Los Angeles for meetings with members of the Plymouth Salesmen's league to give them first-hand information of Plymouth's rapid progress this year. He also is meeting with dealers, discussing additional factory plans for advertising and merchandising the new Plymouth Special Six announced recently.

PREVIEW, MAYNARD AT STATE TONIGHT

An added attraction at Walker's State theater tonight is a studio preview which is to be screened at 8:45 o'clock, Manager Vic Walker announced today. It is a Monogram comedy-action film, he said.

The regular bill which opens a two day run, features Ken Maynard in "Gun Justice", a story replete with fast action and good entertainment, in which Maynard finds himself pitted against two gangs of plains hoodlums to protect the legacy left him and Cecilia Parker by his uncle who was murdered.

Other films on the program include a chapter of "The Perils of Pauline"; a news reel; "Mickey's Steeplechase" a Mouse cartoon; and a comedy, "Blue Blackbirds."

'All Rigged Up' for Stratosphere

Delayed again by unfavorable weather conditions, the personnel of the Kepner-Stevens stratosphere flight had a chance to make further alterations and tests on the metal gondola, shown above outside its "hangar" for inspection of its rigging and equipment.

OPERA TO BE GIVEN AT BOWL NEXT WEEK

Responding to popular demand, Richard Bonelli, Metropolitan opera baritone who added to his laurels as soloist in the Bowl last week will sing the role of Tonio in "Pagliacci" to be performed Friday night, July 27, in the Hollywood Bowl.

The opera to be performed in concert form will have the following principals in addition to Bonelli: Francia White, in the role of Nedda and Tandy MacKenzie as Canio. Richard Dennis will sing the part of Harlequin. Alberto Conti will conduct.

Leoncavallo's opera is the first of the operas to be performed in the famous amphitheater during the thirteenth season of Symphonies. Four will be given on Friday nights starting with Pagliacci and ending with Faust, the others being Cavalleria Rusticana and Carmen.

Besides the principals, a chorus of 60 Los Angeles Opera voices trained by William Tyroler, will sing in the operas.

In the third week of Bowl concerts Sir Hamilton Harty, celebrated Irish composer-conductor, will direct the orchestra of 100 musicians. Toscha Seidel, violinist, will be the soloist Thursday night, July 26.

Georgia Starke, soprano, and Alexander Akimoff, basso of the American Opera company, will be the soloists on the Saturday night popular program with Sir Hamilton conducting.

Sir Henry Wood of London concludes his two-week visit in the Bowl with the Saturday, July 21st concert. He will program Richard Strauss' Till Eulenspiegel's "Merry Pranks," a joyous symphonic work that has increased in popularity in recent years. Lester Donahue, pianist, and Mary Teitsworth, soprano, will be the soloists.

QUOTE LOW PRICE FOR STUDEBAKERS

Studebaker has greeted the mid-summer automobile market with a new series of "year-ahead" models.

The new Studebakers, which may be inspected at the showrooms of Headley Motors at Second and Sycamore, bring two interesting factors into the automobile industry. The first is the introduction of vacuum power brakes to the low price field. The second is the development of teardrop design and making this ultra-modern styling available to purchasers of cars selling for less than $1000.

For a limited time only, the Headley garage is selling a Studebaker Dictator delivered in Santa Ana for less than $775. This car has a 114 inch wheelbase, six cylinders, assortment of colors in all models and gasoline economy of 19 to 21 miles per gallon.

What is higher education doing for today's young women? . . . Here we have the interesting views of Barnard College's dean on such topics as careers, matrimony, and good old "flaming youth"

By Helen Welshimer

IF preparation for marriage means merely the knowledge of how to arrange a vegetable plate, sew on buttons and keep the laundry as pure as a country snow-ball, then pre-marital training has no place in the curriculum of a woman's college.

But if it means the development of a sympathetic, comprehensive understanding of the world and its problems, and the ability to travel down any conversational path that a man may suggest without asking him where he is going, then a girl who intends to marry can learn a lot at college!

Dean Virginia Gildersleeve, head of Barnard College in New York City, and a recognized leader in education, believes in the broadening viewpoint which college gives women.

"It is not the duty of a liberal arts college for women to train its students in cooking, or in the care of young children," she says. "These skills can be found at home or in technical schools. Neither is it the duty of a college to teach girls to type. Any college student who sincerely wishes to learn typing and stenography can master them in any one of her summer vacations.

"But it is especially the mission of a woman's college to fire the mind with the excitement of comprehending the world we live in, its objective facts and its people. No alert college girl today is satisfied with book-learning alone. She knows, or at least has begun to surmise, that her relation to other people will be the most difficult and most precious part of her life.

"AND she uses her college to enlarge her sympathies and understanding. This will serve her far better in marriage than would courses in cooking or in other phases of housekeeping.

"The tendency to make the knowledge of the preparation of food the prime requisite for a wife reminds me of a statement of Charlotte Perkins Gilman's which illustrates my point. She said: 'Even more important than the food on the table is the conversation around the table.'

"Anything which makes a woman into a more intelligent, interesting human being prepares her to be a wife and a mother.

"This overemphasis on the technical side of education is due to the overemphasis on the machine side of life. The spirit which wields the machinery is considerably more important than the tools themselves. People are just beginning to awaken to this fact."

Dean Gildersleeve says that because of changed economic conditions, college girls have learned not to expect as much as formerly.

"About 15 years ago employers stood around the doors of colleges and snapped up the graduates as rapidly as they came out," she says. "The whole world was at their feet. Now the girls expect little.

"They realize, though, that they are living in an enormously interesting world. They often say to me: 'It is a difficult world but an interesting one.'"

DEAN GILDERSLEEVE, who has been head of Barnard since 1911, smiled over a question about the passing of flaming youth, now so often conceded to be gone forever.

"Everyone has a special definition in his own mind for flaming youth when he speaks of it," she said. "I have seen many generations of college girls here at Barnard, and I know that the many girls who are today working part of their way through college are just as flaming in their youth, so to speak, in their eagerness for life, as the girls of a few years ago who were often self-indulgent, indifferent and irresponsible.

"These harsh qualities, or lack of qualities, were less evident on college campuses than among young people outside, but they existed to some extent even here at Barnard.

"There is less desire to be extreme on the part of college girls today. There is a swing away from so-called flaming youth. Girls are more decorous. There is no special ambition to be considered reckless.

"In fact, a graver attitude has come. The girls still play but they haven't enough money any more to play outside the college. Not so long ago young men took them to the theater. Now social life and play within the college are flourishing. It is a cheaper outlet for their playing."

All of which means that when the modern college girl marries she won't demand that her husband provide outside entertainment. She will have learned to amuse herself. And him too.

THE young man of today won't have to depend on his next-door neighbor or the men at his club for a discussion of world problems however, if he marries a college girl who is typical of the new generation, the well-known educator asserts. Her mind will never ask handicaps from her husband.

"For the last 25 years there has been a tendency for girls to discuss things which are of interest outside the college walls," remarks the dean. "After the war, they talked about international affairs and wanted an international understanding. And lately there have been so many vital legislative measures at home and so many problems to be considered that their minds have been stimulated constantly."

Any man who goes knocking at the Barnard portals, searching for a bride, may or may not find that she can time soft-boiled eggs at breakfast, or cream a homely vegetable, but he will discover that she knows politics and what is going on. Maybe she hasn't ever ironed a shirt, but she can talk intelligently when he wants to discuss the veterans' bill.

In brief, she won't bore her husband.

Barnard has a special department of government which it considers quite as important as the department of French or Latin. Courses in European and American government are offered. When a country begins a revolution, or a prince loses his throne because his bride is a commoner, the Barnard girl understands why.

There is another course called "The Practice of Politics" which requires the students taking it to work with their parties at election time.

Barnard has a pamphlet, too, which it circulates. "You and Your Government" it is called. There is a sub-title which reads: "What You as College Women Can Do About It."

GIRLS are entering the government service in definite positions. They are making good, too, Dean Gildersleeve asserts.

And yet—

Every girl, no matter how much she may know about the League of Nations or a conference at Geneva, wants to get married!

"All the girls who are in college expect to marry and have children," the chief executive of Barnard says.

But in another important respect, the 1934 college girl does not completely resemble her mother and her grandmother. She often wants and expects to continue her career after marriage, and she often has to.

"It may be necessary for a girl to continue her career after marriage in order to make marriage possible," Dean Gildersleeve, who has watched hundreds of Barnard girls marry, asserts. "Whether or not she does all depends on the financial status of her husband.

"She does not continue to work for the sake of any abstract principle or to prove that a woman can marry and still carry on. She works because she wants to, or because her husband has lost his job and she must keep hers, or the reason, maybe, that her husband's job doesn't bring in enough money to care for all the family when there are children."

If a girl has definite creative ability, that is different. Her husband may have the wealth of Croesus but she will want to paint pictures, write stories, practice scales, or do scholarly research!

THERE is a definite tendency toward teaching and medicine, the chief administrative officer of Barnard has discovered.

"Professions which develop and conserve life always appeal to women," she says. "They tend to favor medicine, social work, nursing and teaching rather than the combative professions.

"Social work is the one profession where there seem to be plenty of openings for the thoroughly trained college women. The readjustment of families and the immense responsibilities that the government has been accepting will need trained social workers. The government is obviously going to do lots of things which private organizations have done in the past."

College girls today are physically stronger than they were 25 years ago, too, Miss Gildersleeve says. She attributes this to health education—the value of spinach which they have learned to eat, sunshine which they know they must get, and the continuance of outdoor games and sports. Tennis, archery, swimming, riding, fencing, basketball—Barnard has all of them on its curriculum.

There is another respect, too, in which today's graduate of a woman's college is unlike her mother who received her diploma 25 years ago. Today she isn't aware of such a thing as the feminist movement. She takes everything, from the right to vote down, as her natural inheritance.

"Feminism in the old sense, as far as the conflict between the two sexes is concerned, is entirely gone," Dean Gildersleeve explains. "Girls now accept as a matter of fact those privileges for which older women fought."

Any man who wants a wife who thinks merely of bridge, fashions, curves, dances, and movies will never find her in the modern college girl. But if he wants a wife who has an active intellect, and even a sense of humor, a campus is the place to hunt, apparently.

Whether or not a girl understands the mechanics of keeping a house when she receives her degree, isn't as important as the way in which she reacts to domestic responsibilities. Dean Gildersleeve illustrates her point with the story of a Barnard graduate of 15 years ago whom she met in the west recently:

"She told me that she had been doing her own housework and laundry for the last three years for her husband and three children. She found that her college education was useful, for she had lots of interesting things in her mind with which to amuse herself while she worked, and she even made verse poetry over the wash tub."

Because college prepared this woman to meet whatever came, Barnard and many of her sister colleges in the east arrange courses of study that lead, experience proves, to good all-round human beings. And these make the best wives and the best citizens, you may rest assured.

HEALTHY FEET TO BE SUBJECT OF BROADCAST

The first of a series of broadcasts entitled "Healthy Feet!" will be made from KREG at 7:45 tonight presenting a series of highly informative talks by Richard A. Bradford on little known but very important and interesting factors of foot-comfort, it was announced. The broadcast series will be sponsored by the Dr. A. Reed Shoe company of 318 North Sycamore, in Santa Ana.

Topics such as the many differences often found between the characteristics of one individual's feet; how foot-comfort may be practically assured; how a few minutes of properly fitting correct shoes to the individual means months and years of foot-comfort, and many other little known facts concerning the fitting of shoes will be discussed in this series of brief talks.

Dr. A. P. Browne, well known Santa Ana chiropodist, will also be heard in some of the broadcasts and will make brief but highly interesting talks on chiropody and the essentials of foot-comfort in terms that everyone can understand.

DON WILKIE TO RELATE CRIME STORY TONIGHT

Voicing a plea to take sentiment out of criminal justice, Captain Don Wilkie, former United States secret service agent and world authority on crime, will relate the true story entitled "A Woman Goes Free" on KREG tonight at 7:30 o'clock, it was announced.

The story, the fifth of a sensational series to be broadcast as a special feature, will uncover inside facts regarding the trial of a pretty young Chicago girl, who although guilty of murder in cold blood, managed to win an acquittal at the hands of a jury of sympathetic and admiring men.

The story, Captain Wilkie declares, brings to light the vital need at this time of more women on juries where the innocence or guilt of a good looking defendant is being weighed.

On Monday night at 7:30 o'clock Captain Wilkie will tell the first episode of one of the most daring counterfeiting plots ever undertaken in the history of the United States.

The "In The Crimelight" series of broadcasts by Captain Don Wilkie are being made from KREG exclusively.

"CONSULTANTS" ON KREG THIS EVENING

With "Brother Louie" and "Mama" arriving unexpectedly, "Dr. Adolph Augustus Schlizenheimer," treasurer and now secretary, president and "chief ponderer" of "The Business Consultants" is having a somewhat hectic time to keep things running smoothly!

Tonight's broadcast of the humorous serial, presented by Jud Sutherland and "Doc" Jones, will include an interesting scene in the railroad station pending the arrival of the visitors and a general mixup is predicted.

"The Business Consultants" are scheduled each Friday, on KREG exclusively, at 6:45 p. m.

Front Page Drama On Kreg Program

An unusually clever dramatization of the apparently "perfect crime" that was revealed by a simple mistake will be broadcast from KREG at 8:45 tonight under the title of "Simple Suicide," another in the series of "Front Page Dramas" scheduled each Friday at this time on the local station.

SALLY MUELLER SINGS INDIAN SONGS TONIGHT

A group of Indian songs by Thurlow Lieurance, a leading authority on Indian music among the present-day American composers, will be sung by Sally Coe Mueller, one of Southern California's favorite vocalists, during her presentation tonight on KREG at 8 o'clock, it was announced by studio officials.

The program will include "Canoe Song," "From an Indian Village," "By the Waters of the Minnetonka," "Indian Spring Bird" and "By Weeping Waters."

The composer's many years of intensive study of Indian music have brought forth many traditional songs that are priceless. These delightful selections as sung by this delightful artist will comprise a most entertaining program, it was stated.

BEACH HOME IS SCENE OF CHURCH MEET

FULLERTON, July 20.—More than 24 women of the Presbyterian church yesterday were guests of Dr. and Mrs. Graham C. Hunter at the Hunter home at Newport Beach, and had a covered dish luncheon preceding the missionary meeting that occupied the afternoon hour. Besides the women, many children attended the meeting.

Mrs. J. P. LaRue presided at the meeting. She called on Mrs. Sophia Kaylor, who reported on the relief work, and Mrs. C. F. W. Kohlenberger, who reported on the book reviews and study courses of the guild of the church.

Mrs. Elizabeth Robinson was in charge of the program and presented Mrs. J. E. Donaldson of Sunset Beach who talked on her recent trip around the world.

The next meeting will be in August at the home of Mrs. Donaldson at Sunset Beach.

Arno Art Club To Hold Meet Monday

FULLERTON, July 20. — The Arno Art club will meet with Mrs. A. W. Purdy at her home at 1011 North Harvard Monday, July 23, at 9:30 a. m. for a time of study.

THREE SPEAK AT MEETING OF SINCLAIR CLUB

FULLERTON, July 20.—Three speakers last night co-operated in presenting the Upton Sinclair program for governor at a reorganization meeting of the Fullerton club at Sinclair headquarters on East Commonwealth avenue. They were Dr. David Buchanan, formerly pastor of the San Diego Presbyterian church; C. R. Allen of Fullerton, Democratic candidate for assemblyman from the 75th district, and T. E. Pickerill of Santa Ana.

Harry Gerhart took over the work of organizing the 75th district, on resignation of Darrel McGavren, and John C. Herr of Fullerton was elected chairman of the district work, to handle affairs under Gerhart.

Dr. Buchanan, featured speaker, brought a message on "Your Economic Place in the Sun," urging that political parties should simply be minority and majority groups, and warning that "any man facing these conditions of extreme poverty, who would play party politics is capable of committing any crime."

He outlined three primary causes for the depression, first, private ownership of the mass production machine; production for profit rather than use, and a falacious principle of the medium of exchange of money.

"Want in the midst of a democracy should cover with shame all people of that democracy, and President Roosevelt felt that, for his first activity in being inducted in office was an effort to relieve distress," the speaker declared, as he told of the likenesses of the program of Sinclair and that already employed by the president.

Other points of the program of Sinclair are graded taxation; pension for the aged, the widows and underprivileged. On this point the speaker declared that "Only because we have become dehumanized from living under an inhuman system can we have suffered such neglect of the aged and the out of work groups."

The "End Poverty In California" program is designed to place the economic system in line with the other laws of the universe, and to place it in the sun," he declared.

Allen brought to his hearers various articles from the constitution of California, outlining people's rights under the constitution; T. E. Pickerill brought a short message on the need of cooperating for the Sinclair program, and said that in Europe Upton Sinclair is recognized as the greatest American author.

AMARANTH CLUB IN DINNER AND PARTY

FULLERTON, July 20.—Mrs. Charles Grafton last night opened her home to members of Amaranth Club Royal when she entertained 22 members at 320 Adams street at a covered dish dinner and card party, the monthly social gathering of the lodge.

Mr. and Mrs. Ely Biggs won prizes at bridge, as did Miss Hazel Smalley. Mrs. Florence Davis of Brea won the Hearts prize.

Mrs. Hazel Smalley presided at the short business hour, where arrangements were made to hold the next party with Mrs. William Brooks of Brea, August 16. It will be a party where all guests will attend dressed as children. A covered dish dinner will precede the evening of games and the business meeting.

Auxiliary Club In Sewing Meet

TUSTIN, July 20.—Considerable sewing for welfare work was accomplished by members of the Sewing club of the Tustin American Legion auxiliary Wednesday when they met at the home of Mrs. Pauline Cleary, 1043 West Chestnut street, Santa Ana. A covered-dish luncheon was shared at noon at prettily appointed tables.

Those present, other than the hostess, Mrs. Cleary, and her mother, Mrs. Linna Hanson, were Mrs. Laura Marks, Mrs. Charles Cleary, Mrs. Chester Curl, Mrs. Esther Johnson, Mrs. Dwight Hayden, Mrs. Mary Matthews, Mrs. Mollie Smith, Mrs. Vera Parks, Mrs. Helen Matthews, and Mrs. Florence Smith, of Anaheim.

FULLERTON, July 20.—Grace Parlor, Native Daughters of the Golden West, which serves Northern Orange county, last night opened its eighth year of activity when Mrs. Matilda Enfield of Placentia was installed as president at ceremonies performed at Placentia Round Table clubhouse.

Installed with Mrs. Enfield were Mrs. Erna Watts, past president; Mrs. Rebecca Hasson, vice president; Mrs. Kate Hill, second vice president; Mrs. Alice Davis, third vice president; Miss Grace Hirigoyen, marshal; Mrs. Mary Rothaermel, of Whittier, recording secretary; Mrs. Dora Trendle, financial secretary; Mrs. Nellie Cline, treasurer; Mrs. Lena Wagner, Mrs. Lydia Oswell and Mrs. Ida Matter, trustees; Miss Johanna Lemke, inside sentinel; Miss Marie Jacobsen, outside sentinel, and Mrs. Marie Haiber, organist.

Mrs. Erna Watts, ways and means chairman, with Mrs. Kate Hill, Mrs. Hasson, Mrs. Trendle, Mrs. Edna Gender and Mrs. Enfield serving with her; history, and landmarks, Mrs. Alice Davis, chairman, Mrs. Rothermael, Mrs. Lena Aspden and Mrs. Lucanna McFadden; homeless children work, Mrs. Helen Anderson, chairman, Mrs. Christine McFarland and Mrs. Rena Johnson.

Welfare and Americanization, Mrs. Nellie Cline, chairman, Mrs. Ella Wallop and Mrs. Edith Phillips; inter-parlor, Mrs. Lena Wagner, chairman, and Mrs. Matilda Oswald; veteran welfare, Mrs. Marie Haiber and Mrs. Christine Dunham; publicity, Miss Marie Jacobsen, Mrs. Mamie Hirigoyen and Mrs. Lena Aspden; flower and visiting, Mrs. Kate Hill, chairman, Mrs. Mae Lemke, Mary Mason and Mrs. Sarah Donald.

The parlor served dainty refreshments at the close of the meeting. Announcement was made that the next meeting will be a public card party at the Round Table club August 2.

PLAN TO CUT DOWN NEWPORT C. C. BUDGET

NEWPORT BEACH, July 20.—Confronted with the necessity of economizing for the remainder of the year, chamber of commerce heads, in an executive meeting here last night, devoted the majority of the evening to a discussion of plans to cut down on the annual budget. It was disclosed by the treasurer's report that there was $955 in the treasury for the year, exclusive of the Tournament of Lights expenses, and a budget calling for $3500 expenditures. A committee will be appointed by the president to consider ways and means of reducing the budget.

The plan of L. A. Cox, of the Fullerton High school, for a program of playground activity for Newport Beach met with the unqualified approval of the group. The plan, as proposed by Cox, is self-financing, being financed by local merchants in return for advertising privileges. It was strongly recommended by Walter Spicer, Newport Beach lumberman, and president-elect of the Newport Harbor Service club.

The president ordered a special committee to make further investigations necessary, and to cooperate with Cox and Ralph K. Reed of the local high school in working out details of the plan. Roughly, the proposed program calls for the organization of Newport Beach youngsters into classes to learn swimming, water activities and the various sports, to be supplemented by a program of water carnivals similar to those held recently on Balboa Island, featuring the activities of the younger folk. The suggestion of J. M. Clarke, of the Balboa school of swimming and diving, for a swimming meet to be held in August, was referred to the special committee, as yet not appointed. The committee, it was said, will comprise members of the Boy Scouts, Sea Scouts, and high school.

The question of continuing the broadcast of fishing reports over station KREG in Santa Ana resulted in a decision to carry on until the end of the year and to invite the support of those business men interested in fishing activities, to assist in the financing of the program. Questions of advertising expense were laid over for another meeting pending further study of the budget and the possibility of additional city funds for this purpose.

Everett Hoagland and Robert Braun of KHJ, the Don Lee station, presented a plan for putting Newport Harbor on the Columbia network for the month of August. Suggestions for the division of the cost, and offers of financial cooperation were outlined and a special committee, consisting of George A. Rogers, J. A. Beek and W. L. Jordan, was appointed to discuss the matter with some of the business men of the community.

Former Residents Of Brea Are Back

BREA, July 20.—Mrs. George White and two daughters, Phyllis and Loraine, former long time residents of Brea, are here from their home in Trona and are living in the home of Mrs. Nondys Bibb, 100 North Orange. Mr. White is remaining in Trona where he is an engineer in salt mines but Mrs. White and the children will spend the summer here, being at Newport Beach a part of the time.

Costa Mesans Swing To Bourbon Party

COSTA MESA, July 20.—Out of 300 persons that have been registered to vote by him within the past few weeks Lloyd Willcutt, deputy county clerk, of Costa Mesa, stated today that less than sever per cent of those registering have registered as Republicans. All but two of the larger number registered as Democrats, he stated. Affidavits were signed by over 100 persons during the same period, changing their political affiliations from Republican to Democrat, he said, and one changed from Democrat to Republican.

SOCIAL EVENT HELD AT GARDEN GROVE

GARDEN GROVE, July 20.— A delightful evening was spent by members of the Business and Professional Women's Social club and friends at the home of Mrs. Clara Bruederle on North Euclid avenue, Wednesday evening, with Mesdames Alice Smith and Helen Engen as co-hostesses. Guests present included Miss Justine Whitney, county recorder, of Santa Ana; Mrs. Stella Diggins of Hollywood, Miss June Lindquist, San Pedro; Mrs. Earl Sheldon, Pasadena; Mrs. Ethel Phillips and Miss Clara Carmichael, Garden Grove.

At the business session, presided over by the president, Mrs. Hilda Reafsnyder, Miss Myrtle Ziegler was voted into membership by the club.

Six tables for bridge were arranged with clever score cards designed by Mrs. Alice Smith. At the conclusion of the games, first prize was awarded Miss Justine Whitney ;second price Mrs. Niota Sparks; and third prize, Mrs. Mabel Wilkinson. Delectable refreshments were served at tables centered with candles, and dainty bowls of flowers and maidenhair fern.

Present besides the hostesses and guests were: Mesdames Florence Barnes, Blanche Wisner, Clara Busker, Hilda Reafsnyder, Mildred Johnson, Irene Reafsnyder, Niota Sparks, Agnes McCullough, Mabel Wilkinson, Genevieve Crosby and Zelma Van der Linde; and the Misses Faire Virgin, Frances Dungan, Helen Knox, Mabel Head, Marcia Carmichael and Ann Ashley.

Social Club In Picnic At Park

MIDWAY CITY, July 20. — "Tumble Weed" club members enjoyed a hay ride to Irvine park Thursday evening, making the trip in the Robert Hazard truck, Mr. and Mrs. Hazard chaperoning the group on their picnic which was featured by a supper early in the evening.

The group met Wednesday evening for their weekly business and social gathering at the home of the Misses Mary and Marie Arnett and plans for the picnic were completed at that time.

The same group of young people attended both functions and were Mary and Marie Arnett, Frances and Melvin Heil, Genevive Salisbury, Emmaetta and Lois Hart, Bill Brumpton, Carl Warner, Clarence and Alfred Wasser, David Robertson, Gordon McAllister, Sally Tayes, Chick Hostettler, Bob Stroud, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hazard.

RECORD SET IN LAGUNA BEACH REGISTRATION

LAGUNA BEACH, July 20.—Indicative of an active interest in the business of government is the heavy registration of voters completed here yesterday, inquires revealed. According to figues collected at the chamber of commerce office, the total registration for the Laguna Beach districts totaled Wednesday night 1388, to which aggregate is to be added well over 100 yesterday, which would bring up the total to more than 1500, said to be the highest on record.

Registration yesterday was unusually heavy at the chamber of commerce office where Deputy Registrar Daisy Aitken added more than 80 names to the voting registrar. Men and women from outlying districts, persons who had remained indifferent to suffrage, yesterday for the first time established their right to vote. Another outstanding feature of registration in the past few days was the large number of young people, many of them having recently attained voting age, who registered.

Figures compiled for the past two days at the chamber of commerce registration place showed 61 Republicans, 52 Democrats, five non-partisan, and one single voter who declined to state his affiliation. The slight lead of the Republican party shown in these figures was lost, however, it was explained, by not less than 17 transfers from the Republican ranks to the Democratic forces Inquiries at other registration places disclosed an appreciable number of like transfers yesterday.

FETE MRS. REED ON HER BIRTHDAY

TUSTIN, July 20.—The birthday anniversary of Mrs. Eunice Reed, of Orange, was pleasantly observed Wednesday when her mother and sister, Mrs. Martha E. Ritchey and Miss Martha E. Ritchey, entertained a group of close friends and neighbors at their home on McFadden street. Baskets of roses and dahlias decorated the living room.

A delicious picnic luncheon was enjoyed at 1 o'clock under a large spreading mulberry tree near the home. A social afternoon followed, during which crochet was played.

Those sharing the happy occasion with the co-hostesses, Mrs. Ritchey and daughter, Miss Ritchey, and the honor guest, Mrs. Reed, were Mrs. Reed's daughter and grandson, Mrs. Eleanor Hogue and son, Douglas, of Orange; Miss Agnes Cummins, of Los Angeles; Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Utt and Mrs. George Brown, of Lemon Heights; Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Hatch and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Williams, of Tustin.

PASS TESTS

SAN JUAN CAPISTRANO, July 20.—Five Boy Scouts of the local Scout troop 12 recently passed a life saving test conducted by Bill Walters, life guard of Laguna Beach. This will give the boys one more Scout merit certificate. The boys are Robert Cook, Whitney Halladay, Billy Quackenbush, LeRoy Cady an dErnest Deer.

CHAMBER SEEKS GIRLS TO REPRESENT LAGUNA BEACH

LAGUNA BEACH, July 20.—Pulchritude of a most select type is being sought by the publicity department of the local chamber of commerce to represent the art colony at various beach activities along the Southland coast, according to Horace A. Dunn, director of publicity of the chamber.

At the present time, Dunn added, a "jungle beauty," to accompany the Laguna Lions club at the big Southland fiesta of the organization to be held at El Monte, is badly needed. The Laguna girl chosen for the part will appear with Elmo Lincoln, former motion picture actor and original "Tarzan of the Apes," for the beauty show forming part of the El Monte program.

The "Tarzan" girl from Laguna, Dunn explained, shold have long, dark hair and be between 18 and 28 years of age. Any young girl wishing to play the role on Friday, July 27, should communicate immediately with the chamber of commerce office.

GARDEN GROVE LIONS CLUB TO ENTER FLOAT

GARDEN GROVE, July 20.—At the regular meeting of the Lions club held Wednesday at Legion hall the matter of entering a float in the electrical pageant at Newport Beach on July 28 was discussed following a talk on the proposition by Harry Welch of Newport Beach. The following committee was appointed to confer with other organizations of the town in helping to sponsor the float. Charles Lake, chairman, Virgil Sparks and Robert Smith.

It was decided to have a "stag" party at the home of J. W. Crill on the evening of July 25 with E. O. Fulsom, Virgil Sparks, and Dr. N. Jesch, as the committee to make arrangements, and a dinner on the evening of August 29 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Schauer with the women as honored guests. These parties take the place of the regular noonday luncheons.

The meeting was presided over by Rodney Collins, first vice president, in the absence of Donald Jordan. A surprise feature of the meeting was a shower of baby articles for Collins who is the proud father of a new son.

GARDEN GROVE MAN WEDS POMONA GIRL

GARDEN GROVE, July 20.—John M. Pearson, of Garden Grove and Mrs. Blanche Hall, of Pomona, were united in marriage Wednesday evening at 6:30 o'clock at the home of the latter's sister, Mrs. Montrose McCanne, of that city. The ceremony was performed by Dr. Stead, pastor of the Congregational church.

Following the ceremony a wedding supper was served to a few relatives and close friends. The couple will make their home at 793 Hawthorne street, in Pomona. Mr. Pearson, who has been organist in the local Methodist Episcopal church for the past 13 years, has given up his work although he will still retain his class of piano pupils.

Boy Honored On Sixth Birthday

LA HABRA, July 20.—The sixth birthday anniversary of Bobby McCamish was celebrated Thursday afternoon when his mother, Mrs. S. B. McCamish, complimented him with a party at their home on East Florence avenue.

DAUGHTER BORN

BREA, July 20.—A daughter was born yesterday afternoon, July 19, to Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Printz at the Snavely Maternity Home here. Both the mother and the baby are reported to be doing nicely. The daughter has been named Joan Dee. Mrs. Printz will be remembered as Miss Helen Woodard.

BIRTHDAY IS OCCASION FOR HAPPY EVENT

BREA, July 20.—A happy birthday surprise awaited Mrs. Harry M. Sellers on Wednesday night when her husband planned her appearance at the home of her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. George Pettit on East Elm street, where she was greeted by several close friends.

Following the fun of the surprise and the showering of good wishes on the honoree, the evening was spent in playing bridge with Mrs. Luther Cariker and C. F. Gordon scoring for first prize and the consolation going to Mrs. Sellers and Howard Mangan. Refreshments of sandwiches, coffee and a handsome birthday cake were served.

Attending in addition to the host and hostess and the honoree and her husband were Mr. and Mrs. George Folckemer, Mr. and Mrs. K. E. Gordon and Frank Rhome of Brea, Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Boys Renew Faith In Santa Claus

WINTERSBURG, July 20.—Boys who reside in the Boulevard Gardens area today were firmly convinced that Santa Claus is real and that he must come more often than just at Christmast time

This belief was strengthened by the fact that the county sent out men and machinery to level some vacant lots near the boulevard that they might have a ball diamond. The field is now in good shape and there is considerable discussion of playing games with teams from surrounding communities.

REBEKAHS TO FETE STATE PRESIDENT

WESTMINSTER, July 20.—The entertaining of the state president of the Rebekah Assembly, Mrs. Jessice Fournier of Los Angeles, will include on next Tuesday evening at Odd Fellows hall a public dinner, with serving to begin at 6 o'clock under the direction of Mrs. Maude Michl as general chairman of local Rebekahs.

The receipts from the dinner will go into the Aloha Rebekah club, social organization of the local lodge.

Birthday Party For Donal Woods

LA HABRA, July 20.—At the Roy Tremaine home on East La Habra avenue, Mrs. O. F. Woods entertained with a party yesterday afternoon in honor of the eighth birthday anniversary of her son, Donald Woods.

Games were played. Each guest was given a gift from a large web from which were strings for each child. Refreshments were served at the dining table marked by placecards.

WIVES OF BREA LION CLUB IN FUN SESSION

BREA, July 20.—An informal meeting of the Brea Lions club was enjoyed at the weekly luncheon yesterday with several guests present to share in the fun when wives of the Lions made an unexpected appearance, swathed in sheets, and each Lion was asked to pick out his own wife. Only J. B. Phillips succeeded in doing so. The remainder paid fines.

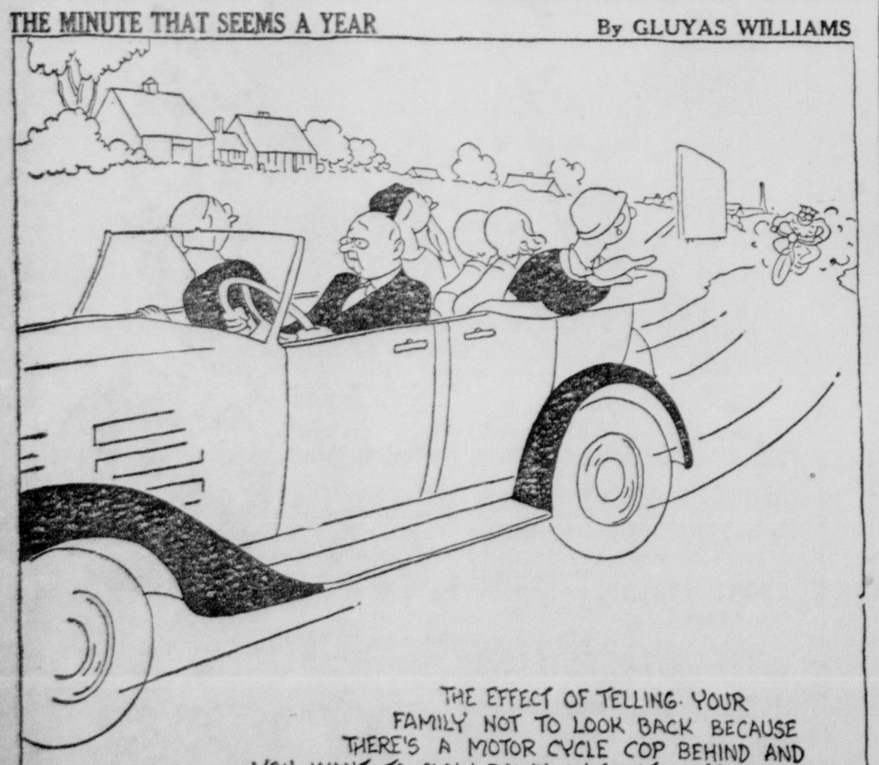

Ed Peterkin, Ed Curtis and Dick Moderwell, in charge of the program, presented "The Cow-Girls", Sylvia Badger and Marcella Poyoreno, who sang several songs, accompanying themselves on the steel guitar. A one man show in two acts was put on by Roy Chillery of Valencia. Bettina Whitney, of the Orange county school of fine arts, gave an Italian reading in costume and also appeared in a Greek dancing number.

Virgil Kiger, captain of the Lions' baseball team, presented to president Glenn Curtis the ball used at Anaheim to capture the championship from Long Beach. The ball was autographed by all the Brea players.

An invitation was read from the management of the Newport tournament of lights that Brea be represented there on July 28 by a float. President Curtis named L. A. Hogue, J. B. Phillips and W. A. Culp a committee to cooperate with other interests in the city to that end.

Guests at the lunchean included the players on the Lions' ball team, a recognition of their having won the championship for the first half of the series. Dr. Curtis' guests were Dr. Duncan of Placentia and Dr. W. E. Jackson of Brea. W. W. Hay's guest was H. Stitt of Los Angeles. J. D. Neuls had as his guest H. C. Ferry of the Union Oil Company while Frank Wharton presented Dan Acosta as his guest. Guests of J. B. Phillips were councilmen Ervin and Gordon of Newport Beach, William Rogers of the Birch Oil company was a guest of Earl Templeman, E. E. Anderson and Robert Shanks, both former members of the club, were present as was W. J. Lambert, county auditor, of Santa Ana.

STARS ON ROAD, TEST TORRANCE

By HARRY GRAYSON

How Joe Cronin hates to give up. Practically everyone connected with the Washington Senators from Owner Clark Griffith to the bat boy, has been out or affected by injuries or illness since the American league outfits squared off in April. Their sick bay report reads like a running account of a revolution.

One would have believed that the climax was reached when Johnny Stone, the outfielder who came from Detroit in exchange for Golden Goose Goslin last winter, was carried from the field in Cleveland the other day with torn ligaments and a severely sprained ankle.

One rather expected Cronin to tie a white handkerchief to a bat and wave it from the dugout, but there's no quit in the manager of last year's champions. I couldn't name a ball player more proud of his profession, position, and himself than Joe Cronin.

"It will be a shame if we fail to repeat," asserted the Washington pilot, "for we're the best club.

"As Connie Mack points out, a pennant winner is not a great team unless it duplicates the performance, and it would be a pity for the Washington club to bow out this fall with that indictment."

WHITEHILL HOBBLED

With all their hard luck, Cronin believes the Senators would now be out in front had Alvin Crowder and Earl Whitehill stood up.

Whitehill had been complaining about the ball days before the took the mound against the Yankees in New York, and made Memorial Day memorable. The only difference between the American league sphere of 1933 and 1934 is the color of the stitches, but no one could tell Pedro that, and what happened on Decoration Day convinced him that he was right and the world cockeyed.

The Yankee management was using up balls left over from last fall, and Whitehill, suspicious of all balls, noticed the difference in the color of the seams with his first pitch in warming up.

CONVINCED?

Whitehill was masterful that day—flirting with the hall of fame right up to the final round. There was one out in the ninth before Ben Chapman deprived the Iowan of a no-hit, no-run game with a scratch single.

"What have I been telling you?" said Whitehill to Cronin, when the last shot had been fired. "You saw for yourself, didn't you? It was that old ball. I'm all right with it. The new one is too slick."

And the Earl of Whitehill hasn't had any too much luck getting the other side out since, despite the fact that the gloss again is being removed from American league balls by rubbing them in dirt.

Meanwhile Cronin confesses that he isn't sleeping and eating any too well, and, despite his high standing in the runs batted in column, the shortstop isn't swatting the onion as he should.

"I wouldn't care about the shut eye and groceries," smiled young Joe. "If I only could hit."

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

Don Meade is said to get his mount away from the starting gate quicker than any other jockey now in the saddle. . . . Dutch Ruether, former major league pitching great, now has a 19-year-old son on the way up to the big leagues. . . . He is Frank, right-handed pitcher for Seattle in the Pacific Coast loop. . . . Art Shires, now playing in the Texas League, hasn't hit a home run so far this season . . . and that's not so great for "The Great." . . . Steve Hamas, it seems, is a bit shy at mixing with King Levinsky . . . as he wants a guarantee of 15,000 iron men to expose his college profile to those roundhouse rights of the Kingfish. . . . Mary Elizabeth Hirsh, daughter of one of the leading horse trainers in the country, has been granted a trainer's license in Illinois . . . and becomes the first woman to be admitted to the ranks.

CO-LEADERS OF LUNAR LEAGUE MEET TONIGHT

Games Tonight

Friday—Santa Ana at Torrance; Huntington Beach at Fullerton; Westminster at Anaheim.

Co-leaders of the National Night Ball league, Santa Ana and Torrance struggle at Torrance tonight for the psychological and mathematical advantage that goes with undisputed possession of first place.

Safely over Anaheim, one of their highest hurdles, the Stars make the long hop with increased confidence. Jim Coates, who shutout Anaheim, also blanked Torrance earlier in the season, and he will go to the firing line an even bet to score another decision over Pitcher Louie Neva. Coates had the '33 champions at his mercy last time, fanning 11 and turning in a 5-hit effort while his colleagues bunted Neva into defeat.

Since National league clubs made the turn into the second-half, Santa Ana has lowered the boom on Olive, Fullerton and Anaheim. Torrance has turned back Westminster, Huntington Beach and Long Beach the Huntington Beach joust being protested and appealed to President George Peterkin.

Schedule Favors Torrance

After tonight's tussles, Santa Ana plays in order, Westminster, Long Beach and Huntington Beach before beginning the final quarter's schedule. Torrance opposes Fullerton, Anaheim and Olive. This lineup slightly favors Torrance so it behooves the Stars to win tonight.

Manager Bill Cole is confident his men will do that very thing. The skipper does not hesitate to conceal his pleasure at the recent aggressiveness of the club, nor the splendid pitching of young Coates. Cole also calls attention to the improved hitting of Tommy Young and Ed Daley, two valuable infielders who were in an early season slump. Young brushed up his batting average from .250 to .324 by making eight hits in his last 11 times at bat. Daley has jumped from .267 to .290.

Westminster vs. Anaheim and Huntington Beach vs. Fullerton are other league contests scheduled tonight. The first one appears an open game. Huntington Beach is favored over the Bellhops.

Deny Fullerton To Quit

Speaking for the Fullerton Junior Chamber of Commerce, Bob Hatfield vigorously denies reports that Fullerton will quit the National league at the end of the present campaign. "Not a word of truth to it," says Hatfield. "We believe $300 a season well spent in publicizing Fullerton and selling good will. We'll be at the starting line when the whistle blows next May." . . . Riverside beat San Bernardino for the first-half championship of the American Night league, but San Bernardino protested its second defeat so more ado is in prospect. Incidentally, the long-winded playoff in the conference has delayed the inland schedule two weeks. The American leaguers won't finish their second-half until September 11. Unless the same club wins the second-half, another inter-league series then will be necesary, and if that should go seven games the American division won't have a representative ready for the Southern California playoffs until the first of October. It's a cinch the National league's champion won't like that set-up. The season here closes August 24, and a month's layoff might kill what waning interest remains in the Southern Cal. series....

No Protest Filed

President George Peterkin says he never has received an official protest from Huntington Beach over the game the Oilers recently dropped to Torrance, and would not consider it now even if one were filed. League rules require protests to be mailed within 24 hours, along with a $10 check which goes into the league's treasury if the complaint is denied ....Although Long Beach hasn't won a game this season, dropping 18 in succession to date, every club in the conference breaths easier when the Rear-Admirals have left town. They feel that the law of averages will act in favor of Long Beach eventually. But nobody wants to be the victim of that "law."

Starting with a four-run attack in the first inning, Olive piled up a 11-3 victory over Long Beach at Olive last night. Jack Dugan, recently acquired from the Orange team of the Orange County league, hurled his first full game for the Grenadiers, and kept nine hits well scattered.

Nann Coots hits a homer with one on in the first inning, and got another four-ply blow in the sixth. Griffith homed in the eighth. Callahan got four baseknocks for Long Beach. The score:

The South Methodist Juniors and Seniors dropped deeper into the Santa Ana City league cellar today, after losing to the First National bank and the Elks club, respectively, at the Municipal Bowl last night.

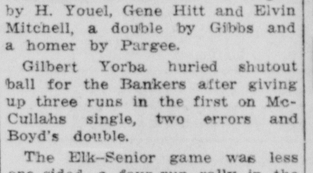

Defeat of the Bankers by the M. E. South Juniors was one of the major upsets of the first-half season, but the First Nationals made sure there would be no repetition of that debacle. They jumped all over young Nelson Bates in the first inning for four runs on hits by Neil Hall, Harold Youel, Jerry Heard, Bill Gibbs and Tony Kneip, and picked up four more in the fifth on singles by H. Youel, Gene Hitt and Elvin Mitchell, a double by Gibbs and a homer by Pargee.

Gilbert Yorba hurled shutout ball for the Bankers after giving up three runs in the first on McCullahs single, two errors and Boyd's double.

Tonight's games: Weber Baking company vs. Union Oil, 7 p. m.; Commercial National bank vs. 20-30 club, 8 p. m.

AMERICA CUP TEST RACES CALLED OFF

NEWPORT, R. I., July 20.—(UP)—The current series of test races to determine the outstanding yacht for defense of the America's Cup was brought to an abrupt end today. The cup committee announced that the series was finished shortly after the sloop Yankee withdrew because of an injury to its professional skipper, Gus Olsen.

Johnson Given Contract For '35 Season

CLEVELAND, July 20.—(UP)—Walter Johnson today had been voted a new one-year contract to remain as manager of the Cleveland Indians in 1935.

The announcement was made by Alva Bradley, club president, and followed closely on a storm of criticism of Johnson's managerial judgment after Monday's loss to the New York Yankees.

GOLF

By Art Krenz

No one likes to be short off the tee, and for the reason it is hard to impress upon the beginner that he should not press. To the player that slugs the ball, the cost is high in hooks and slices, lost balls, topped ones, and dubs.

How much better off he would be if he studied results. Take a round of golf so played and keep the card. Then play another round, striving not for distance, but for accuracy, and note the results. I'll guarantee a difference in scores.

GOMEZ OF YANKEES NURSES SORE ARM

CHICAGO, July 20.—(UP)—Manager Joe McCarthy of the New York Yankees was in doubt today about starting his southpaw ace, "Lefty" Gomez, again during the team's Western trip. Gomez has a sore arm and Catcher Bill Dickey believes that he needs a rest of a week or longer.

Two days ago Gomez appeared as a relief hurler against Cleveland and was hammered hard. He later reported his arm felt dead, and it has shown no improvement.

Five of the Orange County league's eight baseball clubs were tied for first place today after a night which attended to the downfall of two undefeated teams, Irvine and Orange.

Anaheim's hard-hitting outfit hammered Wilson Seacord, Irvine's ace moundman, for a 10-0 decision. Anaheim scored two in the first, one in the fifth, seventh and eighth, and topped off a large evening with a five-run barrage in the first of the ninth. Peltzer held Irvine to five scattered hits.

Minus Pitcher Jack Dugan, who has joined Olive of the National league, the contending Orange squad was beaten by Fullerton, 11-7. The veteran Ray Price started for Orange but was driven to cover in four innings after allowing six tallies.

Long Beach came from behind in the ninth to nose out Huntington Beach, 13-11. Winkler opened the Cub rally with a single. Ellis doubled and Vic Wilson cleaned the bases and broke up the game with a homer.

Brea won from Olive, 5-2.

KENNEDY SUSPENDED FOR POOR SHOWNING

WATERBURY, Conn., July 20.—(UP)—State Boxing Commissioner Joseph Lawlor today suspended Les Kennedy, Long Beach, Cal. heavyweight, knocked out in the second round here last night by Eddie Hogan Waterbury, and says he will ask all member states of the National Boxing association to take similar action.

Charging Kennedy with "indifferent fighting," the commissioner said, "It's a shame to have a boxer of Kennedy's type spoil the efforts of Promoter Mulligan to give Waterbury good boxing cards."

London Mile Race On Air Tomorrow

Major events of the Cambridge-Princeton-Cornell track and field meet in London tomorrow, including the mile race between Jack Lovelock and Bill Bonthron, will be described over Radio KHJ between 9:35 and 9:50 a. m.

The broadcast, originating in London's White City stadium, will be transmitted to the United States by short wave through arrangement with the British Broadcasting corporation. Harold Abraham, British track and field expert, will be at the microphone.

WANA DEFEATS WILLIAMSON: QUILLEN WINS

"Swede" Williamson beat Bill Wana at San Bernardino, and again in Ontario, but Orange County Athletic club fight followers guessed today that Wana must have been a victim of "home town" decisions on both those occasions.

Boxing Wana here last night, Williamson showed nothing that would warrant an opinion he could take Bill even in the Westminster southpaw's worst moments. Wana scored a convincing victory over the San Bernardino Swede, winning four of the five rounds and breaking even in the other, the third.

Williamson was on his bicycle from the gong that began each round. He was fleeter of foot than Wana, and consequently kept away from trouble, but Bill did all the fighting although his style naturally was cramped by Williamson's tactics. Even when Wana could catch the clever Swede, Williamson plunged into clinches from which Referee Jack McDonald had difficulty prying him loose.

Quillen Beate Sparza

Paddy Quillen won the semi-windup from Benny Sparza, but the fans were treated to the rare spectacle of watching a Quillen in retreat most of the way. Either Sparza forced Paddy's respect or the little fellow's will-to-win was not at peak. A fourth round knockdown, more or less lucky, won for Quillen. Sparza was not hurt. The punch caught him off balance, and he hopped to his feet without a count.

The eight preliminary bouts were uniformly good, much better on the whole than the two feature engagements.

Frank Trott and Jimmy Salvador fought a savage special event, Trott getting McDonald's decision after the judges disagreed. It was a desperately close battle. Salvador had Trott in a bad way in the third but the latter finished fast. Trott said he broke his hand early in the bout. He did remarkably well under this handicap.

Hernandez Wins Thriller

Another bruising bout was that between Art Hernandez and Jess Sanchez, Santa Ana featherweight. There was no love lost between the pair, and they battled like a couple of angry sailors. Hernandez finally took the decision after doing a little trapeze performance, going out over the top rope and back into the ring without touching the floor.

Taking a severe beating in the first round, "Baby Face" Romereiz then won three in a row to decision Freddy Young.

Bill Cook, dubbed the Texas cowboy, knocked out Miller Fonseca in the first, scoring two knockdowns before McDonald halted it. Cook was a very businesslike fighter.

Tony Cruiz kayoed San Berdino in one. Benny Gonzales shaded Dan McGrew in a clown fight between two fleshy 160-pounders. Giving away ten pounds, Laesor Rivers outpointed "Red" Pepper. Eddie Carter, Ontario colored featherweight, beat Jess Segobia in the kickoff.

WINDSOR LAD THIRD IN ECLIPSE STAKES

Minneapolis Bags All-Star Contest

MINNEAPOLIS, July 20.—(UP)—The Minneapolis Millers, league leaders in the American association pennant race, today boasted a 13-6 victory over the association All-Stars in the first game of its kind over promoted by the league. The paid attendance was 7435 and the gate receipts approximately $5000.

DEER QUEST IN CALIFORNIA TO OPEN AUGUST 1

Scores of Santa Ana and Orange county hunters are oiling rifles, replenishing ammunition supplies, and getting ready for the opening of the 1934 deer season in coastal districts 2, 2 1-2 and 3, set for the morning of August 1.

The area to be thrown open to hunters has been lesesned over that of last year, but extends from the northern boundary of Mendocino to the southern boundary of Monterey county.

Hunters on Aug. 1 until sundown Sept. 14 may seek venison in the following counties: All of Sonoma, Yolo, Solano, Napa, Marin, Alameda, San Francisco, San Mateo, Contra Costa, Santa Clara, San eBnito, Santa Cruz and Monterey, and in parts of Mendocino, Lake, Colusa, San Joaquin, Merced, Sacramento, Stanislaus, Kings and Fresno. Cards defining the boundaries of the districts may be obtained from any branch of the Division of Fish and Game.

Fish and game wardens assigned to the three opening districts advise that deer are plentiful this year, and in excellent condition. In San Mateo a rancher reported seeing 84 in one afternoon in a pea field, and from other counties along the coast reports indicate that bucks are numerous. However, the commission may close a small portion in the Santa Barbara National Forest to hunting as the fire over a year ago left poor protection for deer.

Hunters here already are buying their deer tags, according to sporting goods dealers, and as the season nears the sale of tags and hunting licenses will become brisk. For the first time, those purchasing hunting licenses are being given buttons to be worn while hunting.

The limit is two bucks in all districts except the Modoc area, where the mule tail deer is protected by a one-buck limit.

Spotlight hunting is illegal, and wardens will be watching closely for this kind of offender, as the last legislature put teeth in the spotlight law. Shooting from automobiles also is unlawful. Deer may not be taken into a closed district until the tag is properly countersigned.

On August 16 the deer season opens in Districts 2 3-4, 4 and 4 3-4.

The average annual kill of deer by legal hunters in California is approximately 23,000. It is estimated that some 400,000 deer are in the forests of the state.

COMBINE RULES EUROPE RACING

DRIVERS UNDER 'IRON CONTROL'

BY HENRY McLEMORE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

The man is Cav. Ferrari; his organization, the Scuderia Ferrari, is most successful motor racing combine of all time.

The activities of the Scuderia is spread all over Europe. Wherever there's an important race—be it France, England, Tripoli, Isle of Man, Germany, or high in the Alps—a Scuderia Ferrari team is always there. Of the 11 great races run in this part of the world so far this year, 10 were won by the Scuderia. In eight of them the combine's drivers placed, one, two, three.

Cav. Ferrari, who, with Count Trossi, organized the Scuderia five years ago, never sees a race. But it is he, who, using daily telegraphic reports from his managers regarding the cars and the drivers, decides which men shall run and which cars they shall drive.

He is an iron discipline. The cars must be kept in absolutely perfect condition. Drivers must be in bed by a certain hour, and up by a certain hour. It is Cav. Ferrari who combs Europe for the best drivers. In the Scuderia's fold are 13 of Europe's most famed pilots, including the almost unbeatable quartet—Tazio Nuvolari, Guy Moll, Louis Chrion and Achille Varzi.

To insure replacements, the Scuderia conducts a training school in which promising youngsters are schooled for years before being given the wheel in a race.

The cars almost invariably are sent to the various events in great lorries, especially equipped to carry two racing cars, tires, tools and general equipment. An airplane is maintained on a yearly charter to rush drivers and mechanics from one part of the country to another. This method of travel enables the Scuderia to compete anywhere, anytime.

The Scuderia not only has the best drivers; it has the best cars, too. Under a contract it has the exclusive right to all Monoposto (one seater) Alpha-Romeos, admittedly the fastest, most durable racing cars made.

The Scuderia Ferrari, despite the great sums of money spent in building up its almost complete monopoly of European racing, is a paying concern. Last year Nuvolari alone won more than $250,000 in prize money in four months. The earnings of Varzi, Chrion and Moll, the three most successful drivers this year, are likely to pass half a million rollars. In addition to the prize money, automobile accessory firms, oil companies and gasoline companies compete to see which can have its goods used by the Scuderia Ferrari.

TENNIS

Three hard Class B matches marked yesterday's play in the Santa Ana round-robin tournament, with Carson Smith, Theron Willis and Roy Willis forced into three sets before gaining victories over Harry Nissley, Wayne Moon and Frank Bettis. The results:

Class B—C. Smith defeated Nissley, 10-8, 1-6, 6-1; T. Willis defeated Moon, 6-4, 3-6, 6-0; R. Willis defeated Bettis, 6-4, 4-6, 6-3.

Class C—Coulson defeated Marshall, 6-4, 8-6.

LA JOLLA, July 20.—(UP)—Only one seeded player had been eliminated today as the Southland's tennis aces entered the fourth round of the La Jolla tennis championships almost in a body.

THE TINYMITES

STORY by HAL COCHRAN—PICTURES by KING

© 1934 BY NEA SERVICE, INC. T. M. REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.

Brave Scouty thought to himself "I am thrilled o'er acting as a spy. I only hope that I can safely reach the distant camp.

"Then I'll spy on the Meany Men, and crawl back to our camp again. I wonder why each Meany is a tricky little scamp."

'Course, all this time, he crawled along, real pleased that nothing had gone wrong. The ground, however, was real hard, and crawling was no fun.

Once in a while he'd stop to rest and rub his knees 'cause he was dressed in short pants and his knees were bare. Sore spots were on each one.

"He surely is a real brave lad, and gee, but I'll be mighty glad when he returns. I'll bet the story he'll tell will be rare."

"Aw, don't you worry 'bout that lad," said Coppy. "We all know he's had a lot of real adventures. This is just another one.

"He'll spy upon our enemy. Then right back here he'll shortly be. What we think is real dangerous, he'll say was lots of fun."

Poor Scouty, though, fell in a trap. He stopped to take a little nap, and sev'ral Meany Men came out and saw him on the ground.

One whispered, "Get some rope. We'll tie this lad real tight, 'cause he's a spy." When Scouty woke up, with a start, his hands and legs were bound.

"Ha, ha. You will not spy on us. And don't you try to start a fuss," exclaimed one of the Meanies. You're a prisoner of war."

Poor Scouty knew it was no use to try and work the tight rope loose. He eyed the band of Meanies, wond'ring just what was in store.

TIMELY—

Whether so intended or not, President Roosevelt's order for an investigation of the ocean mail subsidies by the post office department has a relation to the San Francisco strike situation. Its issuance at a time when the president was fully cognizant of the controversy between the ship owners and their employes may have significance. At any rate, it serves to call attention, just at this moment, to the disclosures regarding the mail subsidies by the senate committee of which Senator Black, of Alabama, was chairman.

In general, that investigation showed that the subsidies paid in the guise of pay for carrying the mail enabled the ship owners, in many cases, to reap enormous profits for themselves while the government held the bag. Earnings from ships bought from the government on time were distributed in large salaries and bonuses to officers, in substantial dividends to stockholders, while obligations to the government remained unpaid. In some cases, even the interest was not met. According to much of the testimony, it appeared that the government was regarded simply as a good thing and that its interests need never be considered. Various accounts were faked so that expenses were often charged to the government which properly should have been borne by the companies.

One of the companies which benefited most from the government mail-carrying endowment was the Dollar Line, now involved with other lines in the strike on the Pacific coast. A striking instance of how government aid enabled those controlling the Dollar Line to make enormous profits was brought out in the testimony before the committee. Five men, including the two Dollar brothers, each put $100 in a pool, which was so manipulated as to bring in several millions. The president's order to look into these ocean mail contracts brings such things as this concerning the steamship companies to notice and they will probably not be overlooked by the strikers in making up their case.

ALL FALL FOR HER—

One of the members of congress to linger long in Washington after the close of the session was Mrs. Isabella Greenway, lone representative from Arizona and widow of the late General John C. Greenway. And there is no thought of minimizing in that word "lone," for, in its one member of the house, Arizona has more effective representation than many states entitled to a dozen members. Although serving her first term, Mrs. Greenway has already acquired influence and a reputation for getting things across that usually do not come till after many years of service, and often not then.

It is not only her good looks that win people to Mrs. Greenway. Her tumbled shock of hair, resembling a hay-cock whipped by the wind, would attract attention to her anywhere. It is her perfect poise, unaffected manner and quiet charm which at once put those around her at ease and make the congressmen generally want to tell her everything they know. They go to her with their troubles, they confide to her their secrets and, above all, they tell her about themselves and how wonderful they are. She listens sympathetically and appreciatively and they think she is marvelous. They would go the limit for her and, when they are unable to get something done, they appeal to her and she reciprocates by going to the bat for them.

Mrs. Greenway's influence has extended itself even to the senate and, when she has wandered over there to watch proceedings, she has always been eagerly sought out by members of that body. On some of these occasions, she has not neglected to do some discreet lobbying for measures in which she was interested. Toward the close of the session, some of her colleagues in the house came to her in despair about a bill carrying an appropriation which seemed to have not a ghost of a chance to get through. They begged her to help them. She obliged and, going straight to Speaker Rainey, gained his consent to let the bill get past the barrier.

If Mrs. Greenway is as solid with her constituents as she is with her colleagues in congress, she has nothing to fear from the election, and that may be why she was not in a big hurry to dash home and get into the campaign as most of the others were.

SOMETHING STILL BETTER—

According to reports which are coming into Washington, the work of appraising farm properties, which was going on under the farm credit administration, has almost ceased because of the passage of the Frazier-Lemke bill by congress and its approval by the president. Under the farm credit administration, farms were being appraised for the purpose of getting loans and scaling down indebtedness where possible. The Frazier-Lemke bill eases the debt situation for the farmers still more by allowing them six years within which to redeem property. This looks pretty good to the farmers and, according to the reports, they are waiting to see how the new law works before taking further proceedings under the old plan.

NEW DEAL TEST

A big test case to determine the constitutionality of the novel measures enacted during this administration did not come before the supreme court before it took the usual summer recess. The first case of the kind during the next sitting is expected to be that between the AAA and Chicago milk firms.

NEW YORK

By James McMullin

2 1-2 PER CENT

New York experts say the Treasury should be patting itself on the back. Unprecedented strength in the government bond market makes the September and October financing look like a solid gold cinch. The Treasury's device of making its last two offerings smaller than expected is working like a charm.

Despite recent selling by several large banks demand continues incredibly strong. The 4 1-4's called for redemption in October are currently priced at a figure which assures their holders a loss. Accrued interest won't begin to cover the spread between the present price and the par value at which they will be redeemed. Why this paradox? Simply because ownership of the bonds gives the inside track to whatever new offering is made for conversion purposes.

Not only that. Other issues which have not been called but can be are also selling at a premium which promises a loss instead of a yield. Many financial sharps are deliberately investing funds at less than no return on the gamble of getting first crack at future Treasury offerings. It doesn't look as if Uncle Sam's credit had suffered much from the "staggering public debt."

It's too early to say what the interest rates on September and October issues will be but experts agree that Maynard Keynes' vision of long-term U. S. bonds at 2 1-2 per cent is no longer a flight of fancy. Such a development would help all outstanding long-term industrial bonds which are not callable.

COOPERATION

Buying by small banks all over the country has been a potent factor in the continuous climb of federal securities. Government agencies have helped that along. For some months Federal Deposit Insurance, RFC and bank examiners generally have kept up continuous pressure on small banks to finish cleaning out their junk. New York learns they have often suggested government obligations as a suitable investment for the funds thus freed. Comment runs that Mr. Morgenthau should be grateful for such pratical cooperation.

SKIMMED

Several New York banks are conducting private but aggressive credit expansion campaigns of their own. Their scouts all over the country have been instructed to encourage loan applications from anyone who appears reasonably solvent in a line of business not over-occupied.

This sales campaign is beginning to get results. The informed predict that by the time smaller institutions in other sections get their houses in order and are ready to do a normal loan business again they will find the cream of their local crops skimmed by their big brothers in New York.

BRAKES

Federal Reserve circles are a trifle uneasy about their ability to control credit inflation once it gets into high gear.

Normally they could do so by restrictions on member bank borrowing. But member banks now have such fat excess reserves they could ladle out oceans of credit without having to borrow.

The Federal Reserve bank tried to get legislation through the last Congress allowing them to base reserves on rapidity of deposit turnover as well as on volume. This would have given them a much firmer grip but the proposal got lost in the shuffle and they feel they've been left with worn-out brakes on a car that can make 100 miles an hour.

Admittedly the car still needs an accelerator more than brakes. But the Federal Reserve is anxious to protect itself against taking the rap for something it can't help which may happen in the future.

DILIGENCE

Stock Exchange authorities are keeping a weather eye on stock deals originating abroad. An Exchange governor who is close to Richard Whitney is now in Europe for the purpose. Insiders understand he's supposed to notify New York promptly at the faintest sign of funny business. It isn't clear just what the Exchange would do then but the inference is it would find some way to head off manipulation.

Wall Street is amused by this sudden diligence. For years the Exchange maintained that market abuses were all due to non-member operators over whom it had no possible control. Now it will have an earnest stab at something it said it couldn't do. Critics comment it's odd what a difference government regulation makes.

Editor Register:

I have been reading your paper for a number of years, will continue so long as we are able to pay for it. Many times have I thought seriously upon matters and things appearing in its columns. Now I can refrain no longer from writing a word or so.

In yesterday's issue (July 17th) appears an address delivered by Mr. Head before the Creel-for-Governor club in Orange, wherein he states that the epic plan is an impractical dream of Upton Sinclair's; I am wondering, if God has seen fit, at this time, to send us a Daniel, that we might not go wrong? I'm wondering if that was typical of the feast of Belshazzar and the handwriting was spread upon the wall?

Mr. Sinclair is evidently trampling upon their toes, else (he) they would not be howling so very loudly just yet.

I think his interpretation of the EPIC plan is porous, not unlike the weave of the home spun cloth our pants were made of when I was a boy. How easily did they ravel when pricked in the weave. I am fearful some of newly made or employed magicians will never rescue us from the lions' den. I consider it poor Democracy when I hear an orator surmount the rostrum and cry aloud against the people. Now-a-days to say you are a democrat, you are understood to mean that you are for the people. The world is its people, not any part of them, but all of them.

Should we take time and refer back to college days, examine our old text books, English Literature, or Political Economy or any treatise of Economics, readily will we educe the Sinclair principle.

Why should we think only of human integrity and man's prerogative in terms of ability to earn and hoard his dollar?

I am reminded of years ago, when I used to visit the coastal countries of south Texas. Those great ranches with several thousand goats ranging the hills; one Mexican would shepherd a thousand goats. Should something befall the herder, his flock would go without water, sometimes for days, waiting to hear the call of their herdsman. I am fearful our present day herdsmen are failing to lead us to the proper fountain. Before you starve, listen to the call of the ONLY leader we have, Mr. Sinclair, and not the fellow hollowing "wolf" when there is no wolf at his door.

Moses was 120 years old when he lay himself down to die and never enter the promised lands because he smote the rock.

Be careful, allow them not to drift you farther into the cavern, for the entry is closing. Let the Israelites put Pharaoh's army to flight with all his slave drivers.

We have fine-combed the trades world for nearly 65 years and still we have nothing. They gathered the finance into the wrong end of the funnel. Let's turn the funnel end for end.

TWO MONTHS TRIP TO NORTH ENJOYED

VILLA PARK, July 20.—Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Morningstar have returned home from a two months' trip through the north. They attended the commencement exercises at Berkeley at which Sterling Murdock was one of the graduates. They visited the geysers in Sonoma county, were in the redwoods several days, went up the Columbia river as far as The Dalles, visited the falls and the government dam, and crossed the Columbia.

In Yakima they visited Mr. Morningstar's sister, Mrs. A. L. Walters. At Seattle Mr. and Mrs. Morningstar were guests of Mrs. Howard, who was formerly Mrs. Lida Bixby of Villa Park.

After vsiiting Rainier Park they were in Vancouver, Nanaimo, Victoria and Patricia Bay. They were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Johnson, where they found Miss Estil Urschel of Los Angeles, and Miss May Bathgate of San Francisco.

In Victoria they visited the museum and parliament buildings, and later were in the Lewis and Clark Park for several days. They visited Salem, then Crater Lake, Shasta Springs, and the old town of Shasta, where there used to be several thousand inhabitants; Lassen Park, the hot springs, with its lakes of boiling water. They were at Susanville, National Park camp, visited the Supply company lumber mills and Shook factory, Lake Tahoe, Truckee and Mono Lake.

BENEFIT STAGED BY WHITE SHRINE

ORANGE, July 20.—One of the loveliest of summer affairs was the benefit dessert-luncheon card party, given Thursday afternoon in the beautiful gardens surrounding the home of Mrs. C. J. Hibben of 226 South Cambridge street, by the White Shrine of Fullerton.

Tables, centered with dainty yellow and blue floral pieces were placed under colorful umbrellas. Following the luncheon, contract, auction and 500 were played, with attractive prizes presented to the winners.

Co-hostesses at the pleasant affair, which was attended by more than 100 women: Mrs. E. H. Smith, Mrs. Sherman Gillogly, Mrs. Ernest Ross, and Mrs. C. Wesley Kolkhorst, of Orange; Mrs. Clara La Mont, Mrs. Adele Kellenbarger and Mrs. Glen Butcher of Anaheim, and Mrs. John Lang of Fullerton.

The largest fish ever captured was a spotted whale-shark, 38 feet long and weighing 26,594 pounds, harpooned off the coast of Florida by Capt. Charles Thompson in 1912.

Official Urges Prompt Action Against Citrus Pests

REPORTS SCALE IS APPEARING MUCH EARLIER

Control work against citrus pests, particularly black and purple scale, should proceed as rapidly as possible, according to D. W. Tubbs, county agricultural commissioner, in an announcement made today.

It was pointed out that the new brood of black scale appeared several weeks earlier this year than usual. Purple scale is appearing as a general infestation. Indications at the present time are that black scale in many cases will have reached a stage invulnerable to treatment within the next two or three weeks, said Tubbs.

"Both fumigation and oil spray trials applied within the last few days have failed to show appreciable injury," he stated. "To safeguard against damage, fumigation should be done over fairly dry ground whereas spraying should be applied as soon after irrigation as possible. Packing house managers have specifically requested that oil sprays should not be applied over the ripe fruit, as much of the fruit carries a green color this year and it is very difficult to sweat fruit which has been recently sprayed. Furthermore, fumigation later in the season over heavy crops of ripe fruit where trees have not been relieved of part of the load might be expected to cause some drop if the fruit becomes over-ripe."

Tubbs also called attention to the weather forecast which is being given daily by Floyd D. Young for the purpose of assisting commercial operators and growers in pest control work. This forecast, which is a new development in the service of the United State Weather bureau, is given over KNX each day at 12:14 p.m.

FARM BUREAU GIVES OKAY TO ELLIOTT PLAN

The directors of the Orange County Farm Bureau, at an adjourned meeting at the Garden Grove Women's Civic club, last night approved the Elliott plan for flood control and conservation as a Federal aid project, with the condition that nothing be done with the river channel between the proposed Chester dam site at Prado and the diversion canals of the Santa Ana Valley Irrigation company and the Anaheim Union Water company.

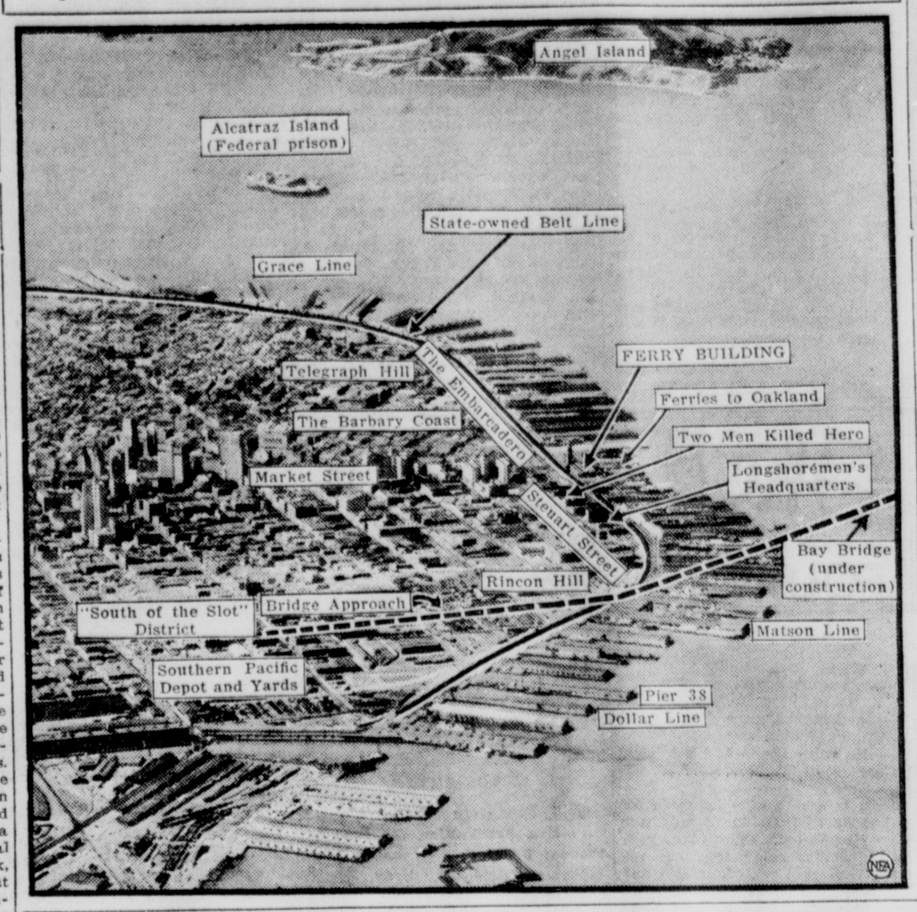

Seventy-five officers of the Farm Bureau, representing all of its 10 Farm Centers, and most of the organization's departments and committees from all parts of the county were represented and took part in the meeting.

Everyone present was enthusiastic for action in the solution of Orange county's water problems it is reported, the only point of difference was how to take action on this important matter without interfering with the important negotiations being carried on under the leadership of the Associated Chamber of Commerce water committee in cooperation with the board of supervisors, Orange County Water district and the major water companies and interests.

Speakers at the meeting were Hon. Sam L. Collins, congressman from this district, who explained the situation of the Santa Ana river project with the Federal government; Dr. D. D. Waynick, chairman of the citrus department of the Farm Bureau and a member of its water committee, who spoke on the use and supply of water in Orange county; and M. N. Thompson, flood control engineer, who explained the Elliott plan as it affects the Santa Ana river, in an illustrated lecture, using the slides on the Elliott plan, prepared by the water committee of the Farm Bureau.

FOCAL POINT OF STRIKE TROUBLE

MARCHES OPEN PARK CONCERT BY CITY BAND

BY MRS. RUSSELL ROWLAND

The Santa Ana Municipal band opened the fifth concert of the summer last night with a set of two vigorous military marches, "Pomp and Circumstance," Nos. 1 and 2, by the English composer, Elgar. Next was played "Fra Diavolo" by Auber, the prolific French opera composer. While this overture is military in character, it offered considerable contrast to the Elgar marches.

Out of Rusia came the beautiful melodies that are woven into the waltz "Malaguena," taken from Moszkowski's opera "Boabdil." This was followed by the lively and rhythmic "Cuckoo March" by Goldman.

The first movement of the famous "Unfinished Symphony" of Schubert provided a real thrill for the audience. Musically, it was the most ambitious number on the program, calling upon the full resources of the band. If some of the subtle string effects were lost, it was nevertheless interesting to observe how well an orchestral composition of such magnitude can be handled by a wind-band. Director Auer's musicianship was shown in the way in which he brought out the beautiful melodic ideas.

Victor Herbert's irresistible "March of the Toys" followed. After that Chaminade's "Pas Des Escharpes" (Scarf Dance) was played. The charm and grace of this number are familiar to all.

"Prelude" and "Minuetto" from the Suite "L'Arlesienne" by Bizet were eighth on the program. In the prelude is found an ancient Christmas Song, which is considered one of the finest folktunes in existence. In the minuet is pictured the idyllic charm of the countryside in which the flute solo was especially lovely.

A complete description of "A Trip to Coney Island" by Tobani included boat and train whistles, announcements, a thunder storm, the din and excitement of amusement concessions, the imitation of famous orchestras, fireworks, and even the exclamations of the throng. These things, so graphically portrayed, had a quick appeal for the audience.

Several nationalities were represented on this program, Russian, English, French, Spanish and German. Director Auer is to be complimented on his good taste in the arrangement of these programs, and in the high quality of music he presents.

VISITOR

Mapping plans for an aggressive campaign throughout Orange county in behalf of his candidacy for lieutenant-governor George J. Hatfield, Republican of San Francisco, former United States attorney for Northern California, visited this section yesterday and conferred with local friends and supporters.

In outlining his campaign platform and his policies if elected, Hatfield took a flat stand against an ad valorem tax and against the activities of Communistic organizations.

"Tax reductions accomplished this year under the Riley-Stewart tax relief plan must be maintained if business is to be aided in its fight for recovery, Hatfield asserted.

"With a state deficit estimated at approximately $31,000,000 and with state expenditures far exceeding state income it is vitally necessary that the interests of the common taxpayer be protected at Sacramento."

BIG INSURANCE PAYMENTS MADE IN TWO CITIES

Fullerton and Santa Ana are included in a group of California cities with the higheet total of death payments from insurance policies during 1933, it was learned today from the special "Life payments" number of The National Underwriter, weekly insurance paper.

Orange county received further notice from the insurance policy of Ernest S. Gregory of Fullerton, who left the second largest death payment in the state, with a sum of $287,800. The largest was that of John G. Bullock of Los Angeles, who left $1,690,325. Fullerton, because of Gregory's payment, led Orange county cities wit ha total of $380,000 and ranked as the seventeenth in the state, while Santa Ana was nineteenth with $348,000.

The total payments for California totalled $172,000 000 while policy holders and beneficiaries in the United States and Canada received $3,485,224,187.

Anaheim had total payments of $166,000.

Huntington Beach, the only other Orange county city listed in the magazine, had a total of $43,000.

California as a whole showed an increase of $1,000,000 or one per cent more than the 1932 total of $171,000,000. California ranked fifth in payments among all states, while it is sixth in size of population, the per capita payemnt being $20.35.

Los Angeles led California cities in life insurance payments with $29,211,000 or a three per cent increase over 1932. Los Angeles ranked fifth among all cities in the country. San Francisco was second in the state with $14,841,000 with Oakland third. Other ranking cities were San Diego, Berkeley, Long Beach, Pasadena, Hollywood, Sacramento, Beverly Hills, Glendale, Santa Monica, Fresno, San Jose, Stockton, Piedmont, Fullerton, Altadena, Santa Ana, Santa Barbara, San Bernardino, Huntington Park, Alameda, Palo Alto, Bakersfield, Alhambra, Pomona and Hillsboro.

It was pointed out that although the large individual payments attract much attention, the bulk of life insurance payments are in small amounts that go to the rank and file of the people.

BICYCLE STOLEN

Jay Rogers, 1428 French street, had his bicycle stolen Wednesday from the Municipal Bowl, he reported to police yesterday.

TWO NEW FILMS AT WEST COAST TODAY

"Charlie Chan's Courage", which opened today at the West Coast theater, introduces a new and novel twist in mystery stories. Warner Oland, portraying the wily detective, finds evidence of a murder, guesses the murderer, but can't find the murdered man.

Drue Leyton, New York stage actress, with Donald Woods, furnishes the romantic interest in the picture.

Betty Halladay Honors Friends

SAN JUAN CAPISTRANO, July 20.—Miss Betty Halladay entertained a party Tuesday evening when she invited her intimate friends of this community to meet two friends of Santa Ana, the Misses Jeanette Lewis and Harriet Chapin who were guests at the Halladay home.

In the rummy games which were the diversion of the evening Jeanette Lewis scored high and Margery Campbell scored second high. Each were awarded clever prizes.

Miss Halladay was assisted by her mother, Mrs. Harlow Halladay in serving a dainty refreshment course. Those present were the Misses Barbara Malcom and Virginia Stewart, Margery Campbell of Dana Point; Jeanette Lewis and Harriet Chapin of Santa Ana with the hostess Betty Halladay.

LAFAYETTE DEALER REPORTS INCREASE

The unusually early spring is having a favorable reaction on the sale of cars, according to William E. Otis, jr., local dealer for LaFayette motor cars at Fifth and Birch streets.

"Spring gives the motorist an urge to travel. Since California offers such a variety of scenery which may be seen by making fairly long drives over good roads, motorists who have been driving their old cars for two, three and four seasons have made up their minds to own a new car with its many improvements, roominess, style, comfort and mechanical efficiency. This factor is causing many persons to look at the new LaFayette, built by Nash, which offers a value unique in motor cars, being an unusually big low-priced car, inheriting the advantages of its bigger brother in the transportation field," Otis said.

Otis also is the dealer for Nash, Graham, and Willys motor cars.

In Brazil, poisonous snakes are hauled by railroads free of charge. A national law requires that all poisonous snakes captured be sent to the snake farm at Sao Paulo, where their venom is extracted for use as snake-bite serum.

TREADLESS TIRES PROVE DANGEROUS

Treadless tires that are worn to the danger line, making them susceptible to sudden blowouts, punctures and deflations from cuts should be a warning signal to motorists in summer.

In the opinion of J. F. McHenry, local Goodyear dealer, figures on accidents last year show that of the cars involved, a major proportion had badly worn tires which likely accounted for a lot of the difficulties.

"This is why," he said, "without being considered an alarmist, I believe it is good sound safety policy for car owners to take the step of making their cars safe from the tire standpoint as well as to have good brakes, good lights and to drive carefully. We offer a free inspection that puts the motorist under no obligation to trade with us because we are, as tire experts, interested in the business of safer driving."

Court Notes

Howard Cramblitt 47, Sawtelle, was committed to the county jail for 60 days on a charge of disturbing the peace by Judge Chris Pann of Huntington Beach yesterday. Deputy Sheriffs R. E. Steinberger and James Workman brought Cramblitt to the jail last night.

Phillip A. Moreno paid a $1 overtime parking fine in police court yesterday.

Floyd Calhoun, 35, 1615 1-2 Durant street, was booked at the county jail last night by Deputy Sheriff James Musick on a warrant for disturbing the peace, and was released without bond by Judge Kenneth Morrison.

Air-Conditioned Coach Service In California Starts

The first air-conditioned reserved seat coaches for local train service in California are being placed in service today on the San Joaquin Limited, between Los Angeles and San Francisco, it was announced here today by E. B. Sharpley, Santa Ana representative of the Southern Pacific company.

The weather conditioned cars will add to the comfort of travelers on the daylight trip over the Tehachapi mountains and through the vast agricultural sections of the San Joaquin valley, it was pointed out.

Inauguration of this service follows closely completion of the work of air-conditioning about 80 cars for fast trans-continental trains such as the Sunset, Golden State, Overland and Cascade limiteds of Southern Pacific. On these trains the club, observation, lounge, dining cars and Pullman room cars were conditioned at a cost of more than $600,000.

Surprise Celebration Ends With Picnic At Balboa

Starting with an early afternoon luncheon, a celebration of Hobart Jordan's birthday anniversary was staged recently by a group of interested friends. They arrived at the Jordan home, 1606 South Van Ness avenue, with all in readiness for serving a delicious repast with birthday cake as dessert.

Although Mrs. Jordan was not aware of the plans for the party, she had gathered fresh bouquets which made the home attractive for the occasion. The guests presented the birthday celebrant with gifts.

The group concluded the pleasant afternoon by going to Balboa Beach for a picnic supper.

Participating in the event with Mr. and Mrs. Jordan were Messrs. and Mesdames Frank Hunt and son, Frank jr., M. B. Morrison and son, Jerry; J. B. Hamilton, Hal Noel, Mesdames Peggy Melton, Gay Parks, Gladys Camlet; Miss Louella Clark; Alonzo Melton and G. Mott Shephard, all of this city; Mr. and Mrs. Albert Heimer and daughter, Helen, of Long Beach; Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Graves and son, Vernon, of Orange.

Jack Fisher Auxiliary Plans Various Events

Making plans for various events on their summer calendar, members of Women's auxiliary, Jack Fisher chapter, D. A.V., met Wednesday night in Knights of Columbus hall, with Mrs. Mary Fisher, commander, in charge.

Announcement was made of a fourth district picnic to be held Sunday, July 22 at Fourth street park, Ontario. Coffee, cream and watermelon will be furnished by Ontario chapter. All participants are to bring their own luncheons as well as table service.

Plans were made for the next general meeting of the auxiliary, scheduled for Wednesday, August 1, at 6 p.m. at Jack Fisher park. Members are to take covered dishes, bread and butter and table service. Coffee will be served. Games and contests will be provided for children attending.

Tentative arrangements were made for a card party to be held on the evening of Wednesday, August 29 in Knights of Columbus hall.

Applications for membership were accepted from Mrs. Ruth Henle of Santa Ana and Mrs. Ida McClune, Placentia. Reports of committees were given.

After the business meeting, the auxiliary joined the chapter for a social hour at which time the Hon. Sam Collins spoke briefly of his experiences in Washington, D.C. J. Ogden Markel sang "Boy of Mine" and "Just a Cottage Small," accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Marion Mower. Miss Bernice Miles read, "Breaking the News Gently" (Bitney) and "The Colored Lady at the Telephone" (Walter Ben Hare).

Refreshments of cakes and coffee were served by the auxiliary.

Young Couple Wedded In Los Angeles

Announcement was made today by Mrs. G. M. Vann, 107 North Parton street, of the marriage of her daughter, Miss Vivian Vann, to Jack F. Mitchell, son of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Mitchell, 511 Normandy place.

The wedding of the young people was one of quiet simplicity occurring Saturday, June 23 in Los Angeles at the "Wedding Chapel." They have now returned to this city where for the present they are making their home on Normandy place.

Mr. Mitchell, who attended Santa Ana high school, is associated with his father in a machine shop on French street. His bride attended Anaheim high school. Preceding her wedding she was complimented at a number of bridal parties and showers at which she received many lovely gifts to be used and enjoyed in her new home.

Student Recital

Program of Readings

Mrs. C. D. Hicks, teacher of expression, presented the Misses Helen Crowther and Ruth Smith in joint recital recently in Julia Lathrop music room, which had been decorated for the occasion with tall baskets of flowers.

Adding a surprise note to the evening, Mrs. Hicks presented Master Billy Davis, five-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Davis, South Sycamore street, in a series of readings.

Miss Smith's numbers included "The Little Boy Who Ran Away" (Perry); "The Boy That's Scairt o' Dyin'" (Slosson); "The Last Hymn," "Arithmetic and Peaches" (Schell); "The Dream Ship" (Field); "A Silly Duckling" (Budd); "How Girls Fish."

Carlton Rhinard entertained with a vocal solo, "Duna" (McGill).

Billy Davis' presentations were "Our Flag," "Frogs" (Colburn); "When I Grow Big" (Hicks); "Toyville Express" (Brown); "Moo, Cow, Moo" (Cooke); "My Doggie" (Porter); "Lonesome Apple" (Erb); "Getting to Be a Man" (Kiser); "Shave Store" (Cooke).

Church Societies

Delta Alpha Picnic

Inspired by the summer weather, members of Delta Alpha class of First M. E. Sunday school participated in a delightful park party this week, sharing a picnic supper in Anaheim city park.

Tables were laid in the picnic grounds with their sheltering sycamore trees, and places were indicated for 33 class members. The occasion was a "home-coming" for several members who were given enthusiastic welcome after extended absences. Among them were Mrs. Ina Glasscock who had been in Redlands for several years while her daughter, Miss Thelma Glasscock, attended Redlands university; Miss Cora Craig, recuperating from a prolonged illness, and the Misses Nellie O'Brien and Mamie Lamb who had been on the absent list for some time.

Several special guests were welcomed also, the list including the Rev. George A. Warmer, pastor of the church, Mrs. Warmer, Charles, Florence and Craig Warmer, Mrs. Ida Confer and Messrs. Arthur Confer and A. L. DeBarr.

Sisters Welcome Fifty Friends to Bridge Tea

The hospitality of the George Dunton home, 1532 East Fourth street, was extended to half a hundred young people Wednesday afternoon when the Misses Barbara and Betty Dunton joined in entertaining their schoolmates and other friends at a bridge tea. Miss Betty Dunton has completed her second year studies at Pomona college, and Miss Barbara Dunton is a student at Santa Ana Junior college.

Mrs. Dunton assisted her attractive daughters in receiving guests and in carrying out other pleasant duties of the afternoon. Bright-hued zinnias arranged about the spacious rooms provided setting for bridge tables where the card contest was soon in progress.

Prizes for scoring first and second high in contract went to Miss Mary Nau and Miss Mary Tuthill. Miss Janet Diehl and Miss Valerie Demetriou held first and second high scores in auction.

The hostesses invited their guests to the sun room for the refreshment hour, at which time the Misses Mary Helen Bell and Ruth Warner poured tea from a prettily laid table centered with pompon zinnias. Sandwiches, cakes, cookies and nuts were served.

You and Your Friends

Miss Alice Hanson, 2648 Riverside drive, is recuperating from a three week's illness.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wones arrived unexpectedly Wednesday from their home in Redwood City for a visit with Mrs. Wones' mother, Mrs. Martha Taylor, 820 Riverine avenue, and brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Taylor, El Toro.

Miss Elizabeth Phillips of San Francisco, formerly of this city where she was secretary at the board of education office, was the guest this week of her sister, Mrs. H. B. Anderson of Monroe street, west of the city. Yesterday she called on old friends here of her mother, the late Mrs. Cornelia Hunt Phillips, before leaving for San Marino to visit her sister, Mrs. Fred Dodge (Helen Phillips).

Mrs. Sarah House, 1031 Fairview street, entertained as guests yesterday, her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. E. V. Cox and a brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Widerfelt, all of Long Beach.

Mrs. Estelle Gray of this city, department president of W.R.C., and Mrs. Gladys McDonald of Orange, department secretary, were in Glendale today attending a reception in their honor. The two will go to Torrance tomorrow to institute a new Relief Corps which they organized yesterday.

Mrs. C. S. Crookshank, Lemon Heights, returned yesterday morning from the east where she spent the past three months. She was in Chicago for two months, visiting with her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Cohen and attending the exposition. En route west, Mrs. Crookshank stopped at Greeley, Colo. for a month's stay with another brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Whitney. She traveled by train.

Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Gulledge 1338 West Seventh street, had as guests in their home yesterday Mrs. Gulledge's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Pistole, and the Misses Madge and Barbara Nell Tremor and Dorothy Mathews, all of San Diego.

Mrs. F. D. Hawkinson, 412 West Second street, left Monday by bus for Denver, Colo., to visit with relatives. She plans to be gone three weeks or longer.

Mr. and Mrs. Carey Haynes and daughter, Miss Margaret Haynes, 617 Cypress avenue, have returned home from Happy Camp Calif., where they spent the past month with Mr. and Mrs. O. J. Schaap. Mrs. Schaap is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Haynes.

Announcements

W. R. C. Federation No. 1, of which Mrs. C. F. Millen of this city is president, will meet Monday at 10 a. m. at La Habra Masonic hall. Luncheon at noon will be served by La Habra corps.

Social section of Santa Ana Woman's club will meet Tuesday at 12:30 p. m. for a picnic luncheon with Mrs. J. D. Watkins, 2050 Ocean boulevard, Balboa Beach.

Out Of Town Friends Share Anniversary Dinner

Inviting a little group of out of town friends to their home, 408 East Myrtle street, Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Bennett recently entertained with a daintily appointed dinner in celebration of their silver wedding anniversary.

The hosts observed a white and silver theme in all decorations, centering a large table with a handsome wedding cake frosted in white and mounted on a white and silver standard. Tall white tapers tied with silver ribbons rose from cut glass candlesticks. Nut cups, place cards and other details conformed to the appropriate theme.

Silver salad forks, teaspoons and cake server, with a large bouquet of flowers, were presented to Mr. and Mrs. Bennett on behalf of the guests. They included Mr. and Mrs. M. L. King of Pasadena, Mr. and Mrs. C. N. Schmidt, Mr. and Mrs. L. Hesseltine and Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Priestly of Ontario.

Ann Meredith's Mixing Bowl

EAT AND GROW SLIM
Luncheon

Salad Plate:
1 large tomato
2 Tbsps. any cooked green vegetable
½ tsp. grated onion
2 Tbsps. diced cold meat
Diet mayonnaise
2 toasted crusts, dry
Iced tea with lemon and saccharin
Calory total 250

This is a love of a luncheon for a hot day. Feed the family and shoo them out, then take your own delicious salad from the refrigerator, put salad, toast and iced tea on a tray, get that story you didn't finish last night and settle down in the coolest corner in the house for 30 minutes, although an hour is better, and you will have enough gimp to last the day out.

Scald and peel the tomato. Scoop out the pulp, leaving a shell to fill. String beans, green peas . . . anything left from dinner will do. Mix it with seasonings and diet mayonnaise (mineral oil) and combine with the diced meat or half of a hard boiled egg, diced. Fill the tomato, arrange on lettuce with the sliced pulp at the side and put a dab of mayonnaise on top for good luck.

This is one place you can use the two crusts from the sliced bread loaf. Toast them to a crisp brown and cut in fingers while still hot and moist.

How about counting your own calories- You can do the job just as well as I can if you will send a stamped, self-addressed envelope and a copy of a favorite recipe. The calory list contains 330 food items listed in terms you can see at a glance.

A One-Dish Meal

2 pounds hamburger
1 large onion
2 Tbsps. bacon fat
1 can corn
1 package broad noodles, boiled
—Contributed Recipe.

Dice the onion and fry in the hot fat for 10 minutes. Pinch off bits of hamburger and fry until the red leaves the meat. Add the can of corn, the cooked noodles, and cook gently for a few minutes. Turn into a buttered baking dish and bake 45 minutes in a slow oven.

If you have a cupful of brown gravy, add it to this dish, and with it a half can of tomato hot sauce or mushroom sauce. Buttered crumbs make a crusty appetizing top when the dish is to be served immediately.

With this dish you might serve a stuffed tomato salad . . . the one used in the diet menu today, only the diced meat should be left out. The dish serves six, generously. The calory value per serving is about 460.

Wouldn't both the one-dish meal and the stuffed salad be grand food to take on a picnic? The hot dish could be kept hot, wrapped in many thicknesses of paper. The chilled salads, nested in a covered dish, would still be cold, if wrapped in paper. But do make your coffee on a camp fire or it isn't a picnic.

Popular Teacher Weds Long Beach Man In Las Vegas Rites

Mrs. Mabel A. Madden, 428 West Washington avenue, today announced the marriage of her daughter, Miss Mary Louise Young, to Carl D. Sanborn of Long Beach, an event of Sunday, July 15.

It was in Las Vegas, Nev., that the young people took their wedding vows. They were accompanied to that city by Mr. Sanborn's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Linsey of Pasadena, who were their attendants at the quiet rites. The Rev. W. L. Summers, pastor of the Las Vegas M. E. church, South, read the marriage service, for which Miss Young was costumed in navy blue crepe with all dress accessories in the same deep hue.

The new Mr. and Mrs. Sanborn returned to Long Beach, deferring their honeymoon until August when Mr. Sanborn will have his vacation from duties with the Continental Baking company. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Sanborn of Pasadena, and had his education in eastern schools before the family came to California. His bride followed graduation from Santa Ana High school with a course at U. C. L. A. Since completion of college work she has been a valuable member of the teaching staff at Julia Lathrop Junior high school, work which she will resume in September, dividing her time between Santa Ana and Long Beach.

Coincident with announcement of the wedding, friends of the bride began making plans for post-nupital parties to compliment Mrs. Sanborn, who is popular in school and social circles here.

PATTERN 1876

BY ANNE ADAMS

When you come right down to it, it is really a very small cape . . . but what a difference it makes in the frock. It "dresses" a woman for the street. Makes her look more formally clad and feel even more so. Choose your fabric and color right and you can make this frock do double duty. For instance, if you make it of china blue cotton or linen or silk crepe you can wear it with a navy blue hat and little cape, and go almost anywhere on a warm afternoon. Without the cape and hat it becomes the nicest sort of an outfit in which to play a game of tennis.

Pattern 1876 is available in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40. Size 16 takes 3 1–4 yards of 36 inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins o rstamps (coins preferred) for this Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

The smartest warm weather fashions, the newest fabrics, and the Summer season's outstanding accessories are illustrated and described in the NEW ANNE ADAMS PATTERN BOOK FOR SUMMER. Late New From Orange And Nearby Towns

Walnut Cracking Plant May Be Established Here

NEW VENTURE WOULD EMPLOY 100 PERSONS

ORANGE, July 20.—A large walnut cracking plant which will employ 100 women for a period of five months, may be established in Orange this year, it became known today, with the construction of a large addition to the Rosenberg Bros. and company packing plant and the arrival of $15,000 worth of new machinery.

Whether or not the plant will be placed in operation during the coming walnut harvest, starting about September 1, could not be learned, but all necessary preparations are going forward and the new industry is considered a strong probability for the near future.

A new walnut cracking machine has been received by the Rosenberg plant, a large new cleaner is to be installed, and two large stamping machines, to imprint the name of "Ensign" brand upon first grade walnuts shipped by the house, were unloaded yesterday.

Eighteen workmen are engaged in constructing the new plant extension, 50 feet by 100 feet, at the north end of the packing house which is located on the Santa Fe tracks immediately west of the depot, for which a building permit was recently taken out. Nearly all of the workmen are Orange residents, it is said. The building is to be completed by August 5.

The building, comprising 5000 additional square feet of floor space, is being built in preparation for establishment of the cracking plant, it is understood, and will be used to handle the entire cracking operations of the Rosenberg company in Southern California, with nuts arriving at the plant from some 3000 acres of groves from Ventura to San Diego.

The local plant was established in Orange four years ago and last year processed 2385 tons of walnuts. During the walnut harvest, employment is provided regularly to 20 men and 60 women for a period of three months. With establishment of the cracking plant employment will be provided for 100 additional women, it is expected, with operations lasting five months.

The local plant is one of 34 walnut and fruit houses maintained by the Rosenberg company, and before moving to Orange was located in Fullerton and Los Angeles. The manager of the plant is S. K. Watters, who has been manager of the Southern California walnut house of the company since its establishment in Fullerton in 1919.

A light walnut crop is anticipated this year, but additional acreage has been signed up, so that shipments of better than 2000 tons of nuts are anticipated.

Unemployed To Operate Shoe Shop

ORANGE, July 20.—Plans for a shoe repairing shop to be located in Santa Ana under the direction of the Cooperative Workers' Relief of Orange, were discussed at a meeting of the organization, held last night at the headquarters on West LaVeta avenue. The shoe repairing department which was allotted to the local exchange by the government, will involve an expenditure of approximately $2400, and will supply the 13 other exchange units in this territory.

During a business meeting, in charge of C. E. McKean, president and manager of the Cooperative Workers' Relief of Orange, it was voted to have a business meeting the first and third Thursdays of each month and a social meeting the second and fourth Thursdays of each month.

At the close of the meeting, guitar music was provided by T. Gist, after which refreshments of home made sake and coffee were served by Mrs. Agnes Melton.

ORANGE PERSONALS

ORANGE, July 20.—Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Courtney, of El Centro, who have been visiting in the home of the former's mother, Mrs. Angeline Courtney of 273 South Lemon street, left Thursday for Fresno where they will remain for awhile. They will return to Orange later in the summer.

EL MODENA, July 20.—Of interest to El Modena friends will be the news of the marriage in Riverside Sunday of Miss Mildred Lucille Beymer, daughter of Mrs. Charles Ford Beymer, and Everett Martin Graham, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Graham of San Jose.

Dr. James Lewis Gillies of the M. E. church, read the service in the rose garden at the home of the bride's cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Lawrence, 1819 Chicago avenue, Riverside, in the presence of about seventy relatives and friends of the couple.

The bride wore a gown of white taffeta, trimmed with silk net, and a hat of maline. She carried a bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley. She was given in marriage by her father's only brother, William J. Beymer of Lynwood. Her attendants were her sister, Miss Marie Beymer as maid of honor, and Miss Marguerite Crayson as bridesmaid. Neil Beymer, brother of the bride, was best man.

Miss Gladys Sieber of Los Angeles played "Adoration" (Felix Borowski) as a violin solo before the ceremony, with Miss Ruth Graham, sister of the bridegroom, accompanying her. Miss Graham also played the Lohengrin and Mendelssohn wedding marches. A reception at the home of the bride's mother, 2089 Orange street, followed the pretty ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Graham will go to San Jose to make their home about August 1, after spending their honeymoon in the mountains. The bride's going away gown was of blue printed crepe, with white accessories.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Graham and Miss Ruth Graham of San Jose, Mr. and Mrs. George Graham and daughter, Barbara, of Santa Barbara, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Beymer of Lynwood, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Beymer and children of Orange, Mr. and Mrs. Chester Beymer and son of Fresno, and Mr. and Mrs. Chester Stearns of Orange.

NOMINATE OFFICERS OF AMERICAN LEGION POST

ORANGE, July 20.—Nomination for officers featured last night's meeting of the Orange American Legion post, with the election scheduled for Thursday evening, August 16. Additional nominations may be made prior to that time.

Among the nominations made last night were the following: For commander: Bob Steele, Ewald Weigner and Herbert Batterman; for first vice commander, Ed Wescott; for second vice commander, Dayton Ditchie; for adjutant, A. R. Benson, Ed Fisher, and Ed Wescott; for sergeant at arms, Charles Olson; for historian, George Carlson and Bob Phillips.

Under the Legion rules, no nominee may retire at the time of his nomination, and the lists are held open for additional nominations until the August 16 meeting when the election will take place.

The speaker of last night's meeting was Dr. E. L. Russell, of the Orange county health department, who spoke on the recent infantile paralysis epidemic, and reported the "situation well in hand."

CONFIDENCE IS RECOVERY AID, SPEAKER SAYS

ORANGE, July 20.—"Confidence in the government and industry is the only way the United States can come out of the depression," stated Congressman Sam Collins when he addressed members of the Orange Rotary club Thursday noon at their regular dinner meeting, held in the American Legion clubhouse.

Collins further declared that "The citizens of the United States must stop, look and listen before proceeding much further in the course the country is taking, as communistic influences have been felt in legislation as well as in the strikes."

He stated that the government of the United States in the past has afforded more advantages to the workingman than elsewhere. He also related that this enviable position was not the result of experimenting in government. 'Prohibition failed because of the failure on the part of the people to teach temperance. Because of the eighteenth amendment, it was taken for granted; thus the benefits and privileges of our government must not be taken for granted, but must be taught to the younger generation, with a challenge to those attacking the government."

George J. Hatfield, candidate for lieutenant governor of California, presented a short talk, during which he stated that the growth of strikes in California is due to a communistic influence.

A program of dancing was presented under the direction of Miss Dorothy Hinkley and six of her dancing pupils of Long Beach.

YOUNG PEOPLE OF CHURCH IN ANNUAL MEET

ORANGE, July 20.—A large crowd was in attendance at the annual young people's meeting of the missionary society of the First Presbyterian church, which met Thursday afternoon in the church parlors.

A play, "The Other Mary," was beautifully portrayed under the direction of Miss Shirley Haynes. The role of "Womanhood," was played by Miss Katherine Ferne Summner; "Mary," Miss Joe Green; "Lydia," a seller of purple; Miss Barbara Sutherland; "A Woman of Ephesus," Miss Wilma Stanfield; "Bertha," a Frankish Princess, Miss Elizabeth Lowry; "Aletta," Miss Evelyn Estes; "Ann Hutchinson," Miss Juanita Stanfield; "Ann Judson," the first missionary, Miss Henrietta Campbell; "A Modern Missionary," Miss Helen Lusn.

Devotions were led by Miss Henrietta Settle, while Miss Dulcie Green, accompanied at the piano by Miss Joe Green, sang, "Hold Thou My Mand," by Main.

During a business meeting in charge of Mrs. William Sutherland, it was announced that the next meeting will be held at the old Flippen ranch on East Chapman avenue, August 16. Mrs C. B. Harper will be in charge.

At the close of the meeting, delicious refreshments were served in the church patio by Mrs. Jerome Westfall.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Monnie O'Dare, beautiful, poor and 20, is in love with Dan Cardigan, heir to one of the local fortunes. Dan professes to love her but is often neglectful. When she needs a friend Charles Eustace comes to her aid. Monnie believes Sandra Lawrence, in Dan's own set, is trying to win him from her. Bill, Monnie's older brother, plans to marry Angie Gillen, who works in a candy store, as soon as Angie gets a divorce.

Kay O'Dare, 16 and still in high school, is discontented with poverty. At a dinner party at Charles' house Monnie is heartsick when she accidentally sees Dan kiss Sandra. Hetty, a housemaid at the Lawrences, dislikes Sandra.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER X

There was the music, restless, throbbing; a tenor, wailing into a microphone:

"Anything you say, anything you do, Da-da, da-da-da,"

Monnie, dancing with Charles, lifted her head proudly, smiling. If her heart ached no one should know it. Charles asked, "Tired?" and she answered him gayly. Her tone couldn't have been entirely convincing, because he went over and shut off the radio.

Sandra pouted. "I like that! Just when I was teaching Danny a new step!"

Charles seemed not to hear. He clapped his hands and the Chinese boy, Kong, he had brought with him to Belvedere, appeared in the doorway, smiling faintly.

"How about some food, Kong?"

Dan glanced at his watch. "It's 12, Sandra."

In a low tone, Monnie told Charles she really must go. He put a warm brown hand on hers for an instant.

"Do you mean that?"

She did. So the houseboy was dismissed for the night, and presently Monnie found herself crowded in with Charles in the front seat of his car, Kay beside them.

Kay said, prettily, schoolgirl fashion, that she had had a beautiful time. She had "loved every minute of it." At the door, Charles detained Monnie for a moment.

"And you?"

"It was fun," Monnie told him.

She thought Charles hesitated for a split second. Then he told her slowly, "We must do it again some time. I like that small sister of yours. She's charming."

"Everyone likes Kay." So that was the way of it, Monnie thought. Charles Eustace and Kay. Well, that was all right, too. Kay would be 17, soon. Kay was beautiful, too beautiful for her own good in this narrow-minded small town. It would be marvelous to see Kay have her chance.

They said good night then and the two girls drifted upstairs. Kay was far too excited to sleep. She came to sit on the edge of Monnie's bed, brushing that incredibly fine-spun golden hair of hers.

"Isn't he just too grand?"

"Charles? Yes. Wonderful," returned Monnie quietly.

"No, not him," cried Kay, heedless of grammar. "I mean the boy friend—the broker from the big city. Is he smooth!"

"Oh. I didn't notice."

Kay continued to wield the brush for a few moments without speaking. Then, abruptly, she burst out, "I hope you see now that Sandra Lawrence is the kitty-cat I always told you she was."

Monnie shrugged. "Does it matter?"

"Not in the least," Kay told her loftily. She's been racketing around the world for years now and hasn't even snatched herself a husband. I think she's getting scared and so has decided to work on something simple like Dan Cardigan."

"Do you think Dan's to be had—just for the snatching?" Monnie asked quietly. There was a slow, dull pain in her breast.

"Any of 'em are," chattered Kay, smearing cold cream into her exquisite skin and staring at herself in the mirror. "You just have to know the rules of the game."

"You mean I don't?"

Kay gave her sister an appraising glance. "I guess you know 'em all right but the trouble is you let your feelings get involved. That's bad."

Monnie couldn't help smiling. Where did Kay get all this wisdom?

"Laugh at me if you like," Kay advised equably. "But I know my stuff. I'll prob'ly get what I want. I'm—what d'you call it?—ruthless. You're too worried about the other fellow's feelings. It doesn't pay."

"Do you mind if I turn out the light, Kay," Monnie asked her abruptly. If she heard much more of this, the tears that had been threatening her all evening would be sure to overtake her.

Kay was asleep in three minutes. Monnie could hear her soft breathing.

She lay awake as the moon climbed high into the summer heavens. Sandra and Dan, Sandra and Dan, Sandra and Dan—She kept seeing them together.

Hetty, the maid, untied her apron strings and wadded the white object into a ball. Staring after the car that carried Sandra and Dan Cardigan off into the summer night, she looked furiously discontented. She waited until the roar of the motor dwindled in the distance. Then, with her small head cocked, bird-like, on one side, she listened cautiously for the other sounds of the household. Cook was whistling softly to herself below-stairs and there was the irritating tinkle of water from a half-closed tap. Otherwise all was silent. In this new and rather imposing house of the Lawrences everything was luxuriously perfect. There was deep piled rugs and formally draped curtains. "The decorator's dream," Sandra called it, pretending to scorn it but honestly proud of its richness and dignity.

Now Hetty moved on noiseless feet in the direction from which Sandra had just come. Sandra's room, the door flung wide, was like its owner—poised and elegant. She had planned all the decorations and the room was a symphony in white and red. Dull, creamy velvet and satin had been used for the upholstery of small chairs and the low chaise by the window. The curtains were of lacquer red, against Venetian blinds of soothing creaminess. There were no pictures, save a subdued Marie Laurencin in one corner, brooding over Sandra's modern dressing table with its angled mirrors and crimson bottles.

In all this daring purity, Hetty's black frock was like a blotch of ink. Arms akimbo, the maid surveyed the scene. She shut the door soundlessly behind her and advanced into Sandra's domain, her eyes flickering with repressed emotion — anger, resentment or mere ill-temper, one could not be sure which.

She tiptoed to the dressing table, sat down on the bench where only a few moments ago its mistress had preened herself and stared at the mirror. Discontented with what she saw there, Hetty clicked her tongue impatiently against her teeth and began to investigate the contents of the many small bottles and jars with which the table was littered.

She tried the effect of a carmine stain on her cheek and smiled. She unscrewed the cap from a tube of lip-paste and smeared this generously against her rather thin mouth. Then she used an eyebrow brush she found in a drawer. She dusted her sallow cheeks and nose with delicately scented powder and sprayed a mist of flower fragrance against her shoulder as she had seen motion picture actresses do.

She minced over to the clothes closet where on padded hangers and crystal shelves were disposed the impedimenta of Sandra's elegance. A cloudy blue chiffon frock she snatched from its transparent protector, holding it against her lean young girl's shape to see how it became her.

A sound came from downstairs—something that sounded like the bellow of an infuriated bull. Startled, the maid tied on the now crumpled apron, crammed the blue frock hastily back into its place, made a wild sweep at her rather bizarre countenance with a duster she snatched from nowhere at all, and flew out on the landing.

"Hetty! Hetty! Where are you?"

"You've been at it again. I knew it! Mark my words, you'll get the gate with your nonsense."

Hetty said sullenly, "Don't know what you're talking about."

"Don't you, eh? Snooping around the young madam's room and tryin' on her things! Can't I smell her perfumery? And your face! Go wash it in the pantry this minute. The mister just phoned he's bringing some men to dinner. Fine business if you turn up looking like a floozie."

Hetty showed herself at the kitchen door a few moments later, clean and chastened. But Mrs. Peterman was still grumbling.

"You'll find yourself out of a job one of these days and no two ways about it. With things the way they are I can't understand what's got into you. You won't get another place like this—not in a good while!"

"I hate this place," Hetty spat out.

"Oh, you do, miss? Well, isn't that just too bad? I know what's eating you, I do. Just because James is polite to the young lady and she to him you're jealous as a wild cat. I never heard such nonsense. Suppose you think you can tell your betters how to behave themselves!"

"She'd better watch herself, that's all I say," muttered Hetty, spearing balls of butter viciously from their bath of ice water and disposing them on the small crystal plates.

"Girls nowadays are out of their minds, that's all," Mrs. Peterman pursued, flinging open the oven door to peer in at the sizzling roast. "Don't know when they're well off. What do you want to bother with James for, anyhow? He looks nice all dressed up in his driver's uniform but what that gets you, I don't know."

"Thanks for the ad!" A tall youth, rakishly attired in a smart chauffeur's outfit in hunter's green, grinned at the two women from the doorway. "When do we eat?"

THE WEEKLY PANTRY SHELF

NEW BOOKS IN PUBLIC LIBRARY

BY VERNA RAMSEY

All that now remains of Samuel Hadlock of Maine, showman extraordinary is related to us by Rachel Field. She says it is "a gold snuff box; a silhouette cut in London in 1824; an old compass, maps, and a chart; a marriage certificate in German script; and two tattered copybooks crowded with faded entries in a vigorous Spencerian hand; these and a story of romantic adventure and love and tragedy."

That story Miss Fields tells in "God's Pocket," with the help of the showman's diary. Samuel Hadlock jr. was born about 1782 in Cranberry Isles, Maine. He took up sealing and whaling in the far north. Tiring of this, he conceived the idea of touring the fairs of Europe with a show. Accompanied by two Eskimos and with an exhibition of native weapons, utensils, and relics, he left for the continent. His success was phenomenal. Kings and queens and rogues alike fell under the spell of his colorful personality.

The journal of his adventures was loaned to Miss Field by Hadlock's grandson. It is a record of sights seen in the villages and courts of Europe; of meetings with ropalty; of the showman's love for a "Prussian lady"; of the keen observation of a man whose imagination was quickened by any deviation from the human pattern. The quaint spelling adds to the charm of the diary.

The title of the book has a place in the atmosphere of the story. Miss Fields says she chose "God's Pocket" for the title because "it was an actual phrase used by the old man and seemed to belong to that northern cove and the loves and journeyings and strange enterprises of an island man in that small pocket of eternity which each of us fills for a lifetime."

Dr. W. F. G. Swann is known to be a vivid and witty expositor of recent developments in science as well as a physicist who has made noteworthy contributions in his field. In "The Architecture of the Universe" he lives up to his reputation both for mastery of his subject and for skill in presenting it.

The book is intended primarily for the educated layman. Many readers who have no special knowledge of physics or mathematics are nevertheless interested in the broad features of the design of the physical world and especially the significance of man's endeavor to understand that design.

The style is informal and popular. The author's fresh viewpoint and his vivacity and freshness of illustration make his chapters both stimulating and entertaining. He discusses medieval and modern dogmas in natural philosophy; the dawn and development of the modern era; the nature of matter; the development of the atomic theory; modern atomic theories; certain principles in physics; the fate of the universe; dimensions; the theory of relativity; space and time; vital processes and science and theology.

The situation in attempting to understand the principles of the physical world, Dr. Swann compares to that encountered in contemplating a great architectural structure. It is possible to comprehend the general lines of the structure without that technical knowledge of the methods of mixing cement necessary to the builder. The explanations and illustrations given in this book will immeasurably widen the horizon of the reader's thoughts regarding the architecture of the universe.

In these times of trying circumstances, many people are seeking to find work in a new field or to create a new job. This is no simple task. It requires the recasting of old habits into new molds. It requires courage, originality, and no small amount of persistence. Violet Ryder and H. B. Doust present "Make Your Own Job" in the hope that it will be of practical assistance to such individuals.

The experiences of 50 men and women who actually have made their own jobs have been used as a basis for the chapters in this book. The unusual vocations they selected cover a wide range including types of work suitable for men and women of varying age, ability and temperament. The informal style in which the chapters are written has been used with a view to helping the reader visualize the occupations and form some idea of the kind of person likely to be successful in each particular one.

Having taken stock of his equipment—mental and manual as well as the tangible—the individual may proceed to examine the vocations that seem to lie within his powers. He may find one that fits his requirements precisely. Others, using the ideas here set forth as a nucleus, may be able to add new ideas of their own. The underlying principle of each venture described is to find some unusual need that can be filled or some service that can be rendered for which people are willing to pay.

Other new books in the library are:

Daviot, Gordon—Richard of Bordeaux.

Gade, John—The Life of Cardinal Mercier.

Halle, Fannina W.—Woman in Soviet Russia.

Harlow, Alvin F.—Old Waybills.

Harrison, Ada—There and Back.

Kingsley, Sidney—Men in White.

Klein, Herman—The Golden Age of Opera.

Laughlin, Clara E.—Traveying Through Life.

Read, Arthur D.—The Profession of Forestry.

Starkie, Walter—Raggle-Taggle.

Thomas, Norman—The Choice Before Us.

Miss Billy Mae Adams of Huntington Beach was a luncheon guest Monday of Miss Dorothy Boyce in the Casa Brea Inn. Miss Adams has just completed a year of teaching in the grade schools in Panama and will return for a second year, having secured another year's leave of absence as art teacher in the Brea elementary schools.

Prevent This Condition with Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

The first question your doctor asks is whether you are constipated or not. He knows that this condition may cause headaches, loss of appetite and energy, sleeplessness. It is often the starting point of serious illness.

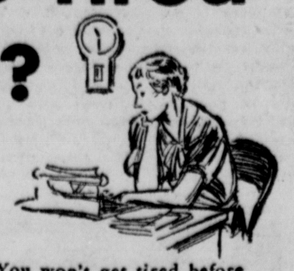

You can prevent and relieve common constipation so easily. Just eat a delicious cereal once a day. Laboratory tests show that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" and vitamin B to aid regular habits. ALL-BRAN is also a rich source of blood-building iron.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that found in leafy vegetables. Within the body, it forms a soft mass. Gently, it clears out the intestinal wastes.

Isn't this "cereal way" safer and far more pleasant than taking patent medicines — so often harmful? Two tablespoonfuls of ALL-BRAN daily are usually sufficient. With each meal in chronic cases. If seriously ill, see your doctor — ALL-BRAN is not a "cure-all."

Enjoy ALL-BRAN as a cereal, or use in cooking. Get the red-and-green package at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Are You Tired by 11:30?

If you begin to get fagged by 11:30—blame your breakfast! Either you didn't give your body enough nourishment, or you didn't give it the right kind.

You're smart enough to give your automobile the right kind of gasoline and oil—why not give your body the right food?

At least one meal a day, especially in this hot weather, eat Shredded Wheat, milk, and fruit—and see how it steps up your efficiency—how much better you feel—how much less you mind the heat!

You won't get tired before meal time if your body is running on Shredded Wheat. It gives you the elements you need for energy, tissue building, resistance to disease, and it contains bran to keep you regular. No wonder it makes you feel fine! Nature might have made a better food than wheat, but she didn't! Start Shredded Wheat today.

A FEW ITEMS LIMITED

FOR YOUR RECIPE FILE

RIPE PEAR JAM

4 cups (2 lbs.) prepared fruit
7½ cups (3 1/4 lbs.) sugar
1 bottle Certo

Peel, core, and crush completely or grind about thre pounds fully ripe pears. If desired, about three teaspoons spice may be added.

Measure sugar and prepared fruit into large kettle, mix well, and bring to a full rolling boil over hottest fire. Stir constantly before and while boiling. Boil hard one minute. Remove from fire and stir in Certo. Then stir and skim by turns for just five minutes to cool slightly, to prevent floating fruit. Pour quickly. Paraffin hot jam at once. Makes about 11 eight-ounce glasses.

MINT JELLY

½ cup apple vinegar
1 cup water
3-1/4 cups (1 lb. 7 oz.) sugar
green coloring
½ bottle (½ cup) Certo
½ to 1½ teaspoons spearmint extract

Measure vinegar, water and sugar into large saucepan. (Strained juice of two lemons may be substituted for vinegar, then use 1½ cups water.) Mix and bring to a boil over hottest fire. While mixture is coming to a boil, add coloring to give desired shade. Use coloring which fruit acids do not fade. As soon as mixture boils, add Certo, stirring constantly. Then bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard ½ minute. Remove from fire, skim; add extract, according to flavor desired. Pour quickly. Paraffin hot jelly at once. Makes about five eight-ounce glasses.

PEPPER RELISH

2 cups (14. oz.) prepared pepper
6½ cups (2 3-4 lbs.) sugar
1½ cups apple vinegar
1 bottle Certo

Cut open about 1 dozen medium peppers and discard seeds. For best color, use equal amounts green and red sweet peppers. Put through food chopper twice, using finest knife. Drain pulp in sieve.

Measure sugar and vinegar into large kettle. Add prepared pepper, packing it solidly into cup until juice comes to top. Mix well and bring to a full rolling boil over hottest fire. Stir constantly before and while boiling. Boil hard 2 minutes. Remove from fire and stir in Certo. Then stir and skim by turns for just 5 minutes to cool slightly, to prevent floating fruit. Pour quickly. Paraffin hot relish at once. Makes about 9 eight-ounce glasses.

RHUBARB JAM

4 cups (2 lbs.) prepared fruit
7 cups (3 lbs.) sugar
1 bottle Certo

Slice fine or chop about 2 pounds rhubarb. Do not peel. Red-stalked rhubarb gives the best color. If desired, add 1 teaspoon ginger to measured rhubarb.

Measure sugar into large kettle. Add prepared fruit, flooding each solidly packed cup with water. Mix well and bring to a full rolling boil over hottest fire. Stir constantly before and while boiling. Boil hard 3 minutes. Remove from fire and stir in Certo. Skim and pour quickly. Paraffin hot jam at once. Makes about 11 eight-ounce glasses.

TOMATO RELISH

3 cups (1½ lbs.) prepared fruit
6½ cups (2 3-4 lbs.) sugar
1 bottle Certo

Use canned tomatoes or scald, peel and crush about 2½ pounds ripe tomatoes. Boil 4 cups crushed tomatoes 10 minutes, uncovered, stirring occasionally. Add 1-4 cup lemon juice and grated rind of 1 lemon. (For use with meats, add ½ teaspoon rich ground cloves, all-spice and cinnamon, or Worchestershire sauce to taste.)

Measure sugar into large kettle. Add prepared fruit, filling up the last cup with water if necessary. Mix well and bring to a full rolling boil over hottest fire. Stir constantly before and while boiling. Boil hard 2 minutes. Remove kettle from fire and stir in Certo. Skim, pour quickly. Paraffin hot jam at once. Makes about 9 eight-ounce glasses.

BUENA PARK

BUENA PARK, July 20.—Mrs. Hilda Lewis of Los Angeles is a guest for the remainder of the week of her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Schmitz of Stanton avenue.

A group from Buena Park attended the O. E. S. past matrons' and patrons' picnic at Orange county park last night.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh White of 226 Homewood avenue are the parents of a daughter, Mildred, born Tuesday at the Murphy Memorial hospital in Whittier.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Middleton and children and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wahls and son are at Bishop where they are visiting relatives.

Mrs. La Rue C. Watson, wife of the Buene Park Congregational church pastor, has returned to her home on Whitaker avenue after an operation performed last week at the Buena Park hospital. She is able to receive visitors.

Mrs. Flora Drusko of Santa Monica returned Tuesday to her home after a few days spent as the house guest of Mr. and Mrs. O. A. Stone of North Grand avenue.

The Rev. F. M. Huling has returned after a few weeks spent at a church conference at Big Bear. The Rev. and Mrs. Huling will leave Monday for a month vacation in the middle western states. A list of substitutes who will be in charge of church services will be announced later.

Herman De Jonge, son of the pastor of the Holland Dutch church here is spending the summer with his parents. He recently graduated from a university at Grand Rapids, Mich.

TUSTIN

TUSTIN, July 20.—Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Brown of Pacific avenue entertained at a charmingly appointed Sunday in observance of the birthday anniversary of their niece, Miss Inez Hickman, of Orange. Decorations carried out a patriotic color scheme of red, white and blue colors. Place cards were written for the honor guest, Miss Hickman, and her mother, Mrs. R. H. McArthur, of Orange; Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Hatch and Mrs. Arthur Witten of Tustin, and the hosts, Mr. and Mrs. Brown.

Ned Hatch of Arcadia is enjoying a visit with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Hatch.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Carlson of Taft spent several days recently with Mrs. Carlson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Whitney.

Miss Irene Preble has returned from a week's vacation spent with her sister, Mrs. Ralph Ellis, and family, of Norco, in the Sierra mountains.

Mrs. Verle Esherman of Pomona was a Wednesday dinner guest of her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Cadett Hamilton.

Mrs. Bud Hannaford and daughter, Betty Lou, and Mrs. Louis A. Riehl and daughter, Virginia, visited Homer Hannaford and Louis A. Riehl jr. at the Tustin Boy Scout camp in Trabuco canyon Wednesday.

Donald Kennedy, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Kennedy, of Newport road, is enjoying a several weeks' visit with his brother and sister-in-law, the Rev. and Mrs. Wallace Kennedy, and family, at Glenwood Springs, Colo.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Pankey spent the week-end at Big Bear. They were joined on Sunday by their son, Edgar Pankey, and Jack Connor.

MIDWAY CITY

MIDWAY CITY, July 20.—Mrs. Bryan Tayes and young daughter, Sammy Lee Tayes, and Mrs. Tayes' sister-in-law, Miss Sallyetta Tayes, have returned from Taft where they have spent several weeks for the benefit of the little girls' health.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross Gaylor, former local residents, were callers in Midway City among former neighbors this week. The family now resides at Ontario.

Mrs. J. A. Schmidt, who makes her home with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. William Schmidt of Adams street, is now confined to her room by ill health. Her son, H. H. Schmidt of Los Angeles, motored here Tuesday to visit her.

Miss Genevieve Salisbury who makes her home with Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Burdy spent Thursday at her home in Huntington Beach and had as her guests Miss Mary Arnett.

LA HABRA

Marcia Lou La Monte, small daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. W. La Monte, is confined to her home on South College street with measles.

Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Smith and family of Mt. View drove were dinner guests Monday evening of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Wiley sr. of Whittier.

Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Walker and son of South College street are vacationing at Exeter and may motor as far norts as Sacramento.

Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Strong of East Second avenue and Mr. and Mrs. Gurnard Beer and daughter, Nancy, of La abra Heights, and Bobbie Phillips of South College street, plan to leave today to remain the rest of the week camping at Huntington Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. Claude Ridgway and daughter and Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Berry and family returned yesterday from a vacation trip to Mammoth Lakes.

ATWOOD

Everett Gowling of Los Angeles spent Monday with his mother, Mrs. Arthur Gowling.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Teed and son, Bobby, June Duer, and Dorothy and Allan Shook stayed overnight at Camp Rokili at Seven Oaks. Allan remained there.

PAVE RIVERSIDE ROAD

Pennsylvania avenue, in Riverside, is to be paved from Fourteenth street to the city limits, reports the National Automobile club. Plans call for a 20-foot pavement.

SEEK TO RAISE CONCERT FUNDS FOR ANAHEIM

ANAHEIM, July 20.—Solicitation of funds for the presentation of a series of three or possibly four concerts in the park this summer was started here today under a program outlined Wednesday at a meeting of the Merchants and Manufacturers association. It is estimated that $100 will be needed for each program.

Oscar Renner, chairman of the committee named by the chamber of commerce estimates the cost and probable value of the concert series, reported at the meeting that the musical events would more than pay for themselves through benefits derived by the merchants. He pointed out that in former years between 3000 and 4000 people attended every concert presented in the park.

The present program will be in addition to the project for eight proposed concerts submitted to SERA. It was announced at the Wednesday meeting that the proposed concerts to be presented under the Professional, Technical and Women Workers division of SERA would not be available until late in August if at all.

WOULD LIMIT RUM PERMITS FOR ANAHEIM

ANAHEIM, July 20.—Possibility of action being taken to prevent the issuance of additional liquor licenses in Anaheim is looming following the meeting Wednesday of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association. The suggestion that such action be taken was made by L. H. Loudon, president of the group.

It was pointed out that the action, if taken would be for the purpose of making Anaheim a well balanced shopping center that would become the shopping center for Northern Orange county. It also was pointed out that to make the city the mecca for Northern Orange county shoppers the city must be made attractive to women shoppers.

Indication that the merchants, members of the association, would support the plan was seen in discussion of the proposal. Members of the association expressed themselves as feeling that there are now adequate liquor houses operating in the city and that any more might overshadow the merchandising structure to such extent that the town would become less attractive. No action was taken in the matter until the association can investigate the legal phases of the proposal.

A program to make the Merchants and Manufacturers' association self-supporting also was discussed. A plan of dues payment will be worked out by the following committee: Victor Loly, Harry Horn, Sam Hilgenfeld, George Reid and L. H. Loudon. In the past the association has depended on the chamber of commerce for finances.

FLORES ARRAIGNED ON STABBING COUNT

The fight in which Flores is alleged to have slashed Lopez occurred last month at the end of a Saturday night drinking bout. According to police Flores attempted to flee after cutting Lopez but was held for police by another man who had been at the Lopez home for a short time.

Both Lopez and Flores were arrested and Lopez served a jail sentence upon his plea of guilty to being drunk. The complaint against Flores was signed by Lopez's wife.

PRIZEFIGHTER GETS 125 DAY SENTENCE

ANAHEIM, July 20.—John Torres, one time Santa Ana prize fighter is in the county jail serving 125 days, the penalty imposed upon him yesterday by Police Judge Frank Tausch after Torres had pleaded guilty to drunken driving. Torres was fined $250 with the alternative of spending 125 days in jail. His operator's license also was suspended for a period of six months.

Charley Rodriquez, 19, Santa Ana, who was arrested with Torres and charged with being drunk, was fined $25 with the alternative of spending 12 1-2 days in jail and chose the jail sentence.

Both men were arrested Wednesday night when patrolmen trailed the car driven by Torres along a wavering route on South Lemon street.

BUSINESS LICENSE RETURNS INCREASE

ANAHEIM, July 20.—"Happy Days Are Here Again" if license fee collections are any indication according to Chief of Police James Bouldin who also is city license collector. Bouldin said today that approximately $5000 had been paid in business licenses up to last night. This amount, he said is greater than any amount collected in business fees since 1929.

License fees payable six months in advance, became delinquent July 15 and a 10 per cent penalty added to the fee. Bouldin pointed out that in addition to collection a greater amount of cash for the present period there were fewer delinquencies and penalties than usual.

FINANCIAL AND MARKET NEWS

NEW YORK STOCKS

NEW YORK, July 20. — (UP) — A mounting bearishness crept into tshare and commodity markets today and prices were battered down in the most active trading in several weeks.

On the stock market trading was around the million share level—the best trading since early June—with prices 1 to 4 points lower and many issues at new lows for the year.

Live Poultry Comment

LOS ANGELES—An easy and unsettled tone prevailed on Leghorn broilers at listed prices with majority of buyers unwilling to pay over 14 to 15 cents, due to irregular quality of arrivals, and only a few fancy broilers were bringing top price. Demand for ducks was light and some dealers reported purchases at 8 cents for average run with 10 cents paid for top quality. Light Leghorn hens were easy at 11 cents due to poor quality, while good quality, heavy hens were in limited supply and firm. Colored hens were unsettled due to liberal receipts from out of State, including a car of livef rom Kansasand miscellaneous truck arrivals. Hrade lacked snap with buying limited to current needs.

CHICAGO, July 20.—(UP)—Wheat closed 1¾ to 2 cents a bushel lower today on selling induced by a "Modern Miller" report that the government, in its latest crop estimate, had underestimated the witner wheat crop in soft wheat states. Corn and oats were relatively steady, the former closing unchanged to ⅛ cent lower, and the latter off ⅜ to ⅝ cent.

A FIGHTING INDIVIDUALIST

His name is Norman C. Norman. He is a manufacturer of jewelry in New York. A bill for $100 to maintain the code authority in the jewelry business touched him off, and his letter is a denunciation and repudiation of the New Deal and all its works.

It is an interesting letter. Norman never signed a code. He never attended a code meeting. He never signed the president's reemployment agreement. He never permitted the Blue Eagle to be hung on his walls. He has been running his business for 46 years without the partnership of Mr. Roosevelt.

The administration has never invested any money in his business. As long as his own money is invested in the business, he will run it just as it has been run for the last 46 years. He refuses to pay the bill, and will fight to the last ditch to maintain his individual rights.

This is all so sincere to the individualist that he finds not a single flaw in the argument. He does not recognize himself to be a part of a society in which people help him to make his money, and in whose interests society has much at stake.

Suppose Mr. Norman pays starvation wages. Suppose he employs children of tender years, and wrecks their health. Suppose by such methods he compels every competitor to run his business in the same unsocial way. And suppose these people whom he exploits get together some night and wreck his plant, will he maintain himself by his own sturdy arm, or will he call on the police or the national guard to vindicate his humanly unchartered rights?

Mr. Norman, to carry out his economic philosophy, ought to move his business away from New York to the lonely Sahara desert or to the unexplored jungles of Central America. There he can be an individualist such as he demands the right to be; but not in New York, not in the United States of America, and not in the inhabited civilized world in the year of our Lord, 1934, nor in the second year of the presidency of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The tragedy of the whole situation is that Mr. Norman does not think of society at all. All his interests center in his own personality. He thinks he has an unanswerable argument, but he is destined for disillusionment before he gets through with his $100 bill.

A GOVERNOR LOSES HIS JOB

The Supreme court of the state of North Dakota hands down a decision that William Langer may no longer be governor of the state, in spite of the fact that he was duly elected to that office, and that in the recent primaries he was renominated by a very large majority of his party to run again for the office.

Governor Langer had been federal relief director for his state. While acting in that capacity he solicited funds from relief workers under him—presumably to run his political campaign. It was found out; and he no longer could serve as federal relief director.

Later he was convicted in a federal court and sentenced to jail for 18 months and ordered to pay a fine of $10,000. That is the reason the Supreme court rules that he may no longer be governor.

But Governor Langer wants to continue as governor, and evidently a lot of people want him to continue as governor. Is it not a bit gratuitous on the part of the gentlemen of the Supreme court of North Dakota to deny him this right?

Many would answer "yes." But that is because they do not think. Even if a majority of the people wanted Mr. Langer to continue as governor, there is undoubtedly a large number, constituting a minority, who do not want a man for governor who has not observed constitutional requirements.

We live under a government of laws and not men. The constitution is above the individual. It is there because the right of every individual under the law must be respected and safeguarded. And when a public official violates that fundamental law, it does not matter whether 95 per cent of the people want him to be their governor. The five per cent under a democracy have rights which no majority can take away from them.

Mr. Langer and his friends may not like it. But that is the only way in which a true democracy can function. If that principle of democracy is subverted, then good-bye to the rights of the humblest and the fewest.

THE FORCE OF PUBLIC OPINION

Every movement of a public character depends for its success or failure upon the attitude of public opinion. Public opinion is elusive. It is difficult to define. It is not easy to forecast its trend.

It is mightier than constitutions or statutes. When Mr. Dooley observed that the Supreme court of the United States always followed the election returns, he described with exactness the power of public opinion.

It is quite evident the strike leaders in the northern section of the coast began to sense that public opinion was swinging against them. With a vast economic power in their hands, they could not use it successfully against a hostile public opinion.

The general strike or the sympathetic strike can never succeed unless the abuses or the injustices which provoke them also arouse the larger public. The average citizen is willing to make sacrifices if he believes that the cause which calls for them is worthy of them. This accounts for the more conciliatory attitude of the strike leaders in the later negotiations.

Each side in the conflict is eager to commend itself to public opinion. In these days arbitrary methods will not go. And that applies to both sides in labor conflicts. Labor may easily lose all that it has gained by headlines. And employers may find themselves forced very much farther than they ever thought of going by arbitrariness.

The force which creates public opinion is often inspired by selfish propaganda. By applying unpopular names, it is easy to conjure up bogies in the public mind. But in the long run, reactions to such unfair propaganda are inevitable. The way of justice and fair play, of conciliation and understanding, is always wise. A victory in a skirmish by unfair means may lead to a rout when the public awakens to the fact that it has been duped.

These are facts which all parties in a conflict should consider. It is a good rule which Emerson laid down, when he said that when two parties are exasperated with each other, it becomes the duty of someone to strike a new note.

MAN LOST IN TELEPHONE BOOTH

We've heard of people who have forgotten they'd left their cars parked downtown and who have gone home and to bed; we read the other day of a man who forgot that he had brought his wife downtown and went home on the street car, leaving her sitting in the parked automobile. But here is a new one: A man who lost himself in a telephone booth. It happened in Chicago, where so many things happen. The man went into the telephone booth and telephoned too long. The drug store closed and he was locked in. He called the police, but since he was unable to give the store's address, the telephone call had to be traced before the police could rescue the man lost in a telephone booth.

Steam Airplanes

New York Times

Impressed by the success of the Besler brothers of California in successfully driving an airplane by steam, the Manchester Guardian wonders if by some odd trick of fate steam power after having "slowly edged off the land and water highways of the earth, should find a new home in the air." There are reasons for such optimism. In South Dakota two Army officers will soon rise, in the largest balloon ever built, into the stratosphere, there to make observations which will add to our knowledge not only of the cosmic rays, but of the air itself. In that cloudless region of thin air and light winds, where one day is like another and where the word "weather" is meaningless, the more imaginative aeronautic engineers see hermetically sealed planes winging their way between Europe and America at speeds of 500 miles an hour. To them breakfast in New York and dinner in London is no wild dream.

One obstacle that stands in the way of the stratosphere airplane is a suitable power plant. The gasoline engine breathes air like a human being. That it may not die at great heights, gasping for oxygen, it must be supercharged," which means that air must be compressed and forced into it. Although the supercharger has been with us ever since the war, its addition to the power plant is coupled with more weight and a heightened complexity. Here we have one reason for looking upon the steam engine with favor. So long as a flame can be kept alight under a flash boiler steam can drive a suitable propeller at any height. And the flexibility of steam and the enormous reserve energy! Efficient as it is, the gasoline engine has nothing to equal its virtues. Boilers and condensers may spell weight, yet such is the progress made with alloys of great strength that the steam engine is no longer the ponderous contrivance it was.

Over a hundred years ago Stringfellow flew a model airplane with steam. Langley's early success with models was also achieved with steam. Hiram Maxim pinned his faith to a 300-horsepower steam engine which was to life the biggest airplane ever built until Curtiss laid down his America for transatlantic flight which the outbreak of the war thwarted. The steam engine has a respectable background, even though it was the gasoline mater repeat iself. For decades flying in the lower atthat gave us the practical airplane. History may yet mosphere had to wait upon the invention of a suitable motor. Now that the upper atmosphere lures the aviator, it is a motor again that presents a major problem.

Revolt Not Censorship

New York Times

The popular uprising against nasty films has brought forth in some quarters a counter-cry of censorship. But it is hard to see how censorship figures in what is essentially a buyers' strike. The leaders of the boycott have not asked for legislation. They are directing their attack against Hollywood's pocket nerve.

Alarmed champions of the free human spirit overlook the fact that legal supervision now exists in the movie industry. Have they never seen the preliminary notice on the screen stating that this show has been passed by the Board of Censors? If anything, the present crusade is a movement away from censorship. As an official institution the censorship has failed. The public is now resorting to the thoroughly democratic weapon of organization and agitation.

Telephone Audiences As Provided In Germany

San Bernardino Sun

Out of tragic Germany comes an amusing story. Foreign correspondents have been told that, "under the law regulating public assemblies," they are forbidden hereafter to carry on telephone conversations in any other than the German language. In a few instances, conversations have been cut off by the police for infringement of the ban.

Asked how the law regulating public assemblage could be applied to telephone calls, the authorities replied:

"There are always more than two. We are listening in."

Three may or may not be a crowd on a telephone line, but in Germany it is an assemblage. And thinking it over, the story isn't so amusing, after all. The constant surveillance it reveals seems a little sickening to an American.

Yosemite on a Stamp

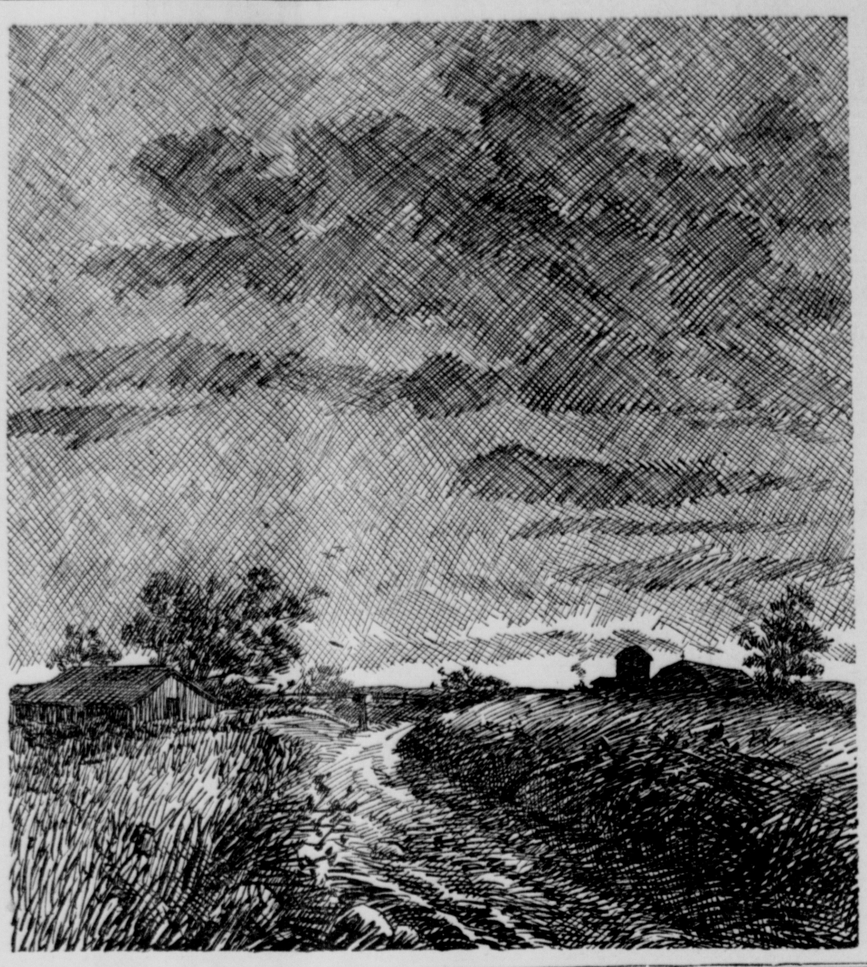

San Francisco Chronicle

The postoffice department is issuing a new series of one-cent stamps to stimulate interest in the national parks. By right of preeminence Yosemite was honored as the first of the series, the design showing a scene of the national park with El Capitan in the foreground.

While it would seem that it needs a wider canvas to reflect the beauty and majesty of our national parks, we have Secretary Ickes' word that the Yosemite issue is the most beautiful he has ever seen.

The first sheet, autographed by Postmaster General Farley, was set aside for President Roosevelt, while philatelists the world over are eager for the new issue.

More Truth Than Poetry

THE INDIAN PASSES

On learning that members of his race are playing excellent golf.

Long ago I believed that the Indians
Were a race that could not be reclaimed;
That they always would be
Untrammelled and free,
Their proud haughty spirits untamed.
They would not lead the life of a Pale Face
Though they possibly might learn his speech,
And his thoughts and his ways,
To the end of their days
Would be always removed from their reach.

But since I have learned that the Red Man,
Discarding his bow and his spear,
Has learned how to dub
'Round a course with a club
And to master the golfer's career,
I am filled with a sad perturbation,
For a man who can foozle a ball
With a fair show of force
Over bunker and course
Can not be a savage at all.

No man of barbarian temper,
Which he never has learned to discard,
And whose temper is hot
Can learn how to swat
A pellet across a great yard.
If the Red Man can handle a driver
Or land on a green with a spoon,
Or play round in par,
I will bet a cigar
That he's bound to be civilized soon.

AN ETERNAL PUZZLE

It is always a surprise to a United States Senator when he fails of re-election. He simply can't understand why he is not kept in his job till he gets ready to step into the Presidency.

PARAGRAPHS

By Robert Quillen

Some people are born with good taste and some think a parody of the twenty-third Psalm is funny.

Reaching for one instead of a sweet won't save you. A Yale professor says tobacco increases the sugar in your blood.

But if you get drunk and run over a child while trying to walk, it isn't an "unavoidable accident."

As Mussolini figures it, the more Italians multiply, the more other lands must divide.

Waste doesn't prove Americans stupid. It is silly to save ice down where Byrd is.

FAITH ISN'T THE ONLY THING THAT WILL MOVE A MOUNTAIN. YOU CAN ADVERTISE IT AND EXPOSE IT TO AMERICA'S SOUVENIR HUNTERS.

Now the ad. says cigarettes will pick you up. Well, it's only fair. Lots of people pick up cigarettes.

N. R. A. does one good turn. How can you tell you have a strong constitution if you never strain it?

Quack doctors may be necessary. The ignorant have no confidence in any other kind.

AMERICANISM: Increasing the tax burden of industries that provide jobs and aid recovery; providing tax-free bonds for the idle and useless.

Scientists can now trace almost everything to its beginning except an idle rumor.

There is nothing as depressing as a cold fried egg unless you count the mosquito net in a cheap resort hotel.

A PIPE MUST HAVE A CHARMING COMPANION. YOU WOULDN'T LET ANY OTHER STICK AROUND WITH THAT SMELL.

The candidate is at a disadvantage after dark. He can't tell whether that sound is applause or mosquitoes.

Swimming pool: A body of water you visit to get cool exercise and athlete's foot.

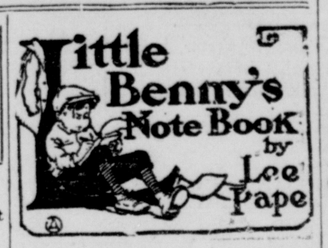

Public bathing should end the disappointments that result in divorce. Both parties can see what they are getting.

A just hell for grouches will be a place where they must sit and listen forever to somebody's complaining.

Little Benny's Note Book by Lee Pape

Pop was smoking and thinking in his private chair and ma said, Little Willie seems to have quite a sense of values for a child of 4, Willyum.

He takes after me, pop said. When I was 4 I had such a remarkable sense of values my kindergarden teacher used to keep me after class to ask my advice about her domestic problems, he said, and ma said, I was taking him for a wawk this afternoon, instructing hit little mind as we went along, and a big luxurious limmazine drove passed with nobody in it but a little boy being driven by a showffer in uniform, and Willie seemed quite impressed till I explained to him that the rich little boy was rally a poor little boy, in other werds he was proberly bored with life because nothing was a novelty to him any more and he didn't even get the proper amount of exercize like more fortunate children such as Willie himself who could wawk in the fresh air and use their naturel little legs as nature intended.

Did he fail for it? pop said, and ma said, It made him very thawtful, and a little later a grocer boy passed us, wisseling merrily as he went by in his white apron with his baskit of groceries to deliver, and I said to Willie, Now, Willie, there's an example of a lucky boy, he has werk to do in the werld and he loves it. He's performing a useful function and no doubt helping to support a loving family and at the same time he's out in the sun and air and glad to be alive and in active motion. Now Willie, wich would you rather be, the grocer boy or the little boy in the limmazine? I asked him, ma said.

Do my ears deceive me, or did he say the grocer boy? pop said, and ma said, Well, not quite. What he said in axual werd for werds was, I'd rather be a boy in a white apron wisseling and riding all by myself in a big green automobeel. That's where his sense of values comes in, Willyum. He realized instinctively that the possession of riches is no bar to true happiness as long as you keep a simple hart, ma said.

Thoughts On Modern Life

BY GLENN FRANK

WATCH THE MASS MOOD

Yesterday I indicated how, whether in phases of reaction or revolution or unpredictable uncertainty as now, the mass mood is a conditioning force in the formulation of both political and economic policy.

Today let me say a little more in detail why it is important for us to keep closely in touch with the temper of the masses.

It is important to do this if we are to act effectively in the development of either political or economic policy. And it is quite as important to the business man, industrialist and financier as to the statesman. For a good stretch of years now there has been going on a steady plebeianization of government throughout the world. The man at the bottom of the pyramid has his finger in the pie as never before.

This fact is, in a sense, independent of his formal political status. It is quite as manifest under dictatorship as under democracy. Not even a Mussolini could grind down the masses if he ran Italy solely in the interest of the top four per cent of her people. It may be set down as one of the new axioms of the time that the business man who does not devise policies that make for the security of the many as well as the profit of the few will, in the long run, be bankrupt, and the statesman who does not devise politics that make for the satisfaction of the masses will, sooner or later, be broken.

It may be said that this means the end of the brilliant performance of the independent genius who, in politics and economics, knows better than the crowd what the long-run interests of mankind require. It may be said that this means a short-sighted autocracy of the average and the slowing to a snail's pace of the enterprise of a nation. I do not think so. But, whether we like it or not, this is the imperative of the age in which we live. The crowd is in control.

Luckily, I think, the peculiar nature of an age of science, technology and power production is such that it can be kept a going concern only as the human needs of the swarming millions are served adequately. The business of a mass production age cannot but backfire if a philosophy of the few dominates it. The market of a mass production age dies if the masses lack ample leisure and adequate income. Only through such mass leisure and mass income is mass consumption possible on anything like the scale our productive capacity indicates. The crowd, if I may say it again, is in control. Science and the machine, not the agitators, have put it in control.

This is why it is important, before we buckle down to more specific considerations, to ask what the current temper of the crowd is.

Our Children By Angelo Patri

Dear Children:

I know that you liked to be loved. You would like to be what the girls call "popular." Attention and affectionate service from others makes you feel comfortably warm about your heart and quite naturally you do what you can to win all this. Sometimes you are so afraid that you are not going to win it that you overdo things and make mistakes as when you are forward and bold in the presence of your elders.

Not long ago I saw a little boy make such a mistake and I felt very sorry for him. I knew that he wasn't really bold and impudent and willfully bad mannered. He wanted very much to have the visitor like him but he went the wrong way about it and got into trouble.

Anton's mother was entertaining guests and he was brought in to be introduced. His mother had told the visitors that he played the violin and was doing rather well, his teacher thought, so they asked him to play. One of the visitors was a famous player and it was more than kind of him to be willing to listen to a child. It was to him that Anton turned and said, "O, play yourself if you want to. I'm fed up with the old stuff. There's nothing in playing a violin. Any old fool can do that. I wouldn't touch it if my mother didn't make me." Then, before the stunned musician could gather himself to make a reply Anton strutted before a lady old enough to be his grandmother and said, "Well, I see you've got your new teeth. They do improve your looks. Don't they, mother?"

I felt sorry for Anton. It is always a mistake to try to bluff your way to attention. If you are frightened and can't think of anything to say without being bold and loud and swaggering, keep still. Learn to smile and bow and keep still when shyness comes over you. Boldness is shyness showing its other face, that's all. Cover it with silence, a smile and a bow.

If you are asked to play smile and bow, go at once to the piano and do your best. A good way to begin, when you are scared, is to run scales very softly, until you can steady your fingers and see the notes. Then plunge into the thing and go ahead. If you are playing the violin you have a better chance. Take your stand in a doorway, at the far end of the room. Again, play softly some phrase that you know well and, when your hand steadies down to the job, begin.

When you have fear about entering a room arrange to carry something in your hand. A plate of refreshments, if they are being served. A roll of music if you are to play, a flower for the visiting lady. Anything that gives you a reason for coming into the room and something to do after you get there. If you value your happiness at home or abroad, don't try to make your way with bluff and bluster and boldness.

Don't speak to older people first. Wait for them to speak to you and then you have the chance to answer. That saves you a lot. And if you don't know how to answer, fall back on that smile and bow. They'll carry you through many a trying time. And by and by they will bring you to the place where fear leaves you and confidence fills you and you can meet the most august of guests gracefully. The whole secret lies in forgetting about being the bright and shining star of the occasion. Be content to wait your turn and be willing to be one of the background until you grow strong enough and important enough to shine in your own right. That comes later, much later.

Yours, A. P.
